

Chapter 2103 Lexi's crying

After the medical team, servants, and bodyguards left, Lexi stood alone in the vast living room, feeling like a scolded child.

"Janet, can I go back now?" she asked, her voice laced with anxiety. "Or should I stay here temporarily, or maybe a hotel, to cooperate with the investigation?"

"Now that the truth is coming to light, you're free to go back." Janet smiled gently.

Relief washed over Lexi's face, disbelief lingering in her voice. "Really?"

"Absolutely. I've always believed you wouldn't hurt me," Janet said sincerely.

Overcome with emotion, Lexi's tears welled up. All the pent-up grievances and fear came flooding out.

"Janet..." she choked out, rushing towards Janet.

Startled by Lexi's sudden movement, both Brandon and Janet reacted instinctively.

Brandon stood protectively in front of Janet and raised his arm to block Lexi's path.

Lexi attempted to push past Brandon, her only focus on reaching Janet.

When her efforts failed, her gaze darted down, landing on Janet's legs.

Without warning, Lexi dropped to the floor with a loud thud. She reached out and grabbed ahold of Janet's trouser legs.

"What are you doing?" Janet exclaimed, her eyes wide with shock. Unconsciously, she shrank back into Brandon's embrace.

"Janet, you don't know how much your words mean to me!" Lexi cried out, tears streaming down her face. "I thought Myrna was kind, but I never expected her to be so evil. Thank goodness you always believe me."

Lexi's sobs intensified as she recounted the injustices she'd endured. As soon as she finished with Myrna's cruelty; she went on to detail Sonia's targeted attacks, including ruining Draco's designs and manipulating the bodyguards to make her life difficult.

Tears streamed down her face as she spoke of these grievances.

Janet found herself in a precarious position. "Lexi, can you please get up first? We can talk about everything slowly."

Lexi's emotional outburst, clinging to Janet's legs while sobbing, could easily be misinterpreted.

"Janet, how can I ever repay you?" Lexi cried, seemingly oblivious to Janet's discomfort.

"You don't owe me anything. Just get up first, please."

Janet continued coaxing Lexi. She shot a subtle glance towards Brandon, but he remained oblivious.

"Janet, you're the best boss anyone could ask for! I'll never forget your kindness. I'll work even harder for the company from now on!" Lexi added.

Janet muttered a few comforting words, but they fell on deaf ears.

Lexi's tears continued to flow freely, her face draining of color with each passing moment. The prolonged sobbing left her gasping for air, on the verge of fainting.

Concerned, Janet discreetly tugged on Brandon's sleeve, silently pleading for him to intervene.

Despite not wanting to get involved, the escalating situation and Lexi's growing distress forced Brandon to act. Not to mention, Lexi's cries were getting annoying. He called two servants over.

"Mr. Larson." The servants bowed their heads.

Pointing towards Lexi with a frown, Brandon instructed, "Help her out."

Lexi's body jolted. "No, I'm not tired! I still have so much more to tell Janet!"

Ignoring her pleas, the servants firmly guided Lexi away.
