The Ex-Husband's Revenge Chapter 81

"You... never learned how... to drive?" Ariel was surprised to hear that. She rolled her eyes and said, "Then why don't you trade it in for another motorcycle with a different color? Don't you feel embarrassed riding a pink motorcycle?"

"I didn't buy this motorcycle. Iris gave it to me..." Leon shrugged his shoulders.

Iris would not just randomly gift stuff to men. It was the kind of treatment that no man could ever hope to get, so it made sense for Leon to hold on to the motorcycle so vehemently!

"That explains it!" Ariel had a sudden realization and finally understood why Leon would have such a tacky motorcycle.

"What does the color of my motorcycle have anything to do with you anyway, Miss Summers? Why are you so fixated on it?" Leon asked curiously, wondering if Ariel was nagging him about it because she had nothing better to do.

"Because I can do whatever I want! Who are you to stop me?" A blush appeared on Ariel's pretty face and she glared at Leon fiercely before turning her head and strutting away arrogantly.
