Chapter 186

After the doctor left. Briar rubbed her belly, angry and disappointed. She said, "You should have done better. God gave you the chance to be born into the Hunt family, but you actually have a genetic defect... You're gonna stop developing anyway, so don't blame me for being cruel!"

What the doctor meant was obvious. Regardless of whether the baby was aborted or not, it would not survive. In that case, she would much rather let the baby die in a miscarriage so that she would not be held responsible. As for how the miscarriage would happen...

Briar's eyes became poisonous. Didn't that bitch Renee despise her? In that case, it's completely possible for Renee to "lose control of her emotions" and kill her baby.

When that happened. Stefan would definitely make the person who killed his dead brother's child pay. Briar would not even have to do anything else and Renee would die a miserable death.

Thinking of that, a content smile crept onto Briar's face. Her touch on the belly became a lot gentler. "Give them a good show, my baby. This is the last thing you can do for mommy!"

Briar Desrosiers, there's someone here to see you.

The police officer standing guard outside knocked on the door and informed her coldly.

"Someone's here to see me?"

Briar was overjoyed.

It must be Stefan! Stefan had come to see her!

She tidied herself in the mirror excitedly and opened the door with a smile. Standing outside was a middle-aged woman she had never met before.

Her face immediately cooled. She asked angrily, "Who are you? Do I know you?"

"Hi, Miss Desrosiers. I'm the Everheart family's nanny. You can call me Margaret."

Margaret said politely with a smile.

"The Everheart family's nanny?"

Briar's expression got even darker. She snapped, "Did Renee ask you to come here?"

"No. I came to see you on my own. Miss Ren doesn't know about this."

Margaret went straight to the point. "I came to see you today because I hope that I can convince you to do what's best for everyone, which is to leave Mr. Hunt. Mr. Hunt and Miss Renee are still in love. You won't be happy being with Mr. Hunt." "Hah. You're just a servant. Know your place!"

Briar did not expect Margaret, who looked gentle and kind, to be so aggressive. As expected of Renee Everheart's dog. She was just like Renee.

Briar had intended to give Margaret a piece of her mind, but suddenly she had a clever idea and immediately changed her attitude, putting on a helpless expression.

"Actually, I know that Stefan doesn't like me, but what can I do? I'm pregnant with his child. I can't let my baby be born without a father, can I?"

"But..."

Margaret originally wanted to confront Briar on behalf of Renee.

After all, Renee was also pregnant with Stefan's child. If it weren't for Briar's shameless intervention, Stefan would not have divorced Renee.

But she swallowed the words that came to her lips.

Renee forbade her from telling anyone about the pregnancy in order to protect the baby. Margaret would naturally keep her secret safe.

Briar glanced at Margaret and continued acting. "You don't have to remind me. I know very well that a marriage without love is a tragedy for a woman. It's a life without happiness!"

"As if I don't want to leave Stefan? I've even thought of aborting the baby so that I can search for my own happiness again, but at this point, the matter is already out of my control. Stefan would never let me abort the baby..."

Margaret now had a complicated look on her face. She asked tentatively. "Are you sure you want to abort the baby?" "I've wanted to do it for a long time. It's just that Stefan's keeping a close eye on me and no hospital dares to perform the operation. I don't know how I can get an abortion!"

Margaret took a deep breath and said in a serious tone. "If you really want to, I know a way."

Chapter 187

Margaret came from a family that practiced medicine. She knew how to take care of pregnant women and also how to get rid of a pregnancy.

However, due to moral considerations, she had never done such a cruel thing.

But if it could help Renee and Stefan get back together, she would do it even if she would go to hell for it!

"Miss Desrosiers, are you sure? If you really don't want this baby, I can make a medicine for you to get rid of it without any pain. It won't have any impact on your fertility either."

Margaret confirmed with Briar again.

She would only do it if Briar truly wanted to abort the baby.

She would not force Briar. After all, only a mother could decide the life and death of a baby. Others could only contribute their opinion at most.

"I'm sure!"

Briar nodded earnestly and said. "I wish my child can be born into a loving family. I wish that his father not only loves him, but also loves his mother. Otherwise, there's no happiness to speak of. Obviously, this child came at a bad time. It's for the best!"

"Miss Desrosiers, you're a very reasonable person. You have great wisdom."

Briar's answer eased any mental burden Margaret had.

She thought Briar was actually not as wicked as Renee said. She's pretty reasonable. As expected of a woman that Stefan chose. She could not be that bad.

“Please wait for a moment, Miss Desrosiers. I’ll go make the medicine right now.”

After that, Margaret went to a nearby traditional medicine pharmacy to prepare the abortion medication for Briar. Before long, Margaret was back in the ward. She had brought the medicine in a thermos. She handed it to Briar.

“Miss Desrosiers, here’s the medicine. Don’t worry, it’s safe to drink. Your stomach may hurt slightly, but it won’t be too bad. You only have to go to the bathroom once and problem solved.”

Margaret consoled Briar.

Her family had superb medical knowledge. She could guarantee the medicine’s safety with confidence.

Briar looked at the thermos but did not take it. Instead, she suddenly raised her voice and asked, “If I drink it as you say, you promise Renee will drop the charges and let me go?”

Margaret was slightly taken aback. She could not understand why Briar was suddenly talking so loudly, but she patiently said. “Don’t worry, Miss Desrosiers. I believe you’re not a bad person. You only became a homewrecker due to a moment of confusion. Jealousy made you do irrational things. You’re not so bad that you deserve to go to jail. As long as Mr. Hunt and Miss Ren get back together, I’m sure Miss Ren won’t pursue the matter.”

Briar nodded and gave the clock on the wall a casual glance. Seeing that the time was almost right, she said to Margaret, “I’m scared. Can you feed me?”

“Of course.”

Margaret understood Briar’s despair as a mother who was about to kill her own child.

She unscrewed the lid of the thermos and got a bit closer to Briar while telling her, “Don’t be scared. The medicine’s not bitter.

Drink it with your eyes closed. You’ll be free of your pain and dilemma.”

However, Briar’s expression suddenly did a 180. She looked frightened and shrunk back, screaming, “Margaret, stop! Don’t hurt my baby!”

“Take the medicine away, I beg you! I’ll never drink it…”

Margaret was confused. She walked forward and said. “What do you mean, Miss Desrosiers? Did your nerves get the better of you? I can feed you. I…”

“Go away! Help! Help! This woman is trying to kill my baby!”

After that, Briar sprinted past Margaret towards the tall figure standing outside the door.

“Save me, Stefan! Renee sent her! She wants to force the abortion medicine down my throat!”

Chapter 188

Margaret turned around and found Stefan standing at the door of the ward, staring at her coldly. “Mr. Hunt.

I…”

She intended to explain herself, but the abortion medicine in her hand was still steaming hot. She could not immediately think of a good explanation..

Briar hid behind Stefan, acting like a weak, helpless woman. She cried and said, “Margaret, I told you, I know I’ve done something wrong, so I promise I’ll leave Stefan, but the baby is innocent…”

“The baby is my life! I won’t let anyone hurt it! Please go back and tell Miss Everheart that if she has any grudge against me. she can take it out on me, but don’t hurt my baby!”

Briar’s words made Margaret flush with anger. She said emotionally, “What’s the meaning of this, Miss Desrosiers? That’s not what you said just now. Aborting the baby was your idea too. Why are you pretending to be the victim now? You’re blatantly lying!”

“The one who’s blatantly lying is you! I love my baby so much, how could I bear to abort it? You were threatening me, saying that if I don’t abort the baby like you said, Miss Everheart will make me go to jail. I refused to take the medicine, so you tried to force it down my throat! The police officers outside and Stefan saw it!”

“You… you…”

Margaret had never seen a better actor than Briar. She was so angry that she felt like she was getting a heart attack. She now knew that Renee was not exaggerating at all. Briar Desrosiers really was evil down to the core!

She quickly told Stefan, “Mr. Hunt, please don’t listen to Miss Desrosiers’s nonsense. That was not what happened at all. I did not say those things, I…”

“Shut up!”

Stefan’s perfect face was icy. He glared at Margaret with extremely oppressive eyes and asked, “Was it Renee’s idea?”

“No, I came here on my own. Miss Ren knows nothing. She doesn’t even know that I came here. Mr. Hunt, please don’t misunderstand Miss Ren, she…”

“So it was your idea?”

Stefan’s eyes became even colder, carrying a dangerous intent. He asked sharply. “In other words, it’s true that you tried to get rid of a Hunt child? That part’s not a lie?”

“That’s…”

Margaret gulped. She did not know how to deny that.

The purpose of her visit to today was to persuade Briar to get an abortion. Briar was not lying about Margaret’s motive. “I did ask Miss Desrosiers to get an abortion, but…”

“I’ve heard enough.”

Stefan turned to the police officers next to him and said, “You heard that. She made a deliberate attempt to harm a child of the Hunt family. She has the motive, and we have eyewitnesses and evidence. I don’t have to tell you what to do, do I?”

The two police officers were very respectful towards Stefan. They immediately handcuffed Margaret and told her with a serious expression, “You voluntarily tried to hurt someone. This is a criminal offense. You’re now under arrest. Please follow us back to the police station.”

“Criminal offense?”

Margaret looked down at the cold handcuffs, confused.

She did not expect things to turn out this way. She had only wanted to persuade Briar to give up. How did it come to this?

“No, no, Mr. Hunt, this is a misunderstanding. I didn’t try to hurt anyone. I only tried to persuade Miss Desrosiers to get an abortion so that she can seek her own happiness again!”

“I can see that you and Miss Ren still have feelings for each other. You only got a divorce because of a homewrecker’s intervention. Your marriage can still be saved. I…”

“Take her away!”

Stefan said with a frown. He had no interest in hearing what Margaret had to say.

Margaret's passionate plea gradually turned into disappointment. She laughed bitterly and said. "Now I know why Miss Ren is so adamant to divorce you even though she's under great pressure. Someone like you doesn't deserve her love!"

After Margaret was taken away, Briar smiled triumphantly. 1

She grabbed Stefan's hand and whimpered, "Stefan, thank god you got here in time. If you had arrived even a bit later, the baby would have been in danger. I can't believe Miss Everheart's desire for revenge is so strong that she actually tries to harm the innocent baby. She..." "You can stop acting now."

Stefan said coldly, "I know what happened. Your pretentiousness is starting to disgust me."

Although he had only met Margaret once before, he knew very well that Margaret could never have done such a cruel thing. "What do you mean, Stefan?"

Briar's face was stiff.

So Stefan knew that Margaret was innocent, but he had her arrested anyway? Why? Stefan saw the question in Briar's eyes and asked coldly, "You want to know why?"

Everheart residence.

Renee was sitting beside a window on the second floor. She had been staring out of the window for a long time, but she had not seen Margaret at all.

She took out her phone and tried calling Margaret again, but her call still could not get through. "That's weird.

It's getting dark. Why isn't Margaret back yet? Where is she?"

When she woke up this morning, Renee saw a note Margaret left on the dining table, saying that she was going to take care of some personal matters and would be back soon. She told Renee not to worry.

But an entire day had passed and Margaret still had not come home. She could not even be contacted. Something was wrong! Renee was worried that Margaret might have ran into trouble. Considering her recent situation, there were many people who were waiting for an opportunity to get back at her.

Seeing that the sun was about to set, Renee could not sit still any longer. She grabbed a jacket and went out to look for Margaret.

The moment she stepped outside, Renee saw a familiar silver sports car parked at the gate.

A slender man was casually leaning against the car, his shadow drawn long under the dim yellow street lamp. He held a cigarette between his long fingers. He gave off a cold, aloof aura, deadly attractive.

Renee's heart throbbed despite herself. She could not move her eyes away.

The man was Stefan, a man she did not want to see at all! "That's weird.

What's he doing here?!"

'And judging from the remaining length of the cigarette between his fingers, it seems like he's been here for a long time?" Although

Renee was curious, she walked straight past Stefan with a deadpan face, as if he was invisible.

Stefan raised his eyebrows, but he was not mad. He casually put out the cigarette and threw the butt into a trash can next to him, then quietly followed behind Renee.

He was tall, so he had a long shadow, and the shadow soon overlapped with Renee's, as if they were hugging each other. There was an ambiguous feeling in the air.

Renee noticed Stefan following her. At first, she tried to ignore him, but she had already walked for nearly a kilometer and Stefan was still following her. It made her mad for some reason. She suddenly stopped and turned around.

"Are you a sex offender? Why are you following me? What do you want?"

Stefan and Renee were walking very close together. When she suddenly stopped and turned around, they almost ran into each other.

But it was precisely this tiny, awkward gap between them that made both of them feel a bit unnatural.

Stefan cleared his throat and tried to put on his usual cold and aloof face. He smirked and said. "Why are you wandering around alone in the middle of the night? You're making yourself the perfect victim for a sex offender."

His words made Renee really angry.

"What kind of stupid logic is that? Are you saying that it's the victim's fault? Why have I never noticed before what a terribly crooked moral view you have?"

Renee retorted sharply. "But, honestly, it's no surprise. Can't expect someone who lets himself get mixed up with a wicked woman like Briar Desrosiers to have a good moral view. I must have been blind to actually marry a man like you!"

Stefan was not angry. Instead, his thin lips curled into a meaningful smile.

That was because he could clearly hear a strong feeling of jealousy in Renee's words. It made him feel good. "I've always wondered, why do you always get emotional when you talk about Briar?"

"Duh. Of course it's because I hate her!" "Is that so?"

Stefan's raised his eyebrows slightly as he continued to ask, "Do you actually hate her or do you hate her for ruining our marriage?"

"You... What the hell are you trying to say?"

Renee involuntarily took a step back. Stefan felt strange tonight, as if he was possessed.

"If I say that my feelings for Briar are not what you think they are, and I'm protecting her for some other reasons, would you let her off the hook?"

"Some other reasons?"

Renee frowned and immediately asked, "What other reasons?"

Chapter 190

"It's not important."

Stefan did not answer.

Some secrets he must carry to the grave for the good of everyone.

"You just have to know that my relationship with her is not like what you think. You don't have to make her life hell out of jealousy."

"Hahaha!"

That made Renee laugh.

She was laughing at the man's arrogance, as well as his cruelty.

How could a man say such a shameless thing to his ex-wife?

Briar Desrosiers was obviously the one who had done horrible things, but since the beginning of the conversation, he had been defending Briar and making Renee out to be the bad guy instead!

“You’re really funny, Stefan. You think I’m sending Briar to jail because I love you and I’m jealous that he took you away from me?”

“Isn’t that the case?”

Stefan asked coldly.

He believed that, although he had little experience in love, he had met a lot of women, so he could tell women’s intentions towards him.

“No, no, no, it has nothing to do with you. I’m just petty and I always get my revenge. Briar Desrosiers repeatedly provoked me. so of course I want to teach her a lesson.”

Renee replied honestly.

Renee was neither a saint nor the Virgin Mary. If she was bullied, of course she would retaliate. Stefan’s gaze became complicated. He said in a low voice, “You weren’t like this before.” “That’s because I was blind, I was stupid, and I’m a good actor.”

Renee did not care what kind of person Stefan thought she was anymore. She continued, “I’ve had enough of being a daughter-in-law of the Hunt family. I hate pretending to be gentle and dignified and acting like a loving couple with you. I hate your mean mother, I hate your mansion that feels like a prison, and I hate humbling myself to wait for you to come home every night!”

In those cold, dark days, she could not even feel a hint of warmth. It was a period of time she did not want to remember.

“I’ll be honest with you. I’m not a kind person. When the monster in me comes out, I might eat your little lover alive. Rather than wasting your time chatting with me, you should use it to find a good lawyer to try to reduce her sentence!”

Renee’s words were filled with provocation.

She wanted to see how far Stefan would go in order to protect Briar Desrosiers.

Stefan’s face became increasingly colder.

The woman in front of him looked like a little leopard waving her sharp claws. She was something he could not control, and that irritated him.

He frowned and said coldly. “So you’ll definitely send her to prison? Is there no room for negotiation?” “None whatsoever!”

Renee nodded confidently and snorted. “I’ve already offered you a chance. You only had to kneel down and apologize in public. But, you pushed your luck instead. In that case, I can only show you my true nature – I’m a petty, vicious woman!”

Renee knew all too well how to deal with people like Briar Desrosiers.

If she let Briar off the hook this time, Briar would definitely retaliate even harder next time. Renee was not foolish enough to give Briar that opportunity.

Stefan’s expression turned even darker. His gaze fell on their overlapping shadows. He said coldly, “In that case, you’d better ask your lawyer to figure out how to reduce your nanny’s sentence too. After all, murder is a much heavier crime than burglary!”
