

Read Novel Married At First Sight Chapter 1805

Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1805 -Hayden stopped, turned her head to look at the handsome face close at hand, met his smiling eyes. For a moment, she thought that Kevin knew that she was originally a red makeup.

On second thought, it seemed impossible.

No one in Jensburg knew that she was a woman. She had disguised herself as a man for more than 20 years, and she was very experienced. No one could know her true identity unless she took off her pants.

Kevin had been to Jensburg several times and had been in contact with Hayden many times, but the contact time was not long, so it was impossible for him to know Hayden's identity as a woman.

Hayden: "Mr. York, are you interested in men? If you bring a man home, will the elders in your family accept it?"

Kevin got so close, Hayden remained calm and composed.

Kevin praised her for her concentration in his heart, she deserved to be the young owner of the Queen Enterprise.

Kevin: "I'm not interested in men. If I really bring a man home, the elders may not be able to accept it for a while. After a long time, they will still be able to accept it. They said, as long as we juniors are happy."

Hayden smiled, "Your parents are really enlightened."

She continued to walk forward, saying as she walked, "I'm not interested in homos*xuality either."

She only said that she was not interested in homos*xuality, not that she was not interested in men.

Kevin: "The elders of my York family are famous for being open-minded, Mr. Queen, then it's settled, we two help each other lead the red line."

Hayden: "..."

Kevin still took her seriously.

Hayden also smiled, and didn't continue on this topic.

It's impossible for Kevin to stay in Jensburg all the time. If he asked about holding the red line, Hayden could just find an excuse to turn him down.

After Hayden accompanied Kevin to wander around the yard, a maid came over and said dinner was ready.

The two returned to the house together.

Mrs. Queen watched the two people come in side by side. Her daughter was on par with Kevin in terms of height and aura.

Kevin didn't know what to say to her daughter, his face was full of smiles, but her daughter was very serious with a straight face, and never responded to Kevin with her mouth.

Mrs. Queen sighed in her heart. How could such a good daughter be raised like this?

Her daughter didn't know how to chat, even her own mother often chats with her daughter to death.

If her daughter is like her, she should find a man who can talk. Otherwise, the two of them would just stare at each other all day, and they wouldn't be liked at home if they didn't say anything.

Thinking of this, Mrs. Queen suddenly felt that Kevin was very suitable for her selection of son-in-law.

Kevin was the York family's third young master. He was in charge of the York Corporation's catering industry. He was very good at what he did. Almost the same age as Hayden, he was. If he could talk well, he was the best choice for Hayden.

Mrs. Queen, who thought like this, liked Kevin even more.

During the meal, Mrs. Queen kept asking Kevin to bring food to eat, and sometimes she would bring food to Kevin herself.

Even Donald helped Kevin pick up vegetables from time to time, and the two ate and drank while bragging.

Hayden ate her meal silently, seeing how well her parents treated Kevin, she felt that she was picked up, and Kevin was born to her parents.

Her parents were kind to Kevin, and she accepted everything, but after eating a meal and drinking a few glasses of wine, Hayden felt that Kevin had become a godson in the eyes of her parents.

Her father even put his arms around Kevin's shoulders and called him brother.

Donald: "Come on, buddy, let's have another drink."

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-