

Chapter 2058 Lexi Came Back

A few days passed.

Janet had been spending her days at home, immersed in designing baby clothes. Sonia, always by her side, would occasionally offer her design suggestions, adding a touch of inspiration to Janet's creative process.

After extensive research and meticulous consideration, Janet finally completed a design draft, ensuring every detail was perfect.

She also wanted to choose the perfect fabric for the clothes, but she realized that the manual detailing the fabrics had been left at Rowena Studio.

It seemed she had no choice but to head over to the studio.

With this in mind, Janet asked the maid to help prepare the car.

As Janet stepped out the door, Sonia, ever vigilant as her bodyguard, naturally followed close behind.

Sonia had already developed a genuine desire to protect Janet, beyond her professional duty.

She discovered that being with Janet now felt completely different from before.

Janet didn't display any arrogance around her. True to her earlier promise, Janet treated her as a friend, speaking gently and showing kindness in every interaction.

Here with Janet, Sonia deeply felt the meaning of respect and genuine care.

Sonia accompanied Janet to Rowena Studio.

As Janet took a few steps forward, she suddenly caught sight of something from the corner of her eye. Her eyes widened in astonishment, and she came to an abrupt halt.

Seeing Janet stop abruptly, Sonia halted and asked in confusion, "What's wrong?"

"It appears Lexi is back," said Janet.

Upon hearing Janet's words, Sonia turned her gaze to Lexi's workstation and observed Lexi typing intently on the keyboard.

Witnessing this scene, Sonia couldn't help but frown. "Why did she come back?"

"I also have no idea."

Janet's surprise was palpable upon encountering Lexi unexpectedly.

After the fashion show, she recalled granting Lexi a two-week paid holiday.

However, unexpectedly, Lexi returned to work before her holiday was over.

Janet frowned slightly, her thoughts inscrutable to those around her.

Simultaneously, Lexi rose to fetch water but inadvertently collided with Janet as she turned around.

"Hi, Janet!" Lexi greeted cheerfully.

Janet smiled upon hearing Lexi's voice and then asked,

"Lexi, didn't I grant you a two-week vacation? Why did you come back so early?"

"I can't stay idle, so I wanted to come back to the office early to see if there's anything I can do for the studio," Lexi replied earnestly.

"Actually..."

Janet attempted to persuade Lexi to return home, but before she could finish her sentence, Lexi cut her off abruptly.

"Based on my recent efforts, I believe that if we showcase exceptional designs at another design exhibition in about six months, we can establish our reputation independently from W Marks!" Lexi exclaimed enthusiastically.

Janet's reaction wasn't as positive as Lexi had anticipated. Instead, she frowned, feeling a twinge of discontent.

Earlier, she had encouraged Lexi to rest well, never imagining that Lexi would seize the opportunity to secretly engage in work-related activities.

Setting aside the uncertainty of whether Rowena Studio could realistically win an award within six months, Janet was also likely still in her postnatal recovery period. How could she actively participate in such an event?

Lexi appeared to have thought this through. She raised her hand and volunteered, "I can take on the role of main designer and oversee the design planning. You can provide guidance when needed!"
