

Chapter 1252 Task

Lindy hadn't anticipated Liam's comforting words, leaving her momentarily speechless before a joyful smile spread across her face.

"I really appreciate what you just said. Taking good care of you has truly paid off," she said.

Liam offered an awkward smile in return.

He indeed felt a deep gratitude towards Lindy.

After all, she had been his savior in the illusion battlefield before. The jade pendant she had given him had also been crucial. Without it, upon his arrival in the Cosmic realm, he would likely have lacked the Human Clan's protection and been killed by the greedy alien warriors lurking there.

Then, Lindy shifted the topic to a more practical matter.

She guided Liam to the task system and explained how to select a suitable mission.

"You're currently authorized for level two, which allows access to ten habitable planets nearby and some uninhabitable ones. Before you choose a task, I suggest you evaluate its difficulty thoroughly and make sure it's within your capability," she advised.

Liam listened intently and soon picked out Task No. 97, titled "Meteor Secret Realm."

His previous experiences in the secret realms on Blue Star had been beneficial, sparking his curiosity about the "Meteor Secret Realm".

Turning to Lindy, he asked, "Is the secret realm in the Cosmic realm similar to the ones on Blue Star?"

This was what Liam was most concerned about.

After all, enhancing his strength was crucial at any given moment.

When Liam posed his question, Lindy was momentarily taken aback. Soon, she grasped the reason behind his query and explained, "The secret realms of both worlds share similarities. Yet, the stakes and rewards in the Cosmic realm's secret realms far exceed those of your own Celestial Realm."

After a pause, she added, "But the secret realms found in the Network of Human Sovereign are merely simulations. Thus, while undertaking a quest within these secret realms offers the same experiential learning as real secret realms, it yields no physical treasures. And because these secret realms are virtual, they pose no real danger. This setup was crafted by our ancestors to ensure that the younger members of the Human Clan are well-prepared when they step into a real secret realm."

Liam nodded, understanding Lindy's explanation.

It made sense to him, especially since he was currently navigating the Network of Human Sovereign. Expecting to amass significant treasures without facing any risks would indeed be absurd.

Lindy continued, "You might want to consider accepting this task. It's a good opportunity to familiarize yourself with the entire process, from accepting to completing a mission. Furthermore, completing this task will earn you 50 points, and exemplary performance might get additional rewards."

Upon hearing Lindy's suggestion, Liam nodded slightly and accepted the task.

Although the reward seemed paltry compared to his 1000 points, he understood that small gains could accumulate over time.

As Liam agreed to take on the task, Lindy said, "By the way, Liam, before you head to the secret realm, I suggest you meet with my master. It's a perfect opportunity for you to undergo the baptism of the law power of the Cosmic realm, which could significantly boost your strength."

Liam nodded in agreement and accompanied Lindy to Heavenly Dragon College.

Despite its grandiose name, Heavenly Dragon College was essentially a training ground for Sheldon's disciples.

Lindy shared that Sheldon had invested heavily in acquiring sophisticated equipment from other planetary systems.

This level of privilege was reserved only for those of the stature of the Primogem Emperor.

Liam's eyes widened upon learning from Lindy that

Sheldon held the esteemed title of Primogem Emperor.

Even though Liam was relatively new to the Cosmic realm, he had heard of the Primogem Emperors during his time on Blue Star.

Such a warrior could command vast areas within the Cosmic realm!

Liam then turned his gaze back to Lindy, realizing that among Sheldon's many disciples, only one held the title of personal disciple—Lindy, who was standing right before him now.
