

Chapter 667 Drug

Liam's expression turned sour as the unsettling information reached his ears.

He had sensed a change in Julie since her rescue, but he hadn't questioned it until now.

Fiona's revelation had made him confront this troubling issue!

Didn't Julie lose her memory?

Was it possible that, during her captivity with the Black Spider, she had resorted to intimate relations with other men for her survival.

Perhaps her feigned memory loss was a way to evade telling him the truth for now.

Liam's thoughts raced back to the day when they were on the ship, someone had saved Julie before she was captured again.

Who was that person? Could it be this man?

The uncertainty gnawed at Liam, causing him to lose his calm. He anxiously inquired of Fiona, "Fiona, did you get a good look at the man?"

Fiona shook her head and replied, "He came late at night, and I dare not get too close. I couldn't see his face clearly, but I'm certain I've never seen him before."

Liam's trembling hands betrayed his unease. These unsettling speculations filled him with dread. If his suspicions were true, he wouldn't know how to face Julie. After all, she had been captured because of him.

Surviving in the clutches of the Black Spider for over a month might have driven her to desperate measures, which he could understand. But if Julie had indeed been unfaithful during this time, reconciling with the situation would prove challenging for him.

After a prolonged silence, Liam sighed with a mix of emotions and said, "Got it. You can go back now."

Fiona cast a complex glance at Liam, offered a consoling pat on his shoulder, and took her leave.

When Liam came back to the room, his demeanor had changed, but Vivian remained oblivious to the change. She just assumed that Fiona had sought him out regarding the Dark Night Organization.

Vivian, still brimming with enthusiasm, inquired, "What took you so long to discuss? Are you thirsty?"

Let me get you some water."

Liam drank the water Vivian offered and then broached the topic indirectly. "J... Julie, did you face any trouble with the Black Spider?"

If you've resorted to any means to survive, just confide in me. There's no need to be ashamed. I... I won't hold it against you."

Upon hearing Liam's words, Vivian grew immediately anxious. A fleeting look of surprise crossed her face which she quickly hid.

Vivian shook her head promptly and replied, "No, I'd certainly inform you if anything bad happened to me."

Liam furrowed his brow and wanted to delve deeper, but Vivian promptly changed the subject. "By the way, I've recalled many of my past memories lately."

Her words successfully diverted Liam's attention momentarily. He responded cheerfully, "Really? Share them with me."

Vivian heaved a sigh of relief and proceeded to say some of the things she knew about Liam and Julie.

In fact, Vivian had secretly added an aphrodisiac to the glass of water Liam had just drunk. Now, she anxiously awaited the aphrodisiac's effects to manifest.

She didn't really need to resort to such means, but during this period, Liam had been entirely engrossed in destroying the Black Spider and displayed no romantic inclination whatsoever. Initiating intimacy with him would have seemed contrived, leaving her with no alternative.

As they conversed further, Liam gradually became aware that something was wrong with him.

A baffling surge of sexual desire welled up in his mind, and his mouth became as dry as a desert.

In that instant, the intense desire caused his thoughts to become muddled and his mind drifted into a state of confusion.
