

Chapter 1348 Liam's Identity

Just as Liam sighed, relieved to have activated the law power of death, Ameer sat across from the City Lord in the Celestial Palace at the heart of the Divine Domain.

Ameer gazed respectfully at the City Lord before speaking. "City Lord, are you familiar with Liam? I've come specifically to discuss him this time."

The City Lord had been curious about Ameer's visit. After all, Ameer was a renowned hermit. He hadn't expected Ameer to tell him about his intentions so quickly.

Upon learning Ameer's reason for coming, the City Lord looked resigned.

Noticing this, Ameer asked, "What's wrong, City Lord?"

The City Lord replied, "You didn't need to mention it. I've been aware of Liam from the start. Moreover, Caden mentioned him to me before."

Ameer chuckled, aware that Caden had told the City Lord about Liam.

Ameer said, "Liam's soul power is extraordinarily strong. Today, I personally witnessed the strength of his soul power. This young fellow is merely a fifth-level Primogem Expert, yet his soul power rivals that of a seventh-level Primogem King. It's unthinkable for him not to have a significant background. What's more, this young man is immensely talented. If you could take him as your disciple, that would be great!"

When Ameer hinted at Liam's possibly influential background, the City Lord's demeanor turned grave. "I didn't expect you to have picked up on that. Let me share something with you. Liam and Emperor Hoffman originate from the same Celestial Realm, known as Blue Star."

Ameer inhaled sharply upon hearing the City Lord's revelation and exclaimed, "Could this young man be a descendant of Emperor Hoffman and Forge Regal?"

Forge Regal was the premier Primogem equipment master in the Human Clan.

The Primogem equipment wielded by many people from the Human Clan had been crafted by Forge Regal. Forge Regal's remarkable achievements in weapon refining were legendary, and she was also a formidable warrior, achieving the status of a Primogem Deity.

Despite not being known for her combat prowess, Forge Regal's status remained unchallenged within the Human Clan.

The equipment she personally crafted could significantly boost the users' abilities.

Moreover, Forge Regal's contributions had significantly enhanced the Human Clan's power, attracting the attention of numerous powerful aliens who sought to assassinate her and weaken the Human Clan's strength.

Since the City Lord disclosed this information, it was clear he had no intention of keeping anything from Ameer. So, when Ameer posed his question, the City Lord nodded and confirmed, "I've already spoken to Emperor Hoffman, and he has told me that Liam is indeed his son."

Ameer was taken aback by this revelation.

He had not anticipated that Liam would have such an illustrious lineage.

The idea that Liam was the son of Emperor Hoffman was beyond what he had imagined.

Then, gathering his thoughts, Ameer inquired, "In that case, shouldn't Emperor Hoffman train Liam personally? Why hasn't Emperor Hoffman revealed anything about Liam's identity after Liam ascended to the Cosmic realm?"

The City Lord was forthcoming with his response. He replied, "Emperor Hoffman explained that he did this because he didn't want Liam to become overly dependent on him. He believes that if Liam's cultivation progresses too smoothly, it could ultimately hinder his growth."
