Married at First Sight Chapter 2057-Because Camryn couldn't see it. She recognized people by their smell, voice, and footsteps.

But these characteristics were easy to be imitated, and if she was a little careless, she would fall into the trap.

This time, she almost fell for the trick. When she followed the other party into the car, she smelled the smell of tobacco in the car, and then realized that the person talking to her was not Callum.

Callum seldom smoked, and there was no smell of tobacco in his car.

"Yes, he pretended to be you. His voice, footsteps, and even the smell on his body were very similar to you. I think he must be secretly watching our every move, and then delicately imitated you. As for your body Smell, You occasionally wear men's perfume, as long as you are asked about the brand of perfume you use, it is easy to solve the problem of smell."

Callum said: "Your two aunts must have arranged the plan behind the scenes. People from the two of them are often active near your flower shop."

With that said, he went around to Camryn's back, hugged her from behind, and said in a low voice, "Camryn, will you listen to me from now on? Let the bodyguards follow you until your eyesight recovers. I don't want to happen it a second time."

"Even if you find out that something is wrong later, but you can't see it, it is very difficult to escape. Today, my sister-in-law happened to go to the company and met her. Fortunately, she was able to use fists and kicks to save you. Otherwise, you would be taken into the car by them. The bodyguards noticed something was wrong, they reacted slowly, and it was difficult to rescue you."

After releasing her, Callum massaged her again to relieve the pain in the back of her neck.

Callum: "By the way, there is prescribed oil in your room, I'll rub some prescribed oil for you."

Camryn: "No, it won't hurt after a while."

"Today is very dangerous. If it weren't for the smell of tobacco in their car, I would have been tricked by them. The bodyguards you arranged would not suspect anything when they saw that I boarded the car voluntarily. The consequences are indeed disastrous." Camryn could imagine the consequences.

She couldn't see.

If it fell into the wrong hands, it was very likely to be defiled.

At that time, she didn't even know who the villain was.

If this matter was arranged by her two oldest aunts, they just wanted to ruin her. If she lost her innocence, would she have a future with Callum?

Callum wouldn't despise her, she couldn't even pass her own level.

"In the future, I will listen to you."

Camryn was afraid when she thought about it, and she knew how worried Callum was.

Callum bent down, kissed her on the cheek, and said, "If they dare to attack you, I will not let them go."

Camryn: "There must be a reason. They are r*scals. Even if they know that they often hang around my flower shop, there is no evidence to prove that they did it. They can quibble."

Callum: "Don't worry about this, I will definitely investigate clearly, and only then will I take action if the evidence is solid."

His voice became low and cold, and he said: "Originally, they are your aunts and cousins. Although the relationship has become strained, for your sake, I don't think much of them. But if they really dare to attack you, I won't let them go."

"Now, it's impossible to send them in." Camryn said softly, "With evidence, at most it is a warning to them."

Callum's eyes were cold, "As long as I want to move them, there are plenty of ways, you don't have to worry about this matter, I will deal with it."

He would make the Chandler family and the Joyner family pay a heavy price, and would not be able to stay in Wiltspoon.

"The two bodyguards, don't blame them. I underestimated the enemy in this matter, so I can't blame them." Camryn also interceded for the two bodyguards who secretly protected her, fearing that Callum would punish them.

Callum: "You don't want me to punish them, and you will listen to me in terms of safety in the future."

Camryn: "...and even threats."
