In the hospital.

Looking at Ruth, who was still in a coma, something occurred to Liam. He instructed Bowen to send two people to guard her room.

Now that he was involved in her problem, Liam decided to help her till the end.

He also asked Bowen to find a job for her in the government so that she could make a living in peace. After all, she was a stranger and Liam would not always be there to protect her.

It was late at night. After a long day outdoors, Asher was so tired that he dozed off in his father's arms. Liam had to bring his son home, so he left the hospital.

On the way, Liam called Purple, the acting leader of the group who stayed in Invone, to inquire about the investigation. "Is there any progress?" he asked.

It was late at night. After a long day outdoors, Asher was so tired that he dozed off in his father's arms. Liam had to bring his son home, so he left the hospital.

On the way, Liam called Purple, the acting leader of the group who stayed in Invone, to inquire about the investigation. "Is there any progress?" he asked.

Purple replied, "Currently, I have a preliminary understanding of the situation. Invone is completely under the control of the Duncan family. The original four major families have been transferred to a relatively-developed western area called Willsden to serve the Duncan family."

"Is that all?" Liam asked, frowning at the lack of adequate information.

After a pause, Purple murmured, "There is some bad news. A member of our group disappeared while he was investigating the Duncan family. After digging around, I found out that there was a strong aura of primogem in the Duncan family. It's very likely that there are powerful Primogem Warriors. So we can't act rashly for the time being."

Liam contemplated this new piece of information for a while. "Okay. Now that I'm up-to-date about the situation, you'd better get the team out of Invone quickly. Go step by step. First, head to Willsden to get intel. It will be safer to start with the four major families. After I wrap things up in Salem, I'll come to meet you," he ordered.

A plan was forming in Liam's mind.

In Salem, his biggest problem was the Kingland Group, and it was time to take back the Group. After all, it was the fruit of his painstaking labor. He could also get the knowledge of the current situation of the Hoffman family this way.

Liam began to chart out a plan to revenge. But it wouldn't be possible for him to do this personally in Salem. A lot of it would have to be handled by Bowen, which was quite troublesome.

So, he had to take care of a few minor issues.

He ordered Purple to send one of his men immediately to Salem to help him.

Liam didn't even have much money with him now. So, he contacted the Ministry of Defense and asked them to send him an unlimited credit card as soon as possible.

By the time Liam finished these calls, he arrived at home.

When Liam opened the door to his bedroom, he found Julie was asleep. A strong smell of alcohol emanated from her. He knew that he was the reason for her drinking. He had hurt her deeply.

Liam sat next to her and leaned against the headboard. He gently stroked Julie's face, running his fingertips over the wrinkles on her face.

Liam knew that these years must have been so exhausting for her.

Thinking about today's argument, Liam felt very guilty.

If Julie hadn't been with him, she would have never suffered so much. Julie was not only beautiful but also talented. She could have lived a noble and wealthy life.

And the main culprits behind all this were that mysterious man and the Duncan family!

Liam made up his mind to make them pay and avenge his family. He swore that he would seek out
