The Ex-Husband's Revenge Chapter 104

"I haven't let you down, Miss Young. After some hard work and persistence, the Westpraise Group finally made a concession. They agreed to our profit reduction of five percent, and their general manager has already signed the contract. It will take effect immediately as long as you sign it!" Michael smiled proudly and presented the document in his hand to Iris.

It was none other than a contract with the Westpraise Group.

"Amazing! I didn't expect Mister Duvall to negotiate this so quickly. He lives up to his reputation as a professional sales talent and the pillar of our company's future!"

"Indeed. Mister Duvall is very capable, so much so that the general manager of the Westpraise Group is willing to sign it in advance. This isn't something any random person could achieve!"

The company's executives poured praise on Michael and gave him their stamp of approval.

"You did well, Mister Duvall. Thank you for your hard work." Iris nodded in affirmation of Michael's ability.

My success is in no small part due to you as well, Miss Young. Your vision and wisdom are what
