

Chapter 936 Interview With Vivian

Estella was extremely excited because Janet agreed to take her to the Larson Group to see Brandon. She also began to think about what kind of questions she should ask Brandon later.

The truth was, she didn't even know what he looked like.

Even though Brandon was the Larson Group's CEO, he seldom showed up in public in the past. Even when he did and there were news covers, there were not many pictures of him.

He had only been seen in public more often after he got married to Janet.

Janet became a little worried when she saw the mysterious smile on Estella's face. So, she immediately reminded, "Let me make things clear. I'll only introduce you to him. I won't participate in your persuading him; you're going to have to do that yourself."

Estella held Janet's arm as she gently said, "I actually wanted to talk to both you and your husband. You just foiled my plans, Janet."

"Believe it or not, I can always break my promise and have no problem with it," Janet firmly stated. There was a hint of coldness in her eyes as she pretended to look threatening.

Estella quickly nodded. "I know. I'll behave, okay?"

Eventually, they arrived in front of the Larson Group's building.

Before they went inside, Janet looked at Estella and reminded, "Don't ask Brandon about his family affairs and his father. Those topics are taboo for him."

"Do you think I'm stupid?" Estella pouted. "You're my friend, and Brandon is your husband. I'll treat him with the utmost respect; just like how I treat you. Besides, he's the Larson Group's CEO. There's no way I'd try to offend him."

Janet heaved a sigh. She felt relieved hearing that. She then took out her phone to check the time before she said, "I asked Sean just now. Brandon is still in the middle of an interview. We're probably going to wait for a while."

"I'll have time to collect some materials by then,"

Estella replied as she rolled up her sleeves and prepared her recorder pen.

"What are you going to do?" Janet couldn't help but ask. She had a bad feeling about that.

Estella put her arm around Janet's shoulder and flashed a mischievous smile as she pulled her close. "I'm going to take you with me while I interview the Larson Group's employees. Let's go!"

Janet facepalmed. She felt utterly helpless. It seemed like agreeing to let Estella come to the Larson Group was a huge mistake.

At that time, the interviews were being held inside the Larson Group's 16th floor.

With an upright posture, Vivian sat outside the meeting room. Among all the other interviewees, she was the one who stood out the most.

"I saw a girl come out just now and she was sweating like she had run a long way. Gosh, I wonder what the interviewers had asked her." The two girls who also came for interviews whispered to each other. They also wanted to talk to Vivian.

Vivian wasn't interested in their chitchats. After what happened in the welfare house last week, she was quite confident that Brandon would hire her.

She had already gone through three rounds of strict interviews. This position that she applied for was to take over some of the work that Charis had been responsible for. There were mainly two major sections: charity work and enterprise image. She was very confident in those kinds of work. 1

At that time, a lady who had finished the interview came out of the office. Everyone went to her to ask about the situation, but she frowned and dismissively waved her hand at them.

"Next is Vivian Cooper," one of the staff informed the people waiting outside of the meeting room.

Vivian pushed the door open and walked inside. There were three interviewers. Brandon however, was the most eye-catching person in the room.

Brandon was wearing a suit and looked like a business elite. He didn't seem like he wanted to show off, so he wasn't even sitting in the middle of the table. However, he was way too eye-catching wherever he sat.

After a brief introduction about herself, Vivian added, "I was adopted by Mr. Luke Turner a few days ago. I'm now the adopted daughter of the Turner family.

All of the interviewers looked at Vivian in shock upon hearing that.

Brandon pressed his lips into a thin line as he quietly observed her. He was surprised that she directly confessed her identity.

"The Larson Group and the Turner family's relationship is quite tense because of what happened in the past. Why do you want to work in the Larson Group now?" Brandon calmly asked, giving Vivian an expressionless look.

Vivian shifted her gaze to Brandon and stared at him straight in the eye. "It's exactly because of that that you should let me join the Larson Group, Mr. Larson."

Brandon an eyebrow. "Enlighten me, please." 1

"Although the Turner family's company isn't as powerful as the Larson Group, it's still a well-known company. It also has connections with many other well-known, long-established companies.

The Larson Group is a new enterprise that has risen in the recent years. Its influence is strong, but it's still the newcomer in town. Offending the long-established companies that have a stable foundation isn't a good idea. It might even push the Larson Group to a situation where they have to fight alone if things go downhill.

Because of its enmity with the Turner Group, some of these long-established companies here have proposed to stop cooperating with the Larson Group. That'll cause a huge loss to the third party's manufacturer," Vivian explained.

She had already read the news beforehand, so she knew what to say during the interview in case someone asked her that particular question.

During the past few days, a lot of workers protested in front of the Larson Group's building. That matter had a great impact on the company.
