

Chapter 2067 Brandon Keeps Sonia's Secret

Brandon's gaze locked onto Sonia again, his eyes narrowing as he noticed her hesitation.

"What's wrong? Aren't you curious to look into your origins? Or is there something else bothering you?" he asked in confusion.

She did want to know, but the fear of Alexandra discovering gnawed at her.

If Alexandra found out, he would undoubtedly become suspicious, which could spell disaster for her.

As this thought crossed her mind, she regretted pulling out a strand of her hair.

She realized that her hesitation had already piqued Brandon's suspicions. She needed a plausible explanation, and fast, to avoid further misunderstandings.

Feigning uncertainty, Sonia replied, "Mr. Larson, I'd appreciate it if you kept the DNA test confidential."

Brandon's stare bore into her. "Why do you want to keep it a secret?"

"I..." Sonia took a deep breath. "I'm just a bodyguard, not someone important. I don't want Janet to be distracted or worried about this. Too much stress could affect her pregnancy."

In reality, she was determined to keep Alexandra from discovering her secret.

Brandon didn't respond immediately. His fingers tapped rhythmically on the armrest of his chair as he scrutinized Sonia with a cold gaze.

Despite his doubts about Sonia, her concern for Janet seemed genuine.

After a thoughtful pause, Brandon finally nodded and accepted Sonia's request.

"Alright, I'll keep it a secret."

Sonia exhaled in relief. "Thank you, Mr. Larson."

Sonia handed over the strand of hair to Brandon.

"Is there anything else?" Brandon inquired.

Sonia shook her head. "No, that's all."

"Then you may leave."

Brandon stood up and turned off the recording.

Sonia nodded silently and quickly exited the meeting room.

Now, only Brandon remained in the room.

Brandon picked up Sonia's hair, examining it closely as he dialed a number on his phone.

"Mr. Larson," Brandon's subordinate greeted him respectfully on the other end of the line.

Brandon got straight to the point. "Come here immediately. I've got a strand of hair that requires another DNA test."

"Understood," he answered promptly.

As Brandon prepared to end the call, a thought crossed his mind. His tone was cold and commanding as he instructed, "Additionally, arrange for an investigation into any possible tampering with the previous DNA test."

After issuing his instructions, Brandon exited the meeting room and headed to the living room to find Janet.

At that moment, Janet was engaged in conversation with Johanna.

Johanna sighed, her voice filled with emotion. "After all these years, I never imagined you would be having a child too. Rest assured, dear, I've already spoken to your father. We've decided to be very cautious so you won't experience the pain my sister and I went through."

Brandon froze in confusion.

Sister? What sister?

The same question lingered in both Janet's and Brandon's minds.

Janet and Brandon exchanged puzzled looks before Janet voiced her doubts. "Mom, what do you mean by the situation with you and your sister?"
