The Ex-Husband's Revenge Chapter 64

"You again, Wolf? You're like a mosquito that just won't get off our backs! I just warned you earlier not to harass Marilyn again. You're asking for it, you know that!" Brody was furious and stared fiercely at Leon. "No one's harassing her. I already told you two that I'm here to get something. Don't be unreasonable!" Leon shot back coldly. He did not expect to bump into them so quickly when the flea market was such a huge place.

"I'm not buying your nonsense! You came in as soon as we set foot in this store. That's too big of a coincidence! Why do you have to be such a creep? Is it because Iris doesn't want a useless piece of trash like you?" Marilyn had a look of contempt on her face.

She and Brody were secretly hoping to meet Leon again so they could teach Leon a lesson, but his act of stalking her made it obvious that he had bad intentions toward her! It was an entirely different justification altogether!

"I don't have time to play with your games!"

Leon ignored Brody and Marilyn and walked straight toward the area where the raw jade stone was sold
