The Ex-Husband's Revenge chapter 2473

“Brat, how dare you?” “You’re just a vice president of some company. You aren’t even worthy enough to be Miss Morrison’s servant. What makes you think you deserve to be her boyfriend?”

“That’s right. If you know what’s best for yourself, you should leave her now, or you’ll suffer!”

The others snapped out of it and exploded with anger.

They all turned to Loen in rage, desperate to take him away.

If glares could kill, Leon would have died a million times by now.

“But,” Renee’s expression darkened. She desperately wanted to explain herself, but could not find her words.

In contrast to her reaction, Leon was far calmer.

Because of his relationship with Iris and the others, he was constantly the enemy of all eligible bachelors back in Springfield City, so he was used to this situation.

Besides, Renee was not his girlfriend and this was merely a misunderstanding.

He opened his mouth to explain the situation to everyone when something else happened.

“Everyone’s right. Brat, I don’t care who you are. You have one chance. If you know what’s best for you, leave the western region right now. Don’t ever step foot here again, or suffer the consequences!” Just then, a cold voice rose.

A man in his late twenties strode in with two bodyguards, his expression dark.

He was none other than the son of the Western Boss, Felton Fermer.

Like the Southern Boss, the Western Boss was one of the western region’s big shots.

His gang became one of the most influential forces after years of development, second to only the Morrisons.

As his son, Felton was extremely talented.

Since the western region produced an abundant supply of rare herbs, he long reached the Intermediate Emperor State with the help of rare herbs.

In terms of achievement in martial arts, the only person who could rival him was Hugo.

Both he and Hugo were known as the brightest of their generation in the western region and he was also one of the Thirteen Greats.

They both reached the Intermediate Emperor State, but since Felton was a few years younger, he was slightly weaker than Hugo but had great growth potential.

If everything went well, he would soon surpass Hugo and become the brightest star in the youngest generation.

“That’s the son of the Wester Boss, Mister Fermer!”

The others turned around and were all shocked when they spotted Felton.

Felton was one of the most brilliant people in the youngest generation and he held a much higher position compared to the others.

They could only dream of matching him in terms of status, so they all stepped back in unison to make way for Felton.

Felton was pleased that everyone made way for him and strode forward with two of his bodyguards.

“I told you to scram. Are you deaf?” He approached and stared at Leon in contempt.

He arrived just in time to overhear the conversation earlier and learned that Leon was Renee’s boyfriend. On top of that, he also learned that Leon was merely a puny vice president from the southern region.

As the son of the Western Boss, Leon was just as powerless as an insect and he had no respect for him.

“Who do you think you are? Who are you to tell me to scram? ” Leon’s expression darkened and he shot Felton a displeased look.

He initially intended to clarify that he was not Renee’s boyfriend, yet Felton appeared out of nowhere and told him to leave arrogantly.

This enraged Leon and he decided not to explain himself.

With his current status and strength, no one in the youngest generation could harm him.

“What?” The crowd gasped in shock and everyone stared at Leon in disbelief.

They all knew that Felton was the Western Boss's son, which made him one of the most powerful men in his generation.

To their bewilderment, an outsider like Leon, who was merely a vice president of a firm they never heard of, dared to challenge Felton.

Instantly, they were stunned, thinking that Leon had a death wish.

Even Renee was shocked. She tugged at his arm and whispered, "Hugh, this guy is the son of the Western Boss.

Be careful. Don't provoke him."

She was the eldest daughter of the Morrissions whose status rivaled that of Felton, so she had nothing to fear from him.

However, the same could not be said about Hugh.

She knew that Hugh was merely a vice president in Cynthion Group, which meant he could not compete with Felton in terms of influence. If he crossed Felton, he would end up suffering for it.

"Son of the Western Boss, huh? So what? Is that supposed to impress me?"

Leon scoffed in contempt.

Based on how others addressed Felton, he already guessed that Felton was the Son of the Western Boss.

compare Arthur and the Southern Boss in terms of status, which made him an equal to Caleb and the Western Boss.

It was not an exaggeration to say that he would have nothing to fear from the Western Boss himself, not to mention his son, Felton.

"Has he gone mad?" The others were utterly shaken.

They initially assumed Leon dared to challenge Felton because he did not know who he was.

To their bewilderment, Leon remained arrogant and contemptuous toward Felton despite Renee reminding him.

They could not figure out how a man like Leon could summon such courage to challenge the son of the Western Boss.
