

Read I Am A Quadrillionaire Chapter 2514

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2514-Fabiola was the granddaughter of the head of the Marche family, so how could the Marche family let David go so easily after he killed her?

“Egan, I know you can’t make the decision on this matter, so why don’t we discuss how to solve it together after you get a reply from your family?” Salem thought for a while and asked.

“Yes, but Mayor, this matter may not be that easy to handle. You have to be mentally prepared. It’s not just about my family. Fabiola is the granddaughter of the current head of the Marche family, so they will definitely not let this go so easily,” Egan said and glanced at David.

When he saw how calm David was, the doubts in his heart were getting heavier and heavier.

Was he fearless because he was young or was he really confident that he could deal with the Campbell family and the Marche family teaming up against him?

“Sigh, I know it will be hard, but just try your best! Even if you can’t resolve this at that time, please move outside Amber City to solve it, okay? Do it for my sake. There are too many ordinary people here and they won’t be able to stand the shockwaves from your fight,” Salem sighed.

The reason he came here was to persuade the two to make peace, but he failed, he hoped that the two parties would not mess around in Amber City.

“Don’t worry, Mayor Salem! I can promise you this. If the Marche family and the Campbell family really want to use force as a solution, I promise that no ordinary people will be hurt,” David said suddenly.

“I am at ease now that you’ve said this.”

Then, Salem said something along the lines of it being better for foes to be reconciled than to contend with each other. After he fulfilled his responsibilities as Amber City’s mayor, everyone left.

They would wait for news from the Campbell family and the Marche family before negotiating again.

Egan could not find the mysterious powerhouse hidden beside David, so he was apprehensive and did not dare to do anything. Ultimately, he could only leave in despair.

He did not go back to the family to wait for the news. Instead, he went straight to the descending point.

After their first contact, Egan felt that David was not simple.

Judging from David's reaction, the Campbell family might not be able to reap the benefits of this matter.

So, Egan came up with an idea.

Since the Marche family had lost a direct descendant, he might as well let them meet David first to see if David was genuinely capable, or if he was just a reputation with no substance and was deliberately mystifying.

The Campbell family chose to wait and see for the time being, and to contribute as little as possible.

In case of any uncontrollable factors, they could change their strategy at anytime.

However, he needed to inform the family as soon as possible, so that was why Egan went straight to the descending point to return to Leila so he could tell the family what he thought and how he felt when he met David for the first time.

After Salem and Egan left, David, Arian, and Thor were the only ones left in Jumbo Court.

Pebbles fell asleep after eating and was put in another room by David to rest.

The little girl seemed to be more obedient and sensible this time.

She would obey as long as David was the one giving orders.

"Dave, I have to go back too. This matter involves a major family like the Campbell family so I'm afraid I can't help you much," Arian said apologetically.

“What are you talking about, Arian? You only need to help Rivers in the future and help me collect more precious treasures. That will be the greatest help to me.”

“Dave, don’t worry! I can’t help you with anything else, but you can count on me for this,” Arian assured, patting his chest.

He had already made up his mind.

As long as David could escape the Marche family and the Campbell family’s collaboration this time, he would take advantage of his position as the captain of the law enforcement team to help David collect treasures with all his strength.