

Stealing Your Heart Chapter 1054

He did not even dare to reveal Zong Yanxi's true identity because he could tell that Li Xiaohui was an extremely possessive and jealous woman.

He did not want to plant any other ideas into her head.

"Since she's just an ex-girlfriend, there's nothing for me to fear." She looked at Nan Cheng. "My friend gave me an idea."

"What idea?" Nan Cheng looked at Li Xiaohui's face. For some reason, he had a bad premonition.

Dragging him to the side, Li Xiaohui whispered, "Is President Jiang a good person?"

Nan Cheng was speechless.

What kind of question is this?

"Is he a responsible man?" Li Xiaohui decided to be more straightforward.

Nan Cheng understood immediately. "Of course. If he isn't a trustable and responsible man, he wouldn't be this successful. There are a lot of people who like President Jiang. If you decide to give up, I won't force you otherwise."

He explained to her, trying to use reverse psychology to give her a push.

"When did I say that I want to give up? If I want something, I will definitely get it." She pulled Nan Cheng closer to her and told him her friend's idea. "Since President Jiang is a responsible person, will he marry me if we take things to the next level?"

Nan Cheng was stunned.

This... This... This...

“Why?” Li Xiaohui raised her brows. “Didn’t you say that you’ll help me no matter what? Why are you not saying anything now?”

Nan Cheng gulped. “Well... It’s not easy to do this, right? After all, President Jiang doesn’t seem to like you now...”

Grabbing Nan Cheng’s collar, Li Xiaohui tugged him closer to her. “No matter how cold and aloof he may, I will warm him with my passion and body. The precondition for that is that you must help me.”

Nan Cheng was starting to get cold feet. Although he could create opportunities for Li Xiaohui to interact with Jiang Mohan, this was a matter of principles.

If Jiang Mohan found out, he would definitely be angry. The consequence would not be as serious if he merely got angry. Yet, if he ended up firing Nan Cheng, it would not be worth the effort.

“You’re scared.” Li Xiaohui released him. Taking one step backwards, she crossed her arms over her chest and looked at him mockingly. “What did you tell me back then? You said that you’ll help me get together with him no matter what. I’m just asking you for a little favor, but you’re unwilling to cooperate now.”

“It’s not that.” Nan Cheng frowned. “With my understanding of President Jiang, I can tell you what he likes or dislikes. You can get to interact with him slowly. However...”

“Men are all the same. There is not a single man who is not lustful. He just hasn’t discovered how charming I am yet.”

Nan Cheng looked at Li Xiaohui in surprise. She’s an heiress, but why does she speak like some promiscuous woman?

“Don’t look at me like that. Do you dare to claim that Jiang Mohan has never slept with a woman?” Li Xiaohui did not think that it was a big deal.

Nan Cheng was a loss for words.

Why didn't I know that she is such an open-minded woman?

"Why aren't you speaking?" She laughed. "Are you feeling guilty now?"

Clearing his throat, Nan Cheng replied, "I think that it's more reliable if both of you develop your relationship gradually. No relationship will last if a woman just relies on her looks and body, right? I'd rather follow my method."

"Then, tell me the probability of success if we rely on your method. How much of my time will be wasted?" She raised her voice. "Give me a time period and the probability of success!"

Nan Cheng remained silent because he was not absolutely confident.

"You can't say anything? It's because you're unconfident too, right?" Li Xiaohui revealed, seeing right through him. "I'll give you two options. First, you agree to my idea and help me. Second, we terminate our collaboration now. I'll tell Jiang Mohan that you arranged for the thugs to go to his house. I'll show him the clothes you gave me and ask if those are the designs he likes."
