Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1709 -“Duncan.” Mrs. Lewis called out.

She was the one who asked Liberty to take care of her son, but she always let Liberty stand outside, she felt sorry for Liberty.

Duncan closed his eyes, as if he didn't want to talk.

Mrs. Lewis was helpless.

Seeing the cold sweat on her son's forehead, she felt distressed again, and took a tissue to gently wipe the cold sweat off her son.

Mrs. Lewis: “Duncan, Mom knows you still like Liberty very much, why are you bothering?”

Duncan still closed his eyes and did not speak.

Treating Liberty like this made him feel sadder than anyone else, the pain was like someone had cut his heart with a knife.

But, now that he was like this, he didn't want Liberty to see him.

When his limbs were healthy, Liberty didn't even fall in love with him.

Now that he had lost his legs, Liberty would not fall in love with him, but would sympathize with him.

Seeing that her son didn't want to talk, Mrs. Lewis didn't say anything and stopped talking.

After a moment of silence, Mrs. Lewis got up and walked out.

She gently opened the door of the ward, and saw Liberty standing at the door.

“Mrs. Lewis, is Mr. Lewis okay?”

Liberty could hear the movement in the ward standing at the door.

Mrs. Lewis closed the door of the ward again. She pulled Liberty to a chair and sat down. She sighed and said, “Liberty, don't argue with him. He is now...he's fine. We carried him back to the bed after he fell off the bed and out of it.”

Alas!

Duncan's legs were seriously injured, and if he fell off the bed, his legs would hurt even more.

When Liberty thought of that scene, her heart ached a little.

Liberty: "Mrs. Lewis, I'll go in and have a look at him."

Mrs. Lewis pulled Liberty back, "He doesn't want to see you. If you go in, he will fall off the bed again when he gets agitated."

Liberty said firmly, "If he fell off the bed, and I cushioned him."

Mrs. Lewis let go of her hand.

Liberty carried the insulated lunch box and walked back to the door of the ward. Two bodyguards immediately blocked her with their hands. One of the bodyguards said embarrassingly: "Ms. Liberty, our Fourth Young Master doesn't want to see you, please come back."

"Get out of the way, both of you." Mrs. Lewis came over, and stretched out her hand to push the two bodyguards. The bodyguards didn't dare to fight Mrs. Lewis, so they probably wanted to let the water go. In short, Liberty went in.

When Mr. Lewis saw Liberty coming in, he opened his mouth, but in the end he didn't speak, and walked out of the ward silently.

Duncan on the bed still had his eyes closed tightly. In fact, he was not asleep. He just pretended to be asleep to avoid his parents, and he didn't want to see them feel distressed.

Liberty saw Duncan on the day when the incident happened, and after Duncan knew about her injury, he refused to see her.

She hadn't seen him for ten days.

Duncan was currently lying on the bed; his face was pale, a cold sweat was still forming on his forehead, he had significantly lost weight, his beard was untrimmed, and his mouth was covered in stubble.

Liberty walked over gently and put the insulated lunch box on the bedside counter. She sat down on the edge of the bed and pulled out a tissue, just to wipe the sweat off Duncan's forehead.

Duncan suddenly opened his eyes. He felt a different breath.

Seeing Liberty sitting by the bed, she was holding a tissue in her hand, as if she wanted to wipe his sweat off, but when he opened his eyes, her movements froze.

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1710 -Duncan was extremely indifferent on the surface, lost his temper, and didn't want to see Liberty, but when he really saw her, his eyes He became greedy, locked Liberty's facial features tightly, and wanted to imprint her image deep in his heart.

Opening his mouth, he wanted to say something, but found that his throat was a little blocked, and he couldn't say a word.

He was dreaming.

He said he couldn't see Liberty, and his parents wouldn't let Liberty in.

He must be dreaming.

Duncan closed his eyes again.

When the soft tissue touched his skin, Duncan opened his eyes again.

He was not dreaming.

It's really Liberty!

She actually came in!

Who let her in?

Duncan's eyes were cold, his expression was indifferent, and he raised his hand suddenly, slapped Liberty's hand away roughly, and asked coldly: "Who let you in? I don't want to see you, you get out! Are you still not satisfied that I have been hurt like this? Go, go, go, I don't want to see you!"

Liberty calmly withdrew his hand to wipe his sweat, and said calmly: "Your mom came back to me and offered a job of $10,000 per day, which is a lot of money, to take care of you for a month. Since I have received the money, I will take care of you. Even if you don't want to see me, there is nothing you can do. Close your eyes, if you close your eyes, you won't be able to see me." Liberty threw away the tissue and said, "You haven't even eaten lunch, are you hungry? I boiled some bone soup for you, and it's still warm. Do you drink it yourself, or should I feed you?"

Duncan stared at her.

"Also, Mr. Lewis, it's not me who caused you, but you who was driving too fast. You have to bear the consequences for your own mistakes. Sonny knows this. From now on, drive as you please. Don't think you're flying a plane."

When Liberty was talking, she got up and searched in the drawer of the bedside table, looking for a bowl for Duncan to drink.

Duncan: "..."

"What are you looking for? Do you want to steal something?" Duncan asked with a black face.

"I want to steal a bowl for you to drink soup. Can I steal a bowl?"

Duncan: "..."

He had broken the bowl.

Liberty didn't find a bowl, so she said, "Then I can only let you drink soup from the insulated lunch box."

"I won't drink, and I'm not hungry, so get out! Get out!" Duncan roared. He still wanted to sit up, but he pulled his legs and the pain made him give up.

Seeing that Liberty was unmoved, he pulled his own pillow, and then threw it at Liberty.

Liberty easily caught the pillow he threw at her, put it on the bed of a family member beside him, and said, "Mr. Lewis, I told you just now that Mrs. Lewis spent a lot of money to hire me to take care of you, Mrs. Lewis has already paid a high salary to me, and the money is in my pocket, and I am reluctant to spit it out. I can only continue to take care of you."

Duncan: "...I will give you $600,000, and you go out and I don't need you to take care of me!"

Duncan had already guessed that his mother would look for Liberty, so he kept acting like he blamed Liberty, but who knew that his mother still went to find Liberty.

His mother also spent a lot of money to ask Liberty to take care of him.

“Is this the heaven’s pie? Is there such a good thing? But I have always been down-to-earth and don’t believe in the sky’s pie. I’d better take care of Mr. Lewis honestly with the $10,000 salary per dar that Mrs. Lewis gave me.”

Duncan patted the bed, “Liberty, get out, get out! I don’t want to see you! Dad, Mom, come in and drag her out!”
