

Chapter 811 Apologies For Mismanagement

The general manager's disdainful sneer cut through the air, aimed squarely at Liam. "Liam, do you think I don't know who you are? Do you honestly believe you're still the heir to the Hoffman family? Wake up to reality!"

At that moment, a well-groomed, sturdy man walked by. This individual held a prominent position in Salem, none other than Nolan Murray, the clandestine owner of the Nightingale Villa and the brother of Tristan who was the wealthiest figure in Salem.

He seemed a little drunk and was accompanied by two models on either arm and a small entourage of bodyguards. Catching wind of the commotion at the sales office, he came over to see what was happening.

Upon spotting Liam, Nolan rubbed his eyes in disbelief, and then cold sweat broke out on his back, dispelling most of his drunkenness.

Following the news of Liam's return with the status of a five-star general, Tristan held numerous family meetings, repeatedly showcasing Liam's photos.

The general manager's disdainful sneer cut through the air, aimed squarely at Liam. "Liam, do you think I don't know who you are? Do you honestly believe you're still the heir to the Hoffman family? Wake up to reality!"

At that moment, a well-groomed, sturdy man walked by. This individual held a prominent position in Salem, none other than Nolan Murray, the clandestine owner of the Nightingale Villa and the brother of Tristan who was the wealthiest figure in Salem.

He seemed a little drunk and was accompanied by two models on either arm and a small entourage of bodyguards. Catching wind of the commotion at the sales office, he came over to see what was happening. Upon spotting Liam, Nolan rubbed his eyes in disbelief, and then cold sweat broke out on his back, dispelling most of his drunkenness.

Following the news of Liam's return with the status of a five-star general, Tristan held numerous family meetings, repeatedly showcasing Liam's photos.

Top executives stressed the importance of establishing friendship with Liam at all costs. Even if that was unattainable, they must avoid becoming enemies with Liam.

As the wealthiest figure in Salem, Tristan knew precisely who to appease and who not to offend.

that was unattainable, they must avoid becoming enemies with Liam.

As the wealthiest figure in Salem, Tristan knew precisely who to appease and who not to offend. Nolan, his brother, also grasped this principle.

Now, beholding Liam in person, Nolan knew this was an extraordinary opportunity.

If handled skillfully, he and the Murray family stood to gain significantly. Yet, mishandling the situation could lead to the Murray family being ousted from Salem.

Instinctively, Nolan dismissed the models and approached Liam with a genial demeanor. "Are you here to buy a house, sir?"

Liam nodded, inquiring, "And who might you be?"

Introducing himself, Nolan extended an offer. "I'm the owner here. Seeing you here is an honor. Choose any house in our Nightingale Villa Area today, and I'll grant you a fifty percent discount."

Upon hearing this, the general manager standing behind Nolan grew anxious. He had taken a bribe from Casper, and if this crucial matter wasn't resolved, it could lead to significant repercussions and potential offenses.

Hastening forward, the general manager interjected, "Boss, don't be deceived by this young man. He doesn't have the money to purchase a house. He's just here to stir up trouble!"

Hearing this, Nolan's expression shifted dramatically, an unsettling feeling creeping over him. Had this blockheaded subordinate offended Liam already?

The thought sent a chill down Nolan's spine.

Assuming his words had swayed Nolan's opinion of Liam, the general manager continued, "Boss, leave this to me. I can handle this nuisance."

Infuriated, Nolan slapped the manager. "You imbecile! Is this how you treat our customers? How did Nightingale Villa Area hire someone like you? Leave! Head to the accountant's office for your salary. You're fired."

The resounding slap left everyone in the sales office, including Liam, shocked by Nolan's unexpected reaction.

However, Liam's purpose here was to buy Nightingale Villa Area Number One, so he paid no attention to the incident. "Can I proceed with the purchase? If so, provide me with a price, and I'll arrange for an immediate transfer of money."

Nolan, now composed, said to Liam respectfully, "Sir, please accept my apologies. Due to my negligence, my inept subordinate has offended you. I wouldn't

Chapter 811 Apologies For... +120 Points at most dare request payment. How about this? Consider Nightingale Villa Area Number One a gift from us to you.*