The Ex-Husband's Revenge Chapter 42

"What do you think of my mother's condition, Mister Wolf?" Lily asked nervously.

"It's a little complicated, and not that easy for me to try and explain. Fortunately, however, the issue at hand is only a minor problem of inflammation. I believe she'll regain her health if I give her some pressure point treatment and have her consume some herbal medication for the next couple of days," Leon comforted with a smile.

The treatment that Serena previously received was conducive to her spinal cord recovery, and it was almost fully healed. It was the subsequent complications that made the situation a little trickier.

Those complications posed no serious problem should they be treated in time, but there would be grave consequences if allowed to fester. At best, she would be paralyzed. At worse, her life would be at risk.

"You can cure her? That's great news!" Lily was overjoyed.

She originally intended to just give things a try without placing too high a hope on Leon's medical skills, so it came as a surprise to her when Leon said that it could be cured.
