

Ex Wife 1347

Chapter 1347

"Umm, that..." Renee knew what Quinton meant—he wanted her to get back together with Stefan.

She might have considered that in the past, but now, she knew that they had no future together.

She couldn't accept a sinister and cunning man who tried to kill her brother, and anyway, Stefan and his family would never accept a person who had nearly killed him several times.

Even if she tried to ignore him, she still saw news related to Stefan.

[The president of Hunt Group was attacked! His life is in danger, and he's in a coma!] Those headlines were a constant reminder that she'd nearly killed Stefan.

A vast chasm separated Stefan and Renee, and even their past together couldn't bridge the gap.

Besides, he had forgotten all about her, so their past together was practically nonexistent now.

"Renee, don't stress.

If you guys love each other, don't hold back.

Don't be like me, and sacrifice your dignity for a lifetime's worth of regret." Quinton looked crestfallen again.

"She hated me even before she died.

I don't even know if she had forgiven me before she stabbed me." "Quinton, actually..." Feeling sorry for her brother, Renee wondered if she should tell him that Joanne was alive and in the same hospital as him.

However, a medical team came in before she could say anything.

"It's time for us to remove the patient's gauze." The doctor responsible for Quinton's post-treatment informed Renee.

"O-Okay!" Renee immediately moved away to give the doctor space.

She looked on eagerly, but she still felt a little anxious.

Leia and Haze arrived soon, and Margaret and the children soon joined them.

They squeezed into the ward to watch the exciting scene together.

"Mr.

Everheart, please relax.

I believe the surgery went well, and your recovery was good," the doctor said kindly as he carefully cut Quinton's gauze open with scissors.

After that, the doctor slowly pulled off the layers of gauze.

A handsome face with sharp features gradually emerged from under the gauze, mesmerizing the people watching.

Quinton had deep -set eyes, an aquiline nose, and a perfect jawline...

"Wow, you're so handsome!" Leia was the first to see his face, and her eyes grew wide in amazement.

"You're the most handsome man I've seen in the past few years! You're much more charming than any idol." "He really is handsome," Justin praised Quinton, then added teasingly, "You're as handsome as me.

I don't mind marrying you if I can't marry Phoenix." "Quinton..." Renee looked at her brother, tears blurring her vision.

"Renee, what do you think?" Quinton was a little tense because he wasn't wearing a mask.

His body trembled, and he looked down anxiously.

"You look amazing! I think I don't deserve to be your sister anymore," Renee choked out, tears of joy rolling down her cheeks.

Quinton smiled at her gratefully.

"No, I don't deserve to be your brother." "No way! You're the best and most handsome brother in the whole wide world!"