Chapter 1313 Killing Jason

After the Dark Mist King was killed, Liam survived.

His thoughts quickly turned to Jason and his two servants, who had escaped due to the Dark Mist King's interference.

Liam had distinctly sensed Jason's intense hatred toward him before.

If Jason managed to leave the No. 76 resource planetary system alive and return to the Astron family, Liam would be facing a catastrophic retaliation.

Liam knew he could not afford to be merciful now. Allowing Jason to return would likely lead to his own death.

With this realization, Liam's expression hardened. He quickly used his spiritual power to track Jason's location as he moved...

Meanwhile, Jason, aided by his servants, was desperately fleeing for his life.

Throughout their escape, Jason cursed Liam and even made threats.

"Damn it! That scoundrel is doomed! Once I escape this planetary system, I will ask my father to uncover his true identity! I will tear him to shreds!"

Jason spoke through clenched teeth, his resentment towards Liam boiling over.

He had already etched Liam's face into his memory. He was determined to find Liam and exact his revenge through his family's influential connections.
He wanted to see Liam utterly defeated, begging for mercy.

The two servants, wary of offending Jason, remained silent. Yet, as they thought of the Dark Mist King, they cautiously broached the subject.

"Mr. Astron, we're unsure if the Dark Mist King is still pursuing us. We've secured over ten crystal cores. Should we leave the No. 76 planetary system and complete our mission now?"

Despite his reluctance, Jason conceded, his injuries and the looming threat of the Dark Mist King pressing him to leave.

Jason scowled, his voice laced with scorn. "You two losers! If it weren't for your incompetence against that scoundrel, I wouldn't be in this mess! When I return home, I'll ensure my father hears of your failures! What are you waiting for? Start the transmission circle and send me back now!"

The two servants immediately apologized.

However, just as they were about to activate the transmission circle, a cold voice echoed.

"Did I say you could leave?"

The person who had just spoken was none other than Liam.

Jason, realizing Liam had caught up with him, was paralyzed by fear. The dread of being incapacitated by Liam surged within him, prompting desperate pleas for mercy.

"Please have mercy! I was wrong before! I made a mistake! Just let me go. If you need to vent your anger, punish my servants instead. Just spare me! Okay?"

Liam hadn't expected Jason's ruthless offer to sacrifice his servants for his safety. He believed Jason was too shameless.

Liam's voice was icy as he replied, "Just a moment ago, you were muttering that you planned to ask your father to kill me. What? Have you changed your mind now?"

When Jason heard Liam's words, his complexion turned ghostly pale. The reality that Liam had overheard everything he had just said struck him hard.

Panic gripped Jason, and he nearly cried out loud, his pleas for mercy becoming frantic.

However, Liam ignored him.

Realizing the futility of begging and sensing his imminent demise, Jason became angry. He yelled, "Son of a bitch! I've already sent your image to my father via the Network of Human Sovereign! If you don't want to die, just let me go! Otherwise, the Astron family will hunt you down! Killing me won't solve your problem!"

Despite the area being covered by the Network of Human Sovereign, because their mission was classified as level three, it lacked the higher protections afforded to level-one and level-two missions.

This lack of protection was precisely why Jason feared Liam might actually kill him.

However, Jason's threats failed to intimidate Liam.

Liam didn't even bother with a response. With a cold, decisive motion, Liam drew his sword. Without a moment's hesitation, he ended the lives of Jason and his two complicit servants.
