Married At First Sight Chapter 3595 – Stone family villa.

Duncan arrived at the Stone family home early. Not to mention Remy, his future father-in-law and mother-in-law were going to Jensburg.

Elisa wanted to go with them, but Audrey wouldn't allow it, saying her daughter couldn't help and that Elisa's personality was too flamboyant, which wasn't good. In truth, Audrey was afraid that something might happen, and the whole family would be in trouble.

Elisa and Leland couldn't accompany them. And Alice, of course, couldn't go since her son was still so young.

Duncan gave various instructions, but he looked lonely.

Audrey knew what Duncan was thinking and comforted him, saying, "Liberty knows your intentions, and she won't blame you. You're doing fine at home; she has nothing to worry about and can focus on her work."

"You're waiting for her to come back for the New Year. Didn't she say that if she returns by then and the Civil Affairs Bureau isn't closed, she'll go with you to get the marriage certificate? Even though we haven't held the wedding yet, it's still a big happy event, and we have to celebrate it. Prepare for it, get the marriage certificate, and treat us all to a meal to celebrate. I'm fully confident in handing my eldest niece over to you. You're much more reliable than Hank."

Duncan liked Liberty for who she was, not for her appearance.

When Liberty was still a heavysset woman, Duncan had already had a good impression of her. It might not have been love at the time, but he appreciated Liberty as a person and didn't look down on her because of her weight. He didn't mind that she was divorced or had children, either.

He treated Sonny better than his own son.

How many biological fathers and sons don't have as good a relationship as Duncan and Sonny?

Now Hank's place in Sonny's heart wasn't as significant as Duncan's.

Duncan pursed his lips and said to Audrey, “Aunt, it would be a lie to say I’m not worried. I just hate that I’m useless. After all this time, I still can’t walk like a normal person. When Liberty needed me the most, I wasn’t by her side. I couldn’t do anything.”

He patted his legs, saying, “I tried very hard with rehabilitation, but I still can’t leave this wheelchair. I want to help Liberty, but if I go there like this, I’ll only hold her back.”

Audrey said, “Duncan, I understand. It’s okay; Liberty won’t blame you. Trust in us, and trust in Liberty.”

Lilian was eating a bunch of grapes while watching.

Grandpa Jimenez looked at her several times.

When Lilian finished eating the grapes and grabbed a handful of melon seeds, Grandpa Jimenez couldn’t help but say to her, “Lilian, you haven’t stopped eating since you got up. You’re like a rabbit, eating non-stop.”

“Don’t they feed you at the Johnson house? Did Tim mistreat you?”

Lilian smiled and said, “No, they practically worship me. I was born to eat and talk with this mouth. Grandpa Jimenez, you know I love to eat. We’re all authentic foodies.”

Grandpa Jimenez said nothing.

Yes, that group of young people are all foodies. Even after eating all kinds of delicacies, they still maintain their love for food. They’re not picky; they eat whatever they can.

They say every food has its nutritional value.

“Mrs. Stone, it’s time to leave. If you go later, it’ll be dark when you get to Jensburg, and it’s going to be very cold there. I’m afraid Grandpa Jimenez won’t be able to handle it. If you leave now, you’ll arrive around noon when the temperature is a little better.”

Even though there will be heating along the way, Grandpa Jimenez will have to get off the plane, and it will be cold when he does.

Married At First Sight Chapter 3596 – They didn’t mind.

But Grandpa Jimenez was too old, so they had to be careful.

Grandpa Jimenez said, “I’m not afraid of the cold.”

Lilian bluntly replied, “Who is the one who hibernates every year? Once winter comes, you never go out the front door or the back door, and you eat hot pot every day. We had to help you shovel the snow in your yard.”

Grandpa Jimenez said, "A handful of melon seeds can't keep you quiet, can it? Just eat your seeds."

Lilian laughed.

Audrey said, "Alright, we'll leave right away."

She turned to Leland, Elisa, and Remy and said, "Your dad, mom, and Clive are not at home, so you two have to take care of the family and look after your sister-in-law and child. Remy, thank you for your help."

Audrey felt that Remy, the son-in-law, was important.

With her and her husband going on a long journey and Clive not at home, she felt much more at ease knowing Remy, their prospective son-in-law, was nearby. Remy also lived next door, very close.

If anything happens at home, they only have to call out in the yard, and Remy will come over.

If you're looking for a son-in-law, find someone as capable as Remy.

Remy said, "Dad, Mom, don't worry. Leland, Elisa, and I will watch over the family and take good care of my sister-in-law and the children."

"Well, I feel much more at ease with you here," Audrey said. She turned to Duncan and added, "Get the diamond ring ready. When my niece comes back, you should formally propose to her and then get the marriage certificate."

Duncan nodded firmly.

"Aunt, I will."

He wanted to formally propose to Liberty in front of everyone, and then get the marriage certificate. He planned to hold a grand wedding after the New Year that would be the talk of Wiltspoon.

He wanted to make Hank regret it.

Audrey walked back to Grandpa Jimenez, and together with her husband, helped him up and slowly led him outside.

Alice followed her son out and said to Audrey, "Mom, keep an eye on Clive."

“Don’t worry; it’ll be okay.” Audrey was confident. She had already received news of her second aunt’s scheme. Without a perfect plan, she wouldn’t take Grandpa Jimenez back.

“It’s windy outside and quite cold. The child is still young; you should carry him back inside,” Audrey advised Alice, her daughter-in-law, not to send her off.

They were just going to seek justice for her parents.

Soon, several cars drove off, taking Audrey, Darrell, Grandpa Jimenez, and Lilian to Jensburg.

At noon, they arrived in Jensburg.

Grandpa Jimenez had already agreed with Audrey that after returning to Jensburg, he would visit the cemetery to see the head of the family.

Audrey agreed.

She also wanted to see her parents and the ancestors of the Farrell family and tell them that the Farrell family had produced someone like Clarissa, who was ruthless and cruel, killed her sisters, and would do anything to achieve her goals.

When Audrey first learned about her origins, she took her husband, children, Liberty, and others to the Farrell family cemetery to pay respects to her parents, as well as her grandparents and others.

Her father and grandparents were not buried in the Farrell family cemetery but in a large cemetery next to it. That was the resting place for the husbands of the Farrell family’s heads after their death.

Their parents-in-law were generally not buried there. Even though the previous head of the family had married a man, they were a loving couple and were also very good to their in-laws, brother-in-law, and sister-in-law. Everyone had a harmonious relationship, so she bought a big villa for her husband’s family.
