

Chapter 713 Sergio's Anger

Hearing Sergio's words, Fiona knew she succeeded in executing the plan. She shifted her gaze to Timothy, standing behind the Sandoval family members.

With a chilling smirk, Fiona firmly pointed at Timothy. "He's the one!"

Timothy felt a surge of panic, as if he'd been caught red-handed. He quickly stepped forward, his voice quivering. "I didn't do it! Stop pointing fingers at me!"

By now, Timothy was visibly unnerved. The guests in the hall, savvy in both business and politics, could clearly discern his guilt.

Their stares bored into Timothy as if they were looking at a doomed man.

Standing next to him, Adelina, eyes piercing and voice frosty, snapped, "Timothy, you're audacious. If this proves true, I'll castrate you!"

Timothy's face drained of color.

He had always treaded carefully, never leaving a trace of any misdeeds.

He'd always prided himself on his flawless strategies, never anticipating that he'd find himself in such a bind.

Up on the stage, Sergio's countenance darkened further. He directed the Hoffman family's guards in a stern tone, "Escort them out for a DNA test!"

Without delay, the Hoffman family's guards seized both Timothy and Vivian.

Caught in the frenzy, Vivian cried out, "Liam, help me! I'm innocent!"

But Liam remained unresponsive, his face impassive, watching as Vivian was led away.

Desperate, Timothy looked to Adelina, pleading, "Honey, trust me. The Hoffman family are trying to set me up. Please, help me out here!"

Yet, Adelina's demeanor was unfaltering and cold. She responded, "Innocent or guilty, the truth will emerge. Await the judgment."

Timothy's expression became one of utter hopelessness. If he couldn't secure the support of the Sandoval family, any remaining glimmer of hope would vanish.

Within the Hoffman family's grounds, his resistance wouldn't matter. They'd take him away, regardless of his protests.

The Hoffman family were equipped with state-of-the-art medical tools, and the result of the DNA test was out soon.

The doctor who did it relayed the result to Sergio with a grim demeanor. Vivian was indeed carrying Timothy's child.

This revelation shocked Sergio, engulfing him in rage. When had the Hoffman name ever been tarnished like this?

In a fit of anger, Sergio smacked the table and tossed the report at Vivian and Timothy, declaring, "The truth is clear now!"

With a gesture, he added, "Fiona, you've unmasked these deceivers. You've upheld our family's honor. You weren't wrong to create a scene at the party."

Sergio then tried to contain his fury, turning to his grandson. With a serious tone, he advised, "I'll deal with the Hewitt family. None will escape my wrath. As for your bride, act as you deem right."

A palpable, deadly aura surrounded Sergio, making the atmosphere icy cold.

The audience, once entertained by the drama, now sat in fearful silence.

Vivian, still posing as Julie, pleaded with Liam, "Liam, I swear I'm innocent. It's our wedding. Please help me!"

Liam found her voice grating. Without a second thought, he slapped her.

The forceful slap rendered Vivian stunned. It wasn't clear if it was shock or sorrow that silenced her.

Without any sympathy, Liam issued a chilling directive. "Lock her in the dungeon. Ensure she's heavily guarded until I say otherwise!"

Meanwhile, Sergio had issued a command and Felix pulled Timothy to the hall's center, ready to administer a severe punishment for all to see.
