

Chapter 1153 The Domain

Liam had given it his all to hang on, but he was starting to feel exhausted now.

Perhaps sensing Liam struggling, the dark aura started another round of attacks.

Liam was almost at his breaking point.

Suddenly, from deep inside Liam's heart, a bright light shone, working its magic on Liam.

In an instant, all his wounds vanished. Even his spiritual power had returned to its peak.

Yet, the light was also drained because of this.

Meanwhile, Liam snapped back to full consciousness.

Lindy heard him roar and watched him jolt awake.

The last trace of the dark aura was absorbed by Liam.

Then, the dark aura Liam had absorbed was all released from his body, creating a special zone around him.

This was what Lindy had called "the domain", a rare and legendary special power.

Liam's domain power kicked in, and even Lindy felt its invisible force.

It was clear just how mighty Liam's special power was now.

Lindy approached Liam, her eyes sparkling, and said, "Congratulations, Liam. You've now got an incredible special power!"

Liam, feeling thankful, looked at Lindy and replied, "Thanks you, Lindy. I wouldn't have made it through without your help, let alone getting this special power."

Suddenly, Liam recalled the white light that had saved him.

The white light had been crucial in helping him comprehend the special power.

Liam was very curious. He muttered to himself, "What exactly is that white light? How could it possess such powerful effects?"

The white light had saved his life twice in critical moments.

But Liam kept his questions to himself.

He had a hunch that the white light was something important. He believed it was best to keep it a secret for now.

It wasn't that Liam didn't trust Lindy.

Lindy had saved his life, teaching him the ropes with the dark aura. Liam trusted her completely.

He was just being cautious by not telling Lindy about the white light.

The fewer people in the know, the safer.

Lindy had noticed something odd during Liam's energy boost earlier.
