Married at First Sight Chapter 1917-Hayden didn't speak. She walked to her car.

Hugh signaled to the secretary not to follow and he followed his sister to the car.

Soon, Hayden got into the car, and Hugh squeezed into her sister's luxury car. The driver looked at the second young master, and silently started the engine to start the car.

Hugh: "Brother, I asked Kevin just now, and he also admitted that he used you to escape the marriage urging of his elders."

Hayden looked at his younger brother coldly, "Do you believe what he said?"

After choking, Hugh said: "According to my investigation of him and the information we have, I believe him. If I don't believe him, is he really gay? Afterwards, he will openly pursue you."

Now it was Hayden's turn to be at a loss for words. She didn't believe that Kevin was just using her to create a topic, but she didn't believe that Kevin was really gay. If he liked men, there were many young talents in Wiltspoon. He already had someone he liked, and he still needed to go to Jensburg to pester her?

If neither, what was Kevin's motivation?

Hayden's car drove out of the company.

The large sea offlowers had long been cleaned up.

The onlookers were also gradually dispersed.

But Kevin hadn't left yet. he leaned against his car, put his hands in his trouser pockets, watched Hayden's special car drive out, and waved at Hayden in the car, as if he said something, Hayden didn't look sideways, her face was expressionless, and he couldn't hear what she was saying.

The driver knew that the young master Queen hated the third young master of the York family now, so the speed was very fast, and he threw Kevin behind the car in no time.

After a long time, Hayden ordered his younger brother in a low voice: "Hugh, go to Wiltspoon and find out who is Kevin's fiancée?"

Hugh's black eyes flickered, and he looked at his sister.

Hayden pursed her lips tightly.

Hugh: "Brother, you are thinking too much, that is absolutely impossible."

Hugh understood her sister's deep meaning, and comforted her with a smile, "How is this possible! Brother, you rarely go to Wiltspoon, that is when Mr. Bucham got married."

"Brother forget it, Old Mrs. York gave Kevin the photo at the beginning of the year, when was the first time you saw Old Mrs. York?"

Hayden recalled the first time she met. The time of the old lady of the York family and the time when Kevin received the photo from his grandma did not match.

Could it be that she was overthinking?

Even thinking about it, it was impossible.

She had been disguised as a man for more than 20 years, not a year or two. She had been dressing up since she was a child, and there were not many insiders. She had met Old Mrs. York two or three times in total. It was impossible to see through her identity as a woman in just two or three chances to meet.

But she always felt something was wrong.

Was it true that Kevin was using her as his younger brother said?

Hayden: "He needs to create such a topic, and he doesn't have to travel thousands of miles to Jensburg, let alone choose me. I don't know him well. If he does this, the elders in his family will not believe him."

Hugh: "Okay, brother, I'll help you find out, but I may not be able to find out. Old Mrs. York gave the photo to Kevin, but Kevin didn't say it, and the outside world doesn't know who his fiancée is?"
