Chapter 1021 | [Serenity & Zachary]

“Serenity, Liberty, you came back just in time. What’s this about? I’m telling you, the moment you left this house and this town, the house and fields belonged to us.

“My son left this house for us. The property belongs to us, so we can give it to whoever we want, but we won’t give it to you since you’re married into other families.”

Old Mrs. Hunt felt slightly guilty when she saw the sisters bringing many people over. When she was in the hospital, she had heard about how incredible Serenity had become. Now, she also knew that Serenity soared to the top and became the missus of a wealthy family.

This made Old Mrs. Hunt a little guilty. After all, she and her husband had forcibly occupied the house. Back then, taking advantage of the fact that the sisters were still underage and incapable, she even kicked them out.

Serenity was only about twelve years old when she and her sister were booted out.

After Serenity and Liberty were thrown out of the house, they would return to the town in the first few years to visit their parents’ graves. They also tried to live in their parents’ house again but were beaten and scolded by their grandparents with thick canes. The sisters were hit so hard that they did not dare return for a few years.

The two parties lost contact after that. It was not until Liberty was getting married did her grandparents receive the news and shamelessly ask the Browns for a betrothal gift of 300,000 dollars. Even so, Liberty refused and disallowed the Browns from fulfilling the request. She also shooed her grandparents away.

Following that, there was no news from their grandparents for about three more years.

When Old Mrs. Hunt fell ill, nobody wanted to pay for the medical expenses, so they remembered Serenity and Liberty. They thought the sisters were doing well, so they reconnected with them.

Old Mrs. Hunt knew they had gone too far and that the people in town could not stand them. That said, those people did not dare offend her because she was feisty, shameless, and immoral.

Now that her interests were involved, Old Mrs. Hunt unleashed her shamelessness to the fullest again.

“I’ve never seen married daughters returning to their parents’ home to fight for a house,” Old Mrs. Hunt muttered.

When she was coldly stared at by Zachary, she stopped yelling and mumbled softly instead.

She even stuck out her chest to boost her confidence. She was not afraid.

So what if Serenity’s husband was the eldest son of the richest family? Could he take her house away by force?

In any case, this was Scott’s house. Scott was Old Mrs. Hunt’s son, and it was only right for the mother to inherit her son’s property.

“Grandmom, tell me, who did my parents adopt as their son when they were still around? You were shouting that this is your grandson’s house. Which grandson of yours owns this place?”

“My sister and I have the right to inherit our parents’ house. We’ll fight for it if it’s ours and we don’t want any of it if it’s not, but we won’t yield if it belongs to us!” Serenity coldly refuted Old Mrs. Hunt.

She even glanced at the others before approaching the truck driver and ordering, “Mr. Driver, dump this truck of bricks there. There’s an open space there.”

She instructed the truck driver to dump the bricks on the empty spot to the right of the entrance, which was also her family’s place.

When Serenity and Liberty’s parents were still alive, they told the sisters to buy more housing land. The sisters would build two houses on the land when they grew up, so they could be neighbors who lived together. By having each other’s company, they could also support each other and would not be bullied by the townspeople.

“You’re not allowed to dump them here. You’re not allowed to—this is my house!”

Old Mrs. Hunt saw what was happening and immediately rushed over. She stood in the middle of the open space and spread her arms as she shouted, “Which one of you dare dump those bricks here? Crush me here if you dare!”

Zachary waved his hand.

Following that, two bodyguards walked over and held Old Mrs. Hunt on each side. They took her away.

“What are you doing? What are you doing? Let go of me!”

Old Mrs. Hunt struggled desperately.

Chapter 1022 | [Serenity & Zachary]

Unfortunately, Old Mrs. Hunt was only an old woman. She could not break free from the two bodyguards that were holding her.

When the other members of the Hunts saw what was happening, they quickly rushed over. Nonetheless, both the Yorks’ and Stones’ security teams also moved forward simultaneously to block them out, disallowing them from getting close.

“They hit me, they hit me!”

Seeing as they were outnumbered, Old Mrs. Hunt plopped to the ground as soon as her feet touched the earth. She slapped her thigh while shouting that she was being hit.

Despite that, the people in town only gathered to watch and did not get close.

Someone was also taking videos of them.

The crowd could see the truth for themselves. They saw clearly that the people brought by Serenity only carried Old Mrs. Hunt away and did not hurt her at all.

Old Mrs. Hunt was probably trying to blame the other party.

The person recording the video thought he ought to film the whole thing so when Old Mrs. Hunt and her family tried to distort the truth later on, he would release the video for everyone to see. This was so they could avoid what happened last year, where things were turned upside down and two orphans were harmed.

In actuality, Serenity knew once they were to leave town, the outrageous people in her hometown would move the building materials away. It would not matter regardless—she was only using this to kick off her fight for the house.

“Quick, call your granddad and the others.”

Old Mrs. Hunt slapped her thigh so hard that it turned red, but no one in town stood up for her. She stopped slapping her thigh and got up from the ground. While patting the mud and dust off her pants, she shouted at her grandchildren.

She asked them to call their husbands, as well as her eldest sons and grandsons to hurry home.

In their big family, Old Mrs. Hunt's eldest two grandsons were the most powerful.

Noah was in the crowd. He wanted to step forward but remembered how powerful Serenity was, so he stopped in his tracks and did not dare rush to the fore.

Besides, Serenity came prepared today. Zachary's bodyguards were all tall and fierce. They were first-class in boxing.

Mrs. Stone had also brought the most powerful bodyguards here.

“Liberty, Serenity, you're unfilial granddaughters—you're very unfilial! Everyone, come and look at my unfilial granddaughters. It's fine that they're not paying to support me now that I'm old, but now that they know I'm sick, they're hoping that I'll die soon. They came back to rob me of my house!

“Why wouldn't lightning strike my unfilial granddaughters to death?! God, open your eyes and see. I have two unfilial granddaughters here. They don't give me money, they don't support me, and they don't pay for my medical expenses when I'm sick. Now, they're snatching my house and kicking me out!

“God, please come and strike them with lightning. They're too unfilial. They deserve to die!”

Old Mrs. Hunt kept cursing.

Serenity walked over.

Old Mrs. Hunt was shocked, so she took two steps back and questioned her defensively, “W—what are you going to do? Did I say anything wrong? You're unfilial!”

Chapter 1023 | [Serenity & Zachary]

Serenity sneered, “When my parents just died 16 years ago, we got 1.2 million dollars in compensation. You and Granddad along with your children and grandchildren crowded our house to the point where we didn’t even have a place to stand.

“You forced me and my sister to hand over the money, saying that you had a share of it. It’s true that you and Granddad had a share of the money, but how much did you take?”

“Back then, in order to get more money from my parents’ insurance payout, you stated that Liberty and I don’t need to support you on behalf of our father while you’re alive, and that we don’t need to hold funerals for you when you pass. We don’t need to sustain you in life and bury you in death. It was written in black and white..

“Perhaps you’ve destroyed your copy, but the other copy is well-kept by Liberty. I believe the town committee has also kept a copy. The townspeople who were witnesses are still here today. Should we ask them to confront you?”

“Does the house belong to you? My dad’s name is still written on the title deed. You and Granddad indeed have a share of what my parents left behind, but you can’t inherit everything. Liberty and I have a share of those things too!

“As for what you said about adopting a son for my parents, did they agree to it? Has John called my parents Dad and Mom? He’s still calling his parents Dad and Mom! Did you think that by stopping us from visiting our parents’ graves and letting him pay his respect to them every year qualify him for the entirety of my parents’ inheritance?”

“In your dreams!”

Serenity added coldly, “Grandmom, go ahead and call Granddad and the others back. Liberty and I returned today for our parents’ inheritance. Call them back so we can split everything clearly!

“Again, we won’t yield if they belong to us, and we won’t fight for what doesn’t belong to us!”

“Serenity!”

Old Mrs. Hunt jumped in anger. She pointed at Serenity and cursed, “You’re daughters. What right do daughters have to inherit a family’s property? Your father was my son. Since he passed away, his family property is ours!

“Get out of here! What right do married daughters have to come back to their parents’ home to fight for their family property? Are you not ashamed of yourselves? In any case, your father is dead. Everything he left behind is mine. I’m not afraid of the people you brought. You can’t take the house away unless you beat us to our deaths!

“What agreement? What money? My son died, so his insurance payout belongs to me and my husband. You were just little girls. We showed our mercy when we gave you 200,000 dollars to live and not let you starve to death.

“I don’t remember signing any agreement. You’re extremely unfilial for not supporting me and paying for my treatments. I’m telling you, if you don’t give us money, we’ll haunt you even after we turn into ghosts!”

Old Mrs. Hunt thought of the fact that Serenity was now the missus of the richest family and had lots of money, so she denied the agreement she had signed back then. She had long been shameless anyway. She would strive to get some benefits for her grandsons first.

As long as Serenity was willing to give her money, she would let her grandsons start their own businesses.

Since Serenity’s in-laws were very rich, it would not be a problem for her to give them a few million dollars, right?

“Old Mrs. Hunt, that’s not right. Back then, everyone in town knew about and witnessed the agreement you signed with Serenity and Liberty. The Howdens were present as well. Do you think you can deny it now?”

The person who intervened was Mrs. Deli.

She was the closest to Lisa.

When Scott and Lisa passed away, Mrs. Deli sympathized with and pitied Liberty and Serenity. However, she was too weak to help them and could only watch them being shooed away.

Chapter 1024 | [Serenity & Zachary]

Now that Serenity and Liberty were capable enough to come back to reclaim their parents’ property, Mrs. Deli fully supported them.

“Yeah, it was you who said that they don’t need you to support you while you’re alive or handle your funerals when you pass. You didn’t raise them in the first place, so how could you be so shameless as to ask them for money? Your sons and grandsons benefitted so much. Why don’t you ask them for money instead?”

“Your whole family made a fortune from taking advantage of their misfortune, yet you’re bullying the orphaned girls. Your family has gone too far, so you should be struck by lightning instead. You’re old now. How many more years can you live? You’re not even afraid of going to the depths of hell after death, never to be reborn.”

Even though the people in town opined that married daughters should not return home to fight for their family property, they felt that Old Mrs. Hunt and her people were too much. They could not help but intervene.

“They’re all shameless people, to begin with. All of them are rich, live in big villas, and drive luxurious cars. John even has an annual salary of a million dollars. When Old Mrs. Hunt was sick, none of them paid for the expenses and wanted Liberty and her sister to pay instead.

“They only reap the benefits and let the sisters bear responsibility when something is wrong. Do they take the sisters as fools?”

Everyone in the Hunts' hometown knew about the scandal as a result of the trending topic last year.

Many of them learned to surf the internet to support Serenity and her sister online. They exposed the cruelty and shamelessness of Old Mrs. Hunt and her family!

Later, after learning that John and the others lost their jobs due to the backfire of the trending topic, the people in town felt that it was karma.

"Busybodies!" Liberty said loudly, "The townspeople aren't being busybodies. They're righteous and are telling the truth!"

Zachary silently stood by Serenity's side and quietly supported her without saying a word. Nonetheless, when he coldly stared at the Hunts with his sharp gaze, those people who usually rampaged in town felt guilty and did not dare talk too much.

Old Mrs. Hunt was the only one who was taking advantage of her seniority, so she continued to make desperate struggles and yelled about.

Her feistiness was useless against Serenity and the others.

Mrs. Stone came forward and stood next to Serenity and her sister. Her gaze was cold as well. She had helped her husband manage Stone Group when she was young. Now, her strong legacy remained in Wiltspoon's business world.

When she pulled a long face and deepened her gaze, her domineering aura was released.

"You can get a share of Scott's inheritance, but as in-laws, you have no rights to Lisa's inheritance. I'm Lisa's elder sister. She was originally a Fisher but was adopted by the Howdens after some twists and turns, then she became the daughter-in-law of the Hunts."

It was so unfortunate that Mrs. Stone's sister married into the Hunt family!

Given how biased and shameless Lisa's in-laws were, Mrs. Stone wondered how much injustice she had suffered when she was still alive.

Particularly, Lisa and Scott only gave birth to two daughters during those days when strict family planning and the patriarchal mindset were still reigning. Mrs. Stone could imagine her sister had had a hard time with the Hunts.

"I've been looking for Lisa for decades. Now that I finally had news of her, I didn't think that... This house was built after my sister and her husband after their marriage, so it's considered their joint property. You can only take a portion from the half of the property that belonged to your son, and you can't touch the half that belonged to my sister!"

Chapter 1025 | [Serenity & Zachary]

Mrs. Stone continued, "I came here today not to quarrel with you. I'm just here to accompany my nieces, and I also want to see the place my sister used to live. By the way, there'll be less trouble if you move out voluntarily. If you don't, we'll sue you for the forced occupation of someone's property."

“We’ll get the house back even if we have to go to court. When the time comes, we’ll let the court rule how the property is going to be split! Don’t you dream about occupying what belongs to my nieces. Similarly, they won’t take what doesn’t belong to them.”

The people from the Hunts’ hometown exchanged looks. It turned out that Lisa’s sister had found Serenity and Liberty.

The Hunts knew that Mrs. Stone was Serenity’s aunt, but of course, they would not spread this news in town.

For the Hunts, it was bad for them that Lisa’s sister recognized Serenity and her sister. Was John not a senior executive of a subsidiary of Stone Group?

It was said that John had lost his job because he offended the Stones’ precious daughter. He was fired from the company where he was earning an annual salary of a million dollars.

Since then, John had not been able to find a job.

Furthermore, it was also said that John wanted to go to York Corporation. He thought he was capable and had come from Stone Group, so he would join York Corporation to suppress Stone Group. Little did they know that the head of York Corporation was Serenity’s husband.

After hearing the gossip, the people in town thought that it was time for the Hunts to have bad luck and pay up. They had taken advantage of Scott and Lisa’s misfortune for such a long time.

Now that Lisa’s maiden family was finally here, the Hunts would not have a good time.

As long as Lisa’s sister asked around in town, she would know how the Hunts used to bully Lisa together.

Old Mr and Mrs. Hunt had six children-four sons and two daughters. They disliked Scott the most, but he was the most filial one of them all. Whenever they were in discomfort, he was always the one who took them to see a doctor. He spent money and put in effort for them.

Lisa was also filial as a daughter-in-law, but the old couple disliked her for not giving birth to a son. They despised her, bullied her, and even forced Scott to divorce her.

Scott could not bear to divorce Lisa, nor could he let go of his daughters.

It did not matter to him whether his children were male or female-he would love them the same.

Old Mrs. Hunt shouted, “My son’s house is mine!”

“Just because you say you’re Lisa’s sister, that’s it? Did Lisa admit it? Don’t think I’ll be afraid of you just because you’re rich and powerful. I’m not afraid!”

Old Mrs. Hunt pointed at Serenity and her sister and scolded them again, “You unfilial granddaughters are really trying to infuriate me to my death. I’m telling you, as long as I live, don’t even think about building a house on my property!”

“Serenity, you’re so rich now, and yet you’re back to fight for the house. You’re simply rich but unkind. Your cousins lost their jobs due to your revenge, and they can’t carry on their businesses anymore. Despite that, you’re still not satisfied and want to take the house away. Can you be less shameless?”

Old Mrs. Hunt grew furious as she spoke. She even wanted to hit Serenity.

Zachary’s face darkened.

The Yorks’ bodyguards were ready to make a move. Noah suddenly jumped out and rushed forward to hug his grandmother.

“Grandmom, Grandmom, say all you want, but don’t hit them! Don’t hit them!”

Serenity alone could take all of them down, much less Mr. York who was present with his bodyguards.

Even if Noah faced her with his cousins, they would not be her match, let alone his aunt, his mother, and the others.

The women were good at arguing and would not be defeated in fights against ordinary people, but they would be courting death if they fought someone like Serenity, who had learned martial arts!

Noah, who had suffered losses from Serenity twice, was still afraid of her.

“Grandmom, you have no idea. Serenity is very skillful. I once brought a group of gangsters to give her some trouble, but they were all beaten up by her. On the other hand, she was unharmed.”

Old Mrs. Hunt was speechless.

Chapter 1026 | [Serenity & Zachary]

It was last year.

Old Mrs. Hunt’s little grandson brought a group of people to stop Serenity’s car because she refused to pay for the medical bill. They wanted to teach her a lesson but ended up being badly beaten by her. The little grandson was even sent to the police station to be detained for fifteen days.

On the other hand, nothing happened to Serenity.

It was Serenity who had beaten them up.

However, the people at the police station said that it was justifiable self-defense.

Old Mrs. Hunt was heartbroken when she learned that her little grandson was beaten up by Serenity and detained. She hated Serenity terribly.

“Mom, let’s wait for Dad to come back.”

“Grandmom, stay calm, stay calm.”

The others also persuaded Old Mrs. Hunt.

They were unreasonable, to begin with.

Old Mrs. Hunt was rude and unreasonable, but it was useless against Mr. Zachary, Mrs. Stone, and the rest who had power and status.

Mrs. Stone had said that she would go to court for this.

Perhaps Old Mrs. Hunt did not know the law, but the others in her family did.

Once a lawsuit was engaged, they would not have a chance to win. Old Mr. and Mrs. Hunt would be able to get a share of Scott's inheritance, but they would not be able to have full possession of the house.

If Old Mrs. Hunt was to make a move and Serenity pursued the matter, she would even have to compensate Serenity for it.

Serenity would not be gentle on them at all, let alone let them off for old times' sake.

After all, they often bullied Serenity in the past.

Liberty lived in school once she was in junior high, whereas Serenity stayed with her parents and went to elementary school. Their cousins often went after Serenity to bully her.

When Lisa was still alive, she also quarreled a lot with her sisters-in-law to stand up for her daughter.

"Serenity, Grandmom is old and doesn't know anything, so she speaks impulsively. Please don't quarrel with her. It's rare for you to come home, so why don't you swing by my place and have some coffee?" Seeing as he managed to persuade his grandmom, Noah smiled flatteringly at Serenity and invited her to his place

"Liberty, Serenity, no matter what, we're a family. Your parents aren't around anymore, but since you're back, treat our home as yours. Come, let's go to your uncle's house. You haven't eaten breakfast since you came so early, right? Should I make something for you?"

Stuart's wife saw that Noah wanted to invite Serenity and Liberty to his place and did not want to lag behind. She also softened her tone and smiled as she invited the sisters to her place instead.

Serenity and her sister had strong backing now, so they would not be able to gain anything if they fought fire with fire.

Since they could not do it the hard way, they would take a softer approach, as long as they calmed Serenity down for the time being.

After Harriet finished her plastic surgery and imitated Serenity's speech and behavior, they would move on to the next step by making Harriet replace Serenity officially.

That way, their whole family would be able to follow Harriet to live a good life with the richest family.

The thought of the Yorks being such a family made the Hunts envious. They wished they were younger so that they could compete with Serenity.

Chapter 1027 | [Serenity & Zachary]

Old Mrs. Hunt saw that her daughters-in-law and grandchildren were inviting Serenity to their houses.

Plus, she had been making a scene for so long, but instead of gaining anything, she became a joke to the people in her hometown.

She decided to ease her expression and said, "Liberty, Serenity, your aunt is right. At the end of the day, we're a family. If anything, let's sit down and talk.

"I don't want to argue with you anymore We'll wait for your granddad and the others to come back so they can talk to you. No matter what, this house is mine."

Serenity sneered, "I don't want to argue or fight with you as well, Grandmom. Let's meet in court."

Going to court was to determine their shares of the inheritance. In Audrey's words, this house was a joint property of her parents after their marriage-half belonged to her mother while the other half to her father

This house covered an area of 1,100 square feet. Half of it belonged to their mother whereas the other half belonged to their father was to be equally shared among the sisters and the two elders, meaning the two elders combined could only get 275 square feet of the house.

As for Lisa's share, if the Howdens, her adoptive parents, relinquished their rights, then it would belong to the sisters and have nothing to do with Old Mr. and Mrs. Hunt.

I don't need your hospitality either. This is our house, and I'm going back to my house."

As Serenity spoke, she took Zachary's hand and led him into the house her parents had worked hard to build back then.

This was her home.

She was young in the past and could not protect the property her parents left behind. As a result, her grandparents forcibly occupied it and shooed her and her sister away.

Standing in front of the house, Serenity looked at everything inside. Many things were still what her parents had bought when they were still around. Old Mr. and Mrs. Hunt lived here, but they were too lazy to spend money to replace the items.

Liberty brought Mrs. Stone and Elisa into the house.

Old Mrs. Hunt wanted to stop them but was stopped by Noah.

Noah pulled her grandmom, far away from everyone, before saying to her, "Grandmom, Serenity is very powerful. She knows kickboxing. Don't mess with her anymore. She doesn't buy this.

"Those people she brought aren't to be messed with either. Grandmom, let them go in and take a look. The house is right there, and they can't carry it away now. Let's discuss this when Granddad, Mike, and John are back."

Old Mrs. Hunt said hatefully, "It has been so many years. Why didn't the two girls die outside? Now, they're back to fight for their family property Daughters who are married off are no longer members of the family. How can they have a share of it? If they're so capable, go and fight for their in-laws' family property."

She and her daughters-in-law had never returned to their parents' homes to fight for the family's property.

How dare Liberty and her sister come back to fight for theirs?

If the sisters took the house away, how shameful would Old Mrs. Hunt be? She would not dare go out and meet people in the future.

Noah did not study well, so he quit school and did nothing at home at the moment. Even so, he more or less knew some of the law. He said, "Grandmom, if Serenity takes this to court, even for you and Granddad together, your share of this house wouldn't be as much as theirs. As for the half of the inheritance that belonged to Aunt Lisa, you're not entitled to it.

"Also, John only verbally said that he wanted to be adopted into Uncle Scott's family as a son to inherit the family line, but the formalities weren't done. Besides, John is still living with Uncle Chris and calls him Dad. His adoption into Uncle Scott's family is invalid.

"If you want to give Uncle Scott's inheritance to John, you have to wait for Uncle Chris to pass away. Even then, John wouldn't be able to inherit everything. My dad, my aunts, and we will also have a share of it." Old Mrs. Hunt was dazed after listening to everything.

Chapter 1028 | [Serenity & Zachary]

"We won't be able to win the lawsuit?"

Old Mrs. Hunt continued. "This house was built by your Uncle Scott, and I'm his mother, but I still can't inherit it?"

"You can, but you can't inherit it completely. Just like what I just told you, you can only inherit a quarter of Uncle Scott's share. It's the same for Granddad.

Noah was only patiently explaining everything to his grandmom because he was afraid she would clash with Serenity again.

"I don't care. In any case, your granddad and I live in this house. It belongs to us, and we can give it to whomever we want. Am I going to be arrested if we lose the lawsuit?"

Noah scared his grandmom, "If the law is enforced, you and Granddad will be evicted from the house. If you cause trouble, you'll be arrested and given free meals like how I was detained last time. Grandmom, it's scary to be detained. It's better not to break the law."

He was traumatized after being detained for fifteen days. He did not have the guts to do anything harmful again.

"But Serenity and Liberty are daughters. Can daughters inherit the family property too?"

"According to inheritance law, daughters also have the right to inherit."

“Why aren’t those d*mn girls dead? If they had died earlier, they wouldn’t come back to fight for the family property with me.”

Old Mrs. Hunt did not know the law, but after his grandson’s explanation, she realized that she and her husband could not take much advantage of the situation. She also could not make the call to give all of Scott’s family assets to John. Old Mrs. Hunt could not help but curse at Serenity and her sister for shamelessly returning to their parents’ home to fight for the family property.

Serenity did not care about the people outside. She took Zachary to visit her family’s house. It was built nearly 20 years ago and had long become an old house. Nevertheless, this was still her home and roots.

Standing at the door of a room full of clutter, Serenity said to Zachary, “This room belonged to Liberty and me. I was timid when I was a child and didn’t dare to sleep in a room by myself, so I slept with my sister.

“I was also a messy sleeper, always pushing my sister such that she had nowhere to sleep. Once, she even fell off and went under the end. She woke up and felt the sand on the ground, so she called our mom and said there was a lot of sand on the bed.

“When she got up and turned on the light, she realized that she had slept on the floor. She fell off after being pushed by me.”

Serenity smiled as she talked about her embarrassing story as a child, but her eyes eventually turned red.

The house was still here, but their parents were no longer around.

Back then, Serenity would call out to her mom when she came home from school. Her mother would definitely answer her.

One would still have a place to return to if one’s parents were still alive, but one would only be left with the way home if one’s parents were gone.

“I still remember that it was raining when my sister and I were kicked out of the house. They didn’t even let us take umbrellas. We were drenched in the rain, crying while looking back. They were so cruel that they closed the door and locked it.

“At that time, I didn’t understand why we couldn’t live in the house my parents built-our house.

“It was very hard for me when I lost my parents. I kept dreaming about them in my sleep, but they went far away when I called out to them... Why did Granddad and Grandmom do that to my sister and me?”

Chapter 1029 | [Serenity & Zachary]

Thinking about the past. it was hard for not only Serenity and her sister, but also Mrs. Stone and Elisa.

Mrs Stones eyes had long been teary

Perhaps everything could have changed if she had found her sister earlier

Even if she could not change her sister’s death, she could at least protect her two nieces.

Her nieces would not have to suffer from the heartlessness of their relatives after the sudden loss of their parents. They would not have to experience the fickleness and darkness of human nature

Zachary felt sorry for Serenity and embraced her “It’s all in the past, it’s all in the past.

He had experienced and gone through the trending topic on Twitter last year together with Serenity

Serenity posted her sister’s diary on Twitter to refute what the Hunts claimed, and then the public opinion was reversed Zachary read his sister-in-law’s diary, but he only dared read it once and not a second time

Reading it once was enough to make him feel incredibly sorry for his wife

Zachary was not an emotional person, but his eyes were teary after he read his sister-in-law’s diary

Sometimes, our loved ones were heartless people who would hurt us the most.

There was some truth to that statement.

Serenity and her sister were hurt the most by their relatives.

Elisa took out two small packets of tissues from her bag. She handed one of them to Zachary

Zachary took it and thanked her

Serenity had her husband take care of her as Zachary would help her wipe her tears with tissues. Mrs. Stone and Liberty also received tissue papers from Elisa. Mrs. Stone saw that her little niece had someone to rely on during her toughest time.

On the other hand, Liberty was alone after her divorce. Mrs. Stone was thinking of finding a good man for her once they returned to the city. She wanted Liberty to get married again so that she would also have a companion and someone to rely on.

Since Liberty’s first marriage was not good, she needed to be more cautious about her second marriage

“Seren, that’s enough. You’re making me cry.”

Liberty wiped her tears and reminded her sister to stop talking about the past. Though, she could not help but think about the past too now that they returned.

Mrs. Stone wiped her tears and said, “I want to hear interesting things and stories about your mom. “Seren, your youngest cousin is probably an easy target. Go find him while your granddad isn’t here yet. Ask him where your parents’ graves have been moved to and take us to visit them.”

Mrs. Stone was extremely observant.

She noticed Noah muttering a lot to Old Mrs. Hunt just now. After that, Old Mrs. Hunt stopped her outburst. Furthermore, Noah was the youngest and was not so scheming, so he was easy to be targeted. Serenity hummed.

She turned around and was about to leave

“I will go with you.”

Zachary walked out of the house with Serenity.

Old Mrs Hunt and the others had not left and were still gathering in the open space in front of the house. She and the others looked grave when they looked at the piles of bricks, sand, and gravel.

Someone who knew the law must have talked to Old Mrs. Hunt about it.

Serenity and Liberty were back to fight for the house. This would not concern Old Mrs. Hunt's first and fourth children. After all, she and her husband had long said that Scott's family property would be inherited by John. The other children could not do anything even though they felt that their parents were biased. After all, John was the most promising child and pleased their parents the most.

John's family felt the same as Old Mrs. Hunt. They felt as if their flesh was being cut off now that Serenity and her sister were going to get a share of Scott's family property.

Chapter 1030 | [Serenity & Zachary]

Serenity's second aunt asked Old Mrs. Hunt, “Is the land use permit with you? You should've gone to transfer the house to your names back then.”

If the house was under the elders' names, even if it was built by Scott and Lisa, it could be said to be a display of filial respect for the elders.

Old Mrs Hunt said, “Back then, your dad and i couldn't find their household registration permit and land use permit. We didn't know these as well, so we thought it wouldn't matter if we don't have the permits. We're living in the house, so who would dare evict us?”

Noah saw Zachary coming out with Serenity. His scalp could not help but tighten.

He was afraid of his cousin.

“Noah, come here,” Serenity called out.

‘She's calling for me?’

Noah was startled for a while before he ran over like a lapdog. He smiled and asked flatteringly, “Serenity, what's the matter?”

“Where were my parents' graves moved to? You know, right?”

Noah was stunned. He wanted to deny it but was instantly frightened by Serenity and her husband's glares. He answered honestly, “I know. They were moved to the woodland at the foot of the mountain in Walford Ridge. The grave without a monument is Aunt Lisa's, and the one with a monument is Uncle Scott's. You can find them easily once you're there.”

“Serenity, I’m secretly telling you this, so please don’t say that I told you, Granddad doesn’t let us tell anyone. John usually goes to visit Uncle Scott’s grave by himself every year. As the youngest child, I kept making a fuss about wanting to tag along and managed to follow him a few times, which is why I know where they are.”

Serenity now knew where her parents’ graves were. However, once they left town, these outrageous people might move them again. Hence, she said to Noah, “You have to keep this a secret too. Don’t tell them what I asked you.”

She pointed at the building materials on the ground and said, “When I’m not here, you’re responsible for helping me watch the piles of sand, gravel, and bricks. If I come back the next time and see that they’re gone, I’ll hold you responsible, and you’ll have to compensate me for them.”

Noah was speechless.

He did not want such a responsibility.

“That’s all. You can go.”

Noah responded to Serenity and then walked away.

As soon as he walked away, Old Mrs. Hunt and the others surrounded him to ask what he and Serenity were talking about.

Noah honestly said that Serenity asked him to watch the piles of sand, gravel, and bricks. Old Mrs. Hunt was so ferocious that she cursed again, but she did not dare scold Serenity in her face. She cursed from a distance away as she was quite afraid of Zachary

Zachary let’s go buy some flowers in town. We’ll give them to my parents when we visit their graves late: *

Serenity and Liberty had not been able to visit their parents’ resting place for a long time.

“Alright, try not to let the others know when we go. Since we don’t live here, once we leave, they’ll immediately relocate your parents’ graves again. Seeing how vicious and ruthless they are, I’m sure they’re capable of doing that.”

“know”

Serenity turned to her sister and others to tell them the plan.

With that, they stayed in the old house for a while then came out. Afterward, they went to Mrs. Deli and the mayor’s houses for a while then left in their cars.

Everyone thought Serenity and her entourage were returning to the city. They did not know that they were only buying flowers in town.

On the way, Serenity discussed with her sister, “Liberty, let’s go to the cemetery to buy a burial ground for Mom and Dad We’ll relocate their graves to the cemetery. For one, it’ll be convenient for us to pay our respects. Secondly, we won’t need to worry about their graves being moved anymore.”

Someone would be keeping watch in the cemetery.
