

Chapter 729 A Net

In the suburb of Invone.

An unnoticeable figure flashed into a small villa.

"So, have they all revealed their true colors? Where is Liam? Is he okay?" asked a dignified old man seated in the basement of the villa.

It was Sergio, talking to Felix who was supposedly dead, and who had just come back from the Hoffman family's mansion. Theo stood beside Sergio and listened to Felix's report as well. The three men were all very serious, but none of them were in a panic, as if all was well in the world.

What happened in the wedding hall was expected by Sergio. He had everything under control.

And his plan was inspired by Liam.

Felix lowered his head and said, "The Duncan family is, however, still very cautious. Only a few of them came and Rohan wasn't among them. It was really a huge mess today. Liam successfully retreated, but one of his friends was blown up to pieces by Rennes."

Hearing this, Sergio got scared. "What about Liam? Did he get hurt?"

Felix nodded slightly. "Liam was also affected by the bomb. It wasn't very serious, so he should be fine. Knowing him though, I'm sure he's already planning his next step against the Duncan family. I'm afraid he will put himself in danger."

Sergio's eyes looked faraway, as if he was deep in thoughts. Then, he said, "Just as we expected, Rohan is still so careful. After such a big game I played for him, he still hasn't shown up."

After a short silence, Theo asked, "How should we proceed, Mr. Hoffman?"

Sergio gave it some thought and said, "We'd better give up the power in the delta region and bring all the members of the Dark Night Organization back to Invone to hide. This time, I'm going to make a much bigger fish net that will catch the big fish. I'll leave Liam in your care. Don't do anything else but follow him and protect him. Protect him at all costs, even if it means blowing your cover."

Felix nodded and said, "Don't worry, Mr. Hoffman. I will protect Liam with my life."

In an unknown hospital.

Liam had secretly funded this hospital some time ago. After leaving the Hoffman family's mansion, he rushed here with his group to receive treatment.

Liam was taken care of very quickly. His only injuries were on his legs which had been pierced by the pieces of shrapnel. After a local anaesthesia, the doctor removed the shrapnel and took care of the wounds. After that, he advised Liam to rest.

But he couldn't. He couldn't afford to rest, even if he could.

This time, he couldn't even take Annie's corpse along with him.

Jaxtyn was out of danger now, but he was bedridden and couldn't do anything on his own.

His nerves had already been on the right track to recovery, but during the explosion, they were once again attacked and were now completely necrotic. The only way for Jaxtyn to come back to life, would be for him to go through a complete transformation like the one Cannon had.

Liam sighed as he thought of this. He had never suffered such a heavy blow in any battle. This was a first.

The Hoffman family was in complete chaos. His grandfather's whereabouts were unknown, and he had lost his friend Annie in a dishonorable way. His enemy, Rennes, was just in front of him, but there was nothing he could do to him.

This was all too much for Liam to bear at the same time.

At one point, he would be driven by the desire to kill, then he would come back to reason. He wanted to rush back out and get rid of Rennes, but his reason reminded him that it would be wrong timing. It was a difficult internal battle with himself.

Although Julie was suffering as much as Liam was, she still stood by him and offered comfort.
