I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2454-She thought to herself, 'Perhaps this is the difference between a small potato like me and Master David.

'I think money is important but to Master David, it's just a bunch of numbers.

'This is the difference between realms.'

"It's good that you understand," David nodded.

He was also just rambling nonsense.

It did not matter if Beanie understood him. He would tell her in the future.

If he could not get lavish points by spending money, why would he buy treasures and not use them, or buy houses and not stay in them? Was he too bored?

"What about you, Rivers? Tell me your progress lately." David turned his gaze to Thor.

"Master David, I might have to disappoint you. I don't have any results. Recently, I've been trying to understand the market and expand my connections. Someone has looted everything from the eight main cities. More than half of the treasures are gone so that's why the prices have skyrocketed," Thor said honestly.

"More than half the treasures were looted?" David showed a look of curiosity.

He seemed to remember Arian mentioning this. Back then, he figured Arian thought he was the child of some major force, so he did not ask more.

Everyone knew about this but someone from a major force did not?

Wouldn't this expose him?

David was not scared of anything. With his strength, he did not need to be scared.

However, it was pretty nice to intimidate others with the identity of the direct descendant of a major force.

It could save him time with many things.

When Arian came to apologize, he immediately decided to sell a lot of his properties to David when he realized David needed them.

If he did not think David came from a strong background, he would never go to him.

David would never have acquired hundreds of thousands of lavish points unless he showed his strength.

However, that has its dangers too.

Would the powerhouse he encountered halfway find him?

This was also one of David's considerations.

As someone who was very cautious, he would not interact with someone a lot stronger than him until he found out if he was friend or foe.

Of course, the reason David got to where he was right now was because of his character.

"Yes, something big happened in the eight main cities not long ago," Thor said.

"What is it?" David continued to ask.

"No idea. It seems a taboo subject. All of the forces with power in the eight main cities know about it, but they don't dare tell. I can't find out no matter what kind of method I use. It doesn't work even if I offer a lot of money. It seems as if they're avoiding it."

David fell into deep thought after he heard that.

'Since the strongest person in Amber City is Mayor Salem, the other main cities should be the same.

'If this person dared to loot treasures in the right main cities and intimidate countless big forces into not even talking about it, they must be ridiculously powerful.

'Perhaps it's the mysterious person I met along the way.

'Perhaps he's the only one who can do this.

'But who could it be?

'Why do I feel that this person is a little familiar?'

At this moment, David regretted not detecting that person carefully back then.

It would be fine even if the person noticed him.

He did not have any grudges against them, so they probably would not kill him.
