

Chapter 1289 The War

Liam made up his mind to leave the territory governed by the Network of Human Sovereign.

As he began to put his plan into action, he suddenly remembered a crucial detail: exiting the Network of Human Sovereign territory required level five authorization.

He was only at level three now, making his intended departure impossible.

Frustration was apparent in his heart as his lips twitched. How could he have overlooked such a vital fact?

Yet, he didn't succumb to despair. His thoughts turned to Lindy, who had navigated the Cosmic realm much longer than he had.

If anyone knew how to circumvent this obstacle, it would be Lindy.

Just as Liam was about to contact Lindy, the entire Network of Human Sovereign shuddered.

The next second, the sky darkened ominously, storm clouds gathering with lightning slicing through and thunder booming.

Meteors blazed across the heavens, their glowing trails a mesmerizing spectacle before vanishing.

The meteor showers came in successive waves, lighting up the sky with their fiery arcs.

Amid this celestial chaos, a profound sense of sorrow swept through the Network of Human Sovereign.

People around Liam began to weep, their emotions overflowing. Even Liam, usually so composed, felt a stir of sadness.

Even with his mental power, he was still affected by the Network of Human Sovereign.

But Liam soon realized this and shook his head, dispelling the gloom.

Then, distant voices erupted, proclaiming, "The Primogem King has fallen, and the stars are tears!"

More people started repeating the sentence.

"The Primogem King has fallen, and the stars are tears!"

The proclamation echoed, growing louder as more voices joined, forming a chorus of mourning.

The Network of Human Sovereign soon broadcasted an official statement, Everyone from the Human Clan heard Caden's voice in their head.

"Today at noon, Primogem King Nocturne Rayne was defending the southern border of the Rosefinch Galaxy when he was ambushed by the Insect Clan. Despite his valiant efforts, he succumbed to exhaustion and died in battle. In his final moments, he detonated himself, taking down the Insect Clan's Primogem King alongside him. The Insect Clan's invasion at our southern border has necessitated a call to all Primogem Experts and Primogem Kings in the Rosefinch Galaxy to prepare for battle. All tasks are suspended, and the Network of Human Sovereign will temporarily shut down."

As the announcement concluded, Liam's brows furrowed deeply.

It seemed a war in the Cosmic realm was imminent.

Yet, rather than fear, a fierce determination ignited within Liam—a resolve to fight for the Human Clan.

Before the Network of Human Sovereign shut down, Liam hastily searched for more information.

He learned that wars in the Cosmic realm were categorized into three types.

Border Wars: Minor conflicts at territorial edges, seldom involving Primogem Kings.

Invasion Wars: These varied from localized skirmishes to full-scale invasions, depending on the aggressor's ambitions.

Extinction Wars: The most severe one among the three. These wars threatened the very existence of a race.

Without needing further details, Liam understood that an Extinction War was a matter of survival of a race.

Assessing the current situation, he deduced the war now was likely a border skirmish or a localized invasion; it wouldn't escalate into a larger conflict.

This solidified his determination to join the war.
