Julie swiftly responded, "Mom, what are you saying? Liam is part of our family. Please don't say that again!"

Upon hearing those supportive words, Liam felt a sense of satisfaction, and much of his anger receded.

Julie's backing meant the world to him, regardless of others' opinions.

However, Yesenia seemed undeterred by Julie's defense. She retrieved the business cards she had gathered the previous night and handed them to Julie.

She insisted, "We have plenty of options now. I've paved the way for you. If Tristan isn't to your liking, choose someone better from these young talents. I won't say more. Take your time to think about it."

With that, Yesenia returned to her room, leaving Julie perplexed.

With that, Yesenia returned to her room, leaving Julie perplexed.

Liam, sensing the situation, walked out after Yesenia had closed the door.

Julie was initially taken aback at the sight of Liam. Realizing she held a stack of business cards, she swiftly hid them behind her back.

Liam understood her intentions, knowing she didn't want to upset him. He chose not to say anything about Julie and her mother's conversation and handed Asher to Julie instead.

"I'll be right back. I'll head to the bathroom," he said. Once in the bathroom, Liam dialed Bowen's number.

"General Liam, how can I assist you?"

Bowen's tone remained respectful, appreciative of the opportunities Liam had presented.

He displayed no impatience despite Liam entrusting him with numerous tasks lately. In his perspective, the more Liam sought his assistance, the more favorable it was for him.

Engaging in tasks for Liam not only brought immediate satisfaction but also promised increasing benefits down the road. Bowen found increasing benefits down the road. Bowen found genuine joy in being part of this promising venture.

In a hushed tone, Liam conveyed his plans to Bowen. "It'll be my wedding anniversary in three months. Go ahead and disclose my identity in Salem before that. We'll host a celebration when it's my wedding anniversary, and during the party, we'll delve into the future development of Salem."

Bowen, sensing Liam's somber mood, refrained from unnecessary talk. "Understood. I'll take care of it right away."

With those words, he concluded the call, feeling an unusual development in Liam's arrangements. It hinted at an imminent significant event that would unfold in Salem.

Alone in front of the mirror after the call, Liam grappled with mixed emotions.

He had to admit that Yesenia had changed a little, but her selfishness hadn't changed at all.

Now that she wanted to seek a wealthy husband for Julie, Liam would be the one she truly wanted. The time was approaching to reveal Yesenia's true character, making Julie realize the extent of her mother's bitterness and prompting her to distance herself from Yesenia.

Accompanied by Asher, Julie entered Yesenia's room.

She put the stack of business cards on the table with force, making a loud sound.

Without hesitation, she declared, "Mom, let me make this clear. I don't care who these people are. If they want to collaborate with the company, they can contact you. Don't involve me in these business discussions. I have no interest."

She continued, "Liam is my husband, and we're a family. I don't want any conflicts. Today, I'll take him to the company to familiarize him with the business. You could help take Asher to school."

Upon hearing that, Yesenia reluctantly accepted the business cards. Her tone was cold as she remarked, "Don't waste your time. Liam can't possibly handle company matters now. You should ask him to send Asher to school every day instead. I'm not going to do that!"

Seeing her refusal, Julie intended to personally take Asher to kindergarten before joining Liam at the company.
