

Chapter 847 The Call From The Organizer Of The Show

Janet gazed at Brandon. As soon as she saw Brandon nod, Janet answered the phone.

"Hello?"

"Draco! What the hell is wrong with you?! How many times did I call you? Why didn't you answer till now?" On the phone, the woman sounded really irritated.

Janet clarified, "It's not Draco. This is Janet, his assistant designer. How may I assist you?"

For a moment, the woman was speechless. When she had regained her composure, she remarked in a calm tone, "I'm Zuri, the main organizer of this year's Iridescent Show. Have you got Draco there with you right now? Give the phone to him."

Zuri had been in contact with Draco since she started preparing for the show. Earlier that day, she learned that Draco had boarded the aircraft. Zuri had her assistant go pick up Draco from the airport, but her employee never returned with him.

Zuri sent a message inquiring about Draco's whereabouts. Draco, though, did not respond.

"Draco! What the hell is wrong with you?! How many times did I call you? Why didn't you answer till now?"

On the phone, the woman sounded really irritated.

Janet clarified, "It's not Draco. This is Janet, his assistant designer. How may I assist you?"

For a moment, the woman was speechless. When she had regained her composure, she remarked in a calm tone, "I'm Zuri, the main organizer of this year's Iridescent Show. Have you got Draco there with you right now? Give the phone to him."

Zuri had been in contact with Draco since she started preparing for the show. Earlier that day, she learned that Draco had boarded the aircraft. Zuri had her assistant go pick up Draco from the airport, but her employee never returned with him.

Zuri sent a message inquiring about Draco's whereabouts. Draco, though, did not respond.

As Zuri watched the evening news, she discovered that Draco's flight had been canceled.

She tried to call Draco to find out what was going on, but he never picked up.

She was the show's main organizer, it turned out.

After realizing that, Janet said, "No worries here; Mr. Wesley is doing great. It's just a mere accident. We need some time to handle the situation."

some time to handle the situation."

Janet refrained from mentioning Draco's poisoning.

"What is Draco up to, anyway? Do you know that I have placed Draco in a pivotal role in the show? All of the models and settings are in place, and he's going to open the show for us! If Draco does not show up, we will suffer a significant loss!" Zuri's statements were incisive, and her strength and decisiveness were evident.

In a state of helplessness, Janet started to explain, but Zuri cut her off. "Tomorrow morning, the show will begin! Tell me! What is it going to be? Will Draco be there or not?" ①

Janet was at a loss as to how to respond. She had to wait for Draco to wake up before he could decide what they should do.

When she was in a quandary, a nurse hurried over in a hurry. "Are you Janet? Draco Wesley has awoken and wishes to see you. Let's go!" ①

Janet was thrown off to some extent. She agreed as soon as she understood what the nurse had just said. Concurrently, she reassured Zuri over the phone, "Have no fear, Miss Salazar. I will go see Mr. Wesley right now. Let me verify that and get back to you in an hour."

Hearing that she would get an answer soon, Zuri stopped making things difficult for Janet.

In a resolute tone, she stated, "Alright, you seem like a no-nonsense type of individual. You have exactly an hour! To put it bluntly, if you don't phone me in the next hour, I'm going to permanently eliminate the W Marks from the Iridescent Show."

Right after Janet hung up the phone, she stated to Brandon, "I need to see Mr. Wesley. I'll be back in no time."

Brandon didn't have to make a big deal out of it. He merely shrugged and replied, "Go ahead."

Brandon and Frank had to wait outside while Janet went inside the ward to see Draco.

Brandon had an excellent view of the ward activity through the glass window. His placid visage began to show signs of gloom.

Frank grinned meaningfully at observing Brandon waiting outside the door with a sad face.

He had no idea that Brandon, who had always been so aloof and unfeeling, could eventually turn into such a jealous guy.

Frank was particularly taken aback by the fact that among his close pals, the ice-cold Brandon and the playboy Garrett were the first two to get married.

"Quit taking things so seriously. Without blinking, your eyes will get exhausted." Frank sighed heavily and whispered in Brandon's ear, "By the way, Brandon, do you regret asking me to save Draco?"