Married at First Sight Chapter 2705-Kevin said, "I will go to the Queen family to see Hayden later and ask her if she has time in the evening. The two of us will accompany you. You don't have to worry about the old woman attacking you tonight. The two of us will follow and let the old woman know that even if you come here by yourself, there is still someone behind you.

The old woman wants to crush you to death in Jensburg, but she has to think carefully about it. Not only us, but even Hayden's power in Jensburg, the old woman will be afraid of it."

Liberty said, "It wouldn't be good to drag Hayden in, right? The Queen family and the Farrell family usually live in peace and harmony. We can't drag her in just because of our personal grudges with the Farrell family."

Getting involved with Kevin was something that couldn't be helped.

Liberty's sister, Serenity, was Kevin's sister-in-law. Even if Kevin did nothing, in the eyes of Matriarch Farrell, Kevin was still on Liberty's side.

Kevin said, "What's wrong? From now on, Hayden will be my wife. She is the second young mistress of my York family. People know she is on our side even though she doesn't do anything."

Liberty laughed at him: "You haven't even caught her yet, so you say she is your wife. You are so thick-skinned. I think Hayden is so entangled by your thick skin that she can't help it. A martyr girl is afraid of pestering her husband."

Kevin was that troublesome guy—the kind who was particularly difficult to deal with.

Kevin said, "My elder brother has summed up the experience for me that when chasing a wife, I have to be thick-skinned."

Liberty said nothing.

Zachary had never chased his wife, but he also summed up a set of experiences in chasing his wife for his cousins.

Kevin said, "Sister Liberty, it's settled. Hayden and I will accompany you to Farrell's house tonight."

Liberty thought for a while and agreed, not refusing to involve Hayden.

Besides, Hayden had already been involved.

Liberty said, "Then you're busy; I'll go out for a walk first; see you in the evening."

Kevin hummed and personally escorted Liberty out of his office.

After Liberty entered the elevator, Kevin turned around and walked back while calling Hayden.

Hayden was so busy that when she saw the call coming from Kevin, she didn't bother to pay attention to him and didn't answer it.

Kevin sent her a message instead, telling her to accompany Liberty to Farrell's house for dinner tonight.

It took a long time for Hayden to reply with one word: OK.

Sitting back at his desk, Kevin stared at the one-word message from his sweetheart, then took out the unfinished love letter he had hidden and compared it with the few pages he had written eloquently. Hayden was really stingy, so she gave him a one-word reply.

"Knowing that you are busier than me, I won't care about you so much. Who told me to fall in love with you?"

Of the two, he was the first to be tempted and the one who bowed his head first.

"You are so busy, but you are still willing to reply to me with even one word. I should be satisfied."

Kevin muttered to himself, then picked up the pen and wanted to continue writing a love letter.

For a while, he couldn't write any more. He muttered, "I was interrupted by Sister Liberty when I was just about to get inspired. Now I don't know what to write. Forget it; let's write some earthy words."

He repeatedly wrote the words “I love you” at the back of the love letter.

Liberty didn't expect that her visit would interrupt Kevin's inspiration to write a love letter. She had never written a love letter before. She had received many love letters in school before from Hank.

She wrote countless love letters. The feelings at that time were really pure.

Unlike later, too many impurities had penetrated into it, and it was no longer pure.

As Liberty was moving through Jensburg, she was aware that Matriarch Farrell was keeping an eye on her every move, just as she was keeping an eye on the Farrell family's movements.

Time passes quickly, and it's evening in a blink of an eye.

Married at First Sight Chapter 2706-Liberty returned to the Fortress Hotel, but Kevin had not returned yet. He sent Liberty a message and asked Liberty to wait at the hotel. He would pick up Hayden and be back soon.

Kevin held a large bouquet of money and stood guard at the door of Queen Enterprise's large conference room.

Hayden was still in a meeting.

She was really busier than Kevin.

When running such a large company, there were endless meetings, endless documents to process, and endless business discussions every day.

It was getting close to getting off work, the sky was dark outside, and Hayden was still in a meeting.

The wind was particularly strong in the evening.

Kevin especially wore a coat when he went out so that Hayden could cuddle up to him to keep warm.

Hayden: She doesn't need to cling to him for warmth.

After Kevin waited for ten minutes, the door of the conference room was opened, and the senior managers who participated in the meeting walked out one after another.

As soon as they came out, they saw Kevin holding a large bunch of money. Everyone stopped talking and greeted Kevin politely.

Some people call him Mr. York, and some people call him Young Master York.

Kevin smiled back.

After everyone walked away, they discussed in a low voice: “Mr. York is really the most difficult and shameless man I have ever seen.”

Their company’s young and cold-hearted Mr. Queen was turned on by Kevin.

Kevin didn’t need to listen to guess that these people would repeat the same old tune once they were far away.

Even though they were polite to him in front of him, they were scolding him behind his back.

Hugh was behind the managers. He came out, saw Kevin, and smiled at him. When he saw clearly that Kevin was holding a large bunch of money in his hands, he immediately stepped forward and squinted. He stretched out his hands and said, “Mr. York, it must be hard for you to hold such a large bunch of money. Come on, let me share it with you.”

Kevin turned aside to avoid his outstretched hand, then freed up one hand to pat Hugh’s hand away, saying, “It’s not heavy; you don’t need to share it. Where is your brother?”

“My brother is inside. How come such a large bunch of money isn’t heavy? Give it to me, and I’ll hold it for you. I won’t think it’s too much for you if you send a few more like this.”

Hugh pretended to steal money again.

Kevin kicked him, forcing Hugh to take a few steps back. He had no choice but to grab money nearby.

“Kevin, if you kick me, you are not afraid that I will sue you in front of my brother.”

Kevin was not afraid of the threat from his future brother-in-law at all. He in turn threatened Hugh: “Believe it or not, I will go to Uncle and Auntie to file a complaint against you. I will tell Auntie that you are not young anymore. You have to think about major life events. Let’s arrange blind dates for you every day.”

Hugh and Hayden were twins.

The siblings were only ten minutes apart.

Hugh had indeed reached the marriageable age.

Hugh said, “Mr. York, you are cruel! You won’t really complain, will you? My brother doesn’t like it because his tongue is too long. Forget it; I don’t want your money to be spent. It’s not like I haven’t seen money spent before. I have plenty of money to spend.”

Hugh didn’t really want to, but every time he saw Kevin waiting for his sister with a bouquet, he couldn’t help but tease Kevin.
