

Read I Am A Quadrillionaire Chapter 2259

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2259

Chapter 2259

After Brutus and his friends left, the people dining on the second floor relaxed.

Those hedonists made them feel nervous and scared. Perhaps they had been terrorized by these men for years.

Anyone who could dine on the second floor was not ordinary. They were bosses who ran businesses and had money.

When facing the local major forces, they could only lower themselves and did not dare to offend them.

“Sir, you should leave now. Brutus is certainly calling for help now. Their families are the ones who set the rules for this city. Anyone who offended them would end up horribly.”

‘Yeah! As long as they fancy something, they have to get their hands on it. It will be the best choice to leave now. If not, you won’t be able to leave when they come back with help.’

The customers on the second floor of the inn started discussing among themselves that David should leave.

They did not think a passerby like David would have the power to fight the major families.

Even though everyone wanted Brutus and the hedonists to meet someone tough to teach them a lesson so that they would not be so domineering, it was unrealistic.

Those people had been arrogant for so many years and nothing ever happened to them.

“Thank you all for your kindness. Since those kids are so horrible as you say, I’ll get rid of them for you so that you can live peacefully in the future,”

David said calmly.

“Sir, you have no idea... Sigh! Forget it, I don’t think you’ll listen to me anyway. Take care. I’ll go first. Enjoy your meal.”

One of the customers sighed after he said that. Then, he got up and left.

He did not want to get involved.

He did not believe David and thought David was just bluffing.

Once he left, the other also got up and said goodbye to David courteously.

If they did not leave now, they would not be able to when Brutus and his friends came back.

When that happened, the innocent would also get caught.

Soon, the customers on the second floor were all gone, leaving David and his team.

“Everyone, continue eating. Don’t let this affect your appetite. We’ve been on the road for so long and we finally get to eat something good. Don’t waste the food. Eat slowly. We should finish everything here,” David said.

‘Yes, Master!’ Thor and the guards replied loudly.

Since their employer had said that, they could only follow.

They had seen David’s true strength.

When the Macee family fought David, almost all of their hundred powerhouses were wiped out.

Among them was Basil, the mayor of Sole.

That battle had reshuffled Sole once again.

So what if all the forces in a small third-tier city united?

Could they catch up to a family like the Macee family?

Clearly not.

They were miles apart from the Macee family, let alone David who wiped them out in a blink of an eye.

If Brutus dared to bring people back, his fate would be determined.

This small episode did not affect their dining experience. They still ate and drank as they should.

Thor and the guards were feeling secretly pleased.

It was so different with the right employer.

Back then, they could only apologize and pay compensation if they offended a local tyrant.

Now, it was completely different.

Then, an elderly man, the owner of the inn, hurriedly ran over and nervously spoke to David.