Chapter 1303 Level-three Mission

Christos had laid out clear guidance, and Liam grasped it with certainty.

Prior to departing, Liam expressed his gratitude to Christos, who dismissed it with a chuckle and a casual wave.

Once he left the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign, Liam promptly made his way to the mission room.

Christos had outlined the next steps for him, and Liam aimed to swiftly increase his clearance level.

Upon reviewing his current points, he noted he possessed a substantial 9,500 points.

He was nearly reaching level four; a smile spread across his face.

He required just 10,000 points to reach level four. Liam believed one more mission should suffice, confident in his ability to seamlessly progress to level four clearance.

Opening the mission system, he meticulously assessed the cost-effectiveness of each task.

After all, he needed to gather the strength to swiftly hunt for the fragments of the Heart of Life.

Deep in his research, Liam suddenly heard a familiar voice from behind him.

"Liam, it's been too long!"

Liam turned around to see Cecil, whom he hadn't encountered for days.

Liam held a favorable opinion of Cecil.

Without Cecil's guidance on the arena missions, he would have remained unaware of this swift point-earning method.

Furthermore, his exceptional performance in the arena missions had drawn the interest of numerous influential figures in the Rosefinch Galaxy.

Liam smiled and replied, "Indeed, it has been some time. Hey, are you here for a mission as well, Mr. Vaughn?"

Knowing that Cecil was a lot older than him, Liam felt the need to address Cecil respectfully.

Cecil's face brightened with joy upon hearing Liam's words, and he said, "No need to be so formal with me; just call me Cecil. We're friends, after all!"

Liam chuckled softly in reply.

Cecil then draped an arm around Liam and said, "Liam, are you searching for the perfect mission? I've got a solid level-two mission here. It's low-effort; you can rack up points almost effortlessly. If you're keen, I can pull it up for you in the mission system."

Liam smiled gently and answered, "I appreciate the offer. However, I'm at level three clearance now, so tackling a level-two mission would be a bit inefficient. Plus, I'm almost at level four, and the rewards from level two missions aren't quite enticing enough for my focus."

Cecil's smile froze, and there was astonishment in his eyes.

It had only been a few days, and Liam had already attained level three clearance?

What stunned Cecil even more was Liam's imminent leap to level four!

Cecil was overwhelmed with shock.

Liam had clearly been making progress at an astonishing speed!

It took Cecil some time to recover from the shock.

Looking at Liam, he sincerely exclaimed, "Liam, you're absolutely incredible! Since you're already at level three, I won't push further. Clearly, level-two missions lack appeal for you now."

Cecil's face brimmed with admiration; he was marveling at Liam's swift progress.

Then, before bidding farewell to Liam, Cecil said, "Liam, if you ever find yourself near the No. 75 planetary system, do visit the Vaughn family there. That's my family, and we'll welcome you with open arms."

Liam smiled and nodded.
