

Chapter 1160 Getting Rewards

Liam gave his points tally another look, making sure he really had over a million. Usually composed, this time, he couldn't hide the joy bubbling up inside him.

He couldn't believe his luck.

The points he had got from defeating the higher-ranked creature were way more than he had predicted.

Liam couldn't help but mutter, "With my skills, I could take on a few more of those seventh-rank creatures from the Blood Clan. I have a whole day left here, after all!"

The excitement in Liam's eyes was evident. He felt like he was going to earn a lot more points now.

But suddenly, Liam's plan to keep battling the seventh-rank creatures was ruined by a robotic voice in his head.

"You have moved out of the trial zone. This trial is now concluded!"

When the voice stopped, Liam felt like the world was spinning. When his sight settled, he found himself back at the mountain base.

Vogel's hologram popped up again, his voice sounding as robotic as ever. "You have fifteen minutes before you are kicked out of the trial zone. Spend your points fast. Once you're out, your points will be reset to zero."

Surprised by the sudden news, Liam's brows furrowed.

He had to act quickly. There wasn't time to waste.

With that thought, Liam opened the points store, ready to splurge.

After all, with over one million points, he was practically a tycoon.

First up, Liam purchased the chance to draw the Shadow Sword and the Shadow Flower without hesitation.

With nine hundred and eighty thousand points left, Liam scanned the store's flashy display.

He had his eye on all the Origin Techniques, but a message popped up saying they could only be used in the trial.

Liam calmed himself, quickly sensing that Rage of the Earth had already become ineffective. He sadly gave up his plan to get all the Origin Techniques.

Since he couldn't use Origin Techniques outside the trial, Liam had to get something else.

Despite having loads of points, time was ticking. Liam just grabbed whatever seemed useful without overthinking.

That robotic voice kept playing in his head.

"Human Body Refinement Technique [80, 000 points], check! Compressed Space Containers*5 [storage capability, 8, 000 points each], check! Lightning Wings*5 [equip for flight capability, 60, 000 points each]; Ten-Color Element Stone [10, 000 points each]; Red Star Sand*10 [important material for forging Origin Weapon, 1, 000 points each]..."

Liam was like a kid in a candy store, grabbing whatever seemed cool.

But he was smart about it, focusing on stuff that would really be beneficial to him.

The Lightning Wings he had just purchased were the ticket to flying once he strapped them on.

Liam also picked up loads of treasures to boost his spiritual power. He didn't miss a beat, swapping points for anything that could level up his power.

Before he knew it, time was up, and the points store shut down. Then, that robotic voice came back, loud and clear.

"The trial is over. You will now be returned to the Shadow Palace."

The next moment, Liam found himself right back at the Shadow Palace.
