

Chapter 774 A Humiliating Exit

Observing Liam's ascent, the aloof girl felt an urge to cry out in astonishment but lacked the strength to do so.

After some hesitation, and against her wishes, the girl removed her bracelet, signaling the end of her test.

As she removed the bracelet, a blue curtain materialized before her.

She struggled out and quickly returned to where the other examinees had gathered. The oppressive feeling in her body had dissipated, allowing her to catch her breath and regain her strength.

Regaining her senses, she surveyed the scene and noticed that, apart from Liam, all the other examinees had already emerged.

Once the aloof girl appeared, Bryan hurried to approach the examiner and respectfully asked, "Sir, everyone is here. Is it time to announce the results?"

At that moment, Bryan was feeling a surge of excitement.

Despite being ejected by the golden dragon flag only

Observing Liam's ascent, the aloof girl felt an urge to cry out in astonishment but lacked the strength to do so.

After some hesitation, and against her wishes, the girl removed her bracelet, signaling the end of her test.

As she removed the bracelet, a blue curtain materialized before her.

She struggled out and quickly returned to where the other examinees had gathered. The oppressive feeling in her body had dissipated, allowing her to catch her breath and regain her strength.

Regaining her senses, she surveyed the scene and noticed that, apart from Liam, all the other examinees had already emerged.

Once the aloof girl appeared, Bryan hurried to approach the examiner and respectfully asked, "Sir, everyone is here. Is it time to announce the results?"

At that moment, Bryan was feeling a surge of excitement.

Despite being ejected by the golden dragon flag only twice, he believed that he had outperformed most participants on the field and was eager to hear if he had passed the test.

However, both the examiner and the aloof girl simultaneously replied, "One person is still inside."

still inside."

Bryan had counted the participants, and except for Liam, everyone else had exited. If there was still one person inside, did that mean it was Liam?

"The man with the crutch is still inside," the aloof girl said, confirming Bryan's suspicion.

Bryan's expression darkened. He had assumed that Liam had been the first to fail and had left to avoid embarrassment. To his surprise, Liam was still inside.

In frustration, Bryan muttered, "This guy is taking up everyone's time. He's causing unnecessary delays."

Bryan then suggested to the examiner, "Sir, why don't you proceed with the announcement and leave him behind for now?"

The examiner frowned and replied icily, "Are you in such a hurry?"

Smiling, Bryan replied, "No, not at all. I simply believe that cripple won't pass the test. Thus, he shouldn't waste your valuable time."

Hearing this, the examiner sneered and retorted, "So, according to you, those who haven't passed should be allowed to leave now?"

Bryan was taken aback momentarily. The next instant, he was roughly picked up by the examiner and thrown aside like garbage.

The examiner said coldly, "You failed the test, so get lost."

With a disbelieving expression, Bryan struggled to his feet, thinking that his interference had provoked the examiner and led to his failure. He brushed off the dust from his clothes and contemplated returning to plead for mercy.

However, when Bryan raised his head, he met the examiner's cold and aloof gaze. This sent shivers down his spine, and he felt intimidated. He had no choice but to leave in humiliation.

On his way back, Bryan's anger grew, and he blamed all this on Liam.

He believed that Liam's delay had caused him to fail the test. Bryan was determined to make Liam's life miserable.

Inside the blue curtain, atop the gravity mountain, Liam was just one step away from reaching the summit.

While he had the capability to take that step, he needed a brief rest to recuperate his strength.

Based on his assumption, another jolt awaited him before he could successfully conquer the summit.

Even though he was confident he had completed the test, he was determined to excel.

He understood that this was an opportunity. By

Chapter 774 A Humillating Ex

 +120 Points at most demonstrating his strength, he could improve his standing within the Salvation Society and expedite his path to seeking revenge.

 I want no ads >