

Chapter 1267 The Lord Of Rosefinch Is Astonished

The Lord of Rosefinch had to double-check Liam's age because he could hardly believe what he was reading.

"Fantastic!"

The Lord of Rosefinch was thrilled and checked Liam's potential rating and the time he had joined the Network of Human Sovereign.

He was stunned all over again by just how remarkable Liam's capabilities were.

"Legendary level! This kid is destined for greatness!" he exclaimed.

The Lord of Rosefinch was almost too excited to stay seated.

As the Lord of Rosefinch, he was a Primogem Saint and at the pinnacle of power.

But even someone as powerful as he was only categorized under the tier "Legendary" in terms of potential.

Liam's talents surpassed his own!

The Lord of Rosefinch couldn't help but mutter, "God has blessed our Human Clan! This is wonderful! This Liam is bound for greatness. He might even ascend to the level of Primogem Deity in the future!"

The more the Lord of Rosefinch read Liam's information, the more he found himself appreciating Liam.

As he delved deeper into the details, his amazement only grew.

Then, he found out that Christos from the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign seemed to have a good relationship with Liam.

With this thought, the Lord of Rosefinch's brow furrowed as he muttered to himself, "Could that old man be scheming to snatch this talent from my Rosefinch Galaxy? I can't let that happen! I need to speak with him!"

Worry gnawed at the Lord of Rosefinch. He was concerned that Christos might be aiming to lure Liam away.

With this thought, he quickly set off for the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign.

Soon, he arrived.

Christos, upon laying eyes on the Lord of Rosefinch, instantly understood why he had come.

However, Christos wasn't about to confess his intentions so easily. He played dumb and quipped, "Old man, to what do I owe the honor? My humble abode is hardly fit for a lord of your stature!"

Christos and the Lord of Rosefinch shared a close bond, which was why Christos could afford to joke like this.

The Lord of Rosefinch got straight to the point.

"Christos, I won't beat around the bush. I came here for just one reason. Liam belongs to my Rosefinch Galaxy. Don't even think about taking him away!" he said.

Christos, having already guessed why the Lord of Rosefinch was here, now had his suspicions confirmed.

However, with a talent as promising as Liam, Christos wasn't willing to back down so easily, so he retorted, "What exactly are you talking about? Liam isn't owned by anyone; how can we dictate his choices?"

Christos had made his intention obvious with his response—he wasn't about to let the talented Liam slip through his fingers.

The Lord of Rosefinch bristled with anger upon hearing Christos' words. He pointed at Christos and yelled, "Liam is a native of Rosefinch Galaxy, and that's the fact! How could you ignore that?"

With a chuckle, Christos replied, "I feel a certain connection to Liam. What's the harm in taking him under my wing a bit?"

The Lord of Rosefinch was at a loss for words. After mulling it over, he led Christos to the City of Divinity.

Once there, the Lord of Rosefinch relayed Liam's information to the Citadel Guardian, hoping to secure some fair judgment.

However, the Citadel Guardian chuckled in response. "Let's keep an eye on Liam a bit longer; hold off on any special favors for now. After all, the journey of cultivation is long. Our Human Clan has seen many promising talents that didn't last."

At those words, the Lord of Rosefinch's face fell.

He had come here with the hope that the Citadel Guardian would be on his side!

Fortunately, the Citadel Guardian picked up on the Lord of Rosefinch's intentions. He turned to Christos with a smile. "Christos, Liam needs his space to cultivate in peace. Make sure your people leave him alone. Let him improve himself

With the Citadel Guardian's decision made clear, Christos had no choice but to agree.

The Lord of Rosefinch decided it was necessary for him to test Liam during this time.

Thus, he planned to personally handpick a few appropriate missions for Liam, designed to boost Liam's rank quickly.

He believed by doing this, Liam would undoubtedly appreciate his gestures, and Christos would be unable to take Liam away.

With this thought, the Lord of Rosefinch was invigorated.

Meanwhile, Liam, still in the cultivation chamber, had no idea he was now the focus of several prominent figures.

This period of isolated training had lasted for two months.

By the end of it, Liam had made substantial gains.

Having undergone the transformative powers of the Cosmic realm, Liam's insight had noticeably improved.

Now, he was close to mastering the earth element's law power.

He had also awakened various Origin Techniques of the special powers within him.

His power had soared tremendously!
