

The Ex-Husband's Revenge By Dragonsky

Chapter 2395

Chapter 2395

"Mister Wolf, it's getting late. You were injured just now, so you should rest. The Thompsons will leave you alone for now," Arthur said to Leon.

"Sure. Be careful on your way out," Leon said with a smile and watched as the Thompsons left.

Angus and other members of the first bloodline left with them as well.

Instantly, Leon, his subordinates, Iris, and the others were the only people left in the mansion.

"Henry, Mason, why don't you all clean the place up? I need to rest," Leon ordered.

He took the Dragon Pill to deal with the Southern Boss earlier and the effect was beginning to wear off; he would soon enter the recovery phase and needed to return to his room. 1

With that, he left his subordinates behind to clean, while the women accompanied him back to his room.

Somewhere in a deserted forest, Hades escaped here and barely managed to escape the Dragon Guards after rescuing the Southern Boss.

"Great! We are finally free of those flies!" Hades scoffed and tossed the Southern Boss onto the grass.

With his power reaching the Peak Almighty State, it was not challenging to escape from Alfred and the others. However, he was slowed down considerably because he was carrying the Southern Boss, who was injured.

Because of that, it took him quite some time to shake the Dragon Guards.

After having some rest, the Southern Boss recovered slightly from his injuries and bowed respectfully at Hades." Hades, thank you for saving me!"

"You don't have to thank me. I only helped you because I didn't want the Dragon Corps to get what they wanted! Also, I have a few questions for you!" Hades said.

The enemy of one's enemy was a friend and the Southern Boss was once the head of the underground society, which meant that he was connected to the criminals in some way.

Hades could not let the Dragon Corps take the Southern Boss out. On top of that, Hades felt increasingly uneasy upon hearing that the people on the criminal lists were being killed one after another.

He snuck his way to the Southern region mainly to investigate the death of other criminals and considering that the Southern Boss had many connections, he decided that the Southern Boss might know something and decided to rescue him.

"What are your questions?" The Southern Boss asked.

"First question: How did the Demon Lord die? Given your power along with his, how did you two end up this way?" Hades frowned.

He followed Alfred and the others to where Leon was, and since they arrived later than the others, the Demon Lord was already dead by the time they arrived.

Hades did not know how the Demon Lord died and could not understand who could kill someone like the Demon Lord, who was close to reaching the Peak Almighty State; not to mention injuring the Southern Boss at the same time.

Even Hades himself might not be capable of doing so.
