

Arabella 411

Chapter 411

“Whoa, am I seeing this right? They actually agreed? This client must be loaded”

“I so wish I could land a billion-dollar project”

“Just what kind of job is worth a billion?”

Arabella opened the system sent by the client on her phone, and it was way more complex than she had anticipated. There was no way she could crack it in half an hour.

At that moment, Romeo walked in after a phone call. Seeing that she hadn't touched her food and was still on her phone, he couldn't help but ask, “Are you working or something?”

“Nope” Arabella put away her phone and looked at the dozen or so dishes in front of her. “Why did you order so much food?”

She hadn't noticed earlier, but he'd ordered a ton of food in a flash..

“There are some new dishes. I thought you might want to try them. What do you think?”

Meanwhile

Carl was stunned when Alex logged off after receiving the money. Was Alex going to take off?

Everyone said Alex was amazing, with a 100% success rate on tasks, but they were all stories. This was their first time working with Alex!

If he really took off.

After some thought, Carl couldn't help but call Romeo.

This was the fourth time Romeo had received a call from Carl that day, and he was getting a bit impatient. “You better have something important to say.” Carl had the audacity to interrupt his date.

“Mr. McMillan, Alex took the money and logged off! I'm worried he.”

Losing some money was one thing, but the system was something they'd worked hard to get.

"So our engagement." Yolanda was on the verge of tears.

Zachary firmly stated, "We're not calling it off!"

"I'll tell them, the engagement party goes on as planned!"

“Zachary, you’re so good to me.” Yolanda buried her face in his chest, her eyes flashing with satisfaction.

Meanwhile.

After breakfast, Romeo took Arabella to Summerfield’s largest amusement park. It was Saturday, and the place was packed.

“Have you been here before?” Romeo asked softly, looking down at Arabella.

Arabella, seeing his conversation winding down, got up and walked towards him.

Romeo immediately pulled her into his arms and said, “Why don’t you take a break? It’s pretty hot here”

“We’re up next”

Romeo saw a hint of jealousy in the girl’s eyes and smiled warmly. Leaning close to her ear, he asked in a low voice, “Are you jealous?”

Was Arabella coming over to assert to the other girls that this man was hers?

“You’re overthinking: Arabella responded coolly, her face stunningly beautiful.

After a while, it was their turn. Arabella looked at the merry-go-round ahead of her. Although she wasn’t particularly interested, there were so many rides in the amusement park that she didn’t know what to pick, so she just got on it, moving gracefully.

Arabella found the amusement park games too basic and pulled out the map to look for something more exciting, like roller coasters.

“Are you afraid of heights?” Arabella asked the man in front of her.

“The only thing I’m scared of is you.” Romeo looked at her and said, word by word, “I’m scared you won’t like me, that you’ll leave me. I’m not scared of anything else.”

Arabella was a little taken aback by his confession and just walked ahead.

Romeo kept pace with her and took her hand. “Arabella, are you afraid of heights?”

If she was, they could switch to another game.

Arabella smiled, thinking, “Of course I’m not scared.”

“What do you really like about me?” Arabella asked, raising her eyes

Romeo gently caressed her face, saying softly. "I like everything about you, your eyes, your mouth, every expression, the way you look when you're angry, jealous, happy I like your unique vibe and the sparkle in your eyes when you look at me"

Arabella shrugged off his words, "So, basically, you're just a sucker for a pretty face. I only have eyes for you." Romeo quickly corrected, "Everything about you. I love it." Arabella's heart warmed at his words, quickly changing the subject, "So, where to next?" "You decide"

Arabella picked out some thrilling attractions and went on a rafting adventure together. In the narrow waterway, Romeo cradled her in his arms, both wearing faces full of joy.

Next stop the haunted house.

Romeo's gaze landed on the haunted house not too far away. If Arabella got scared, he could protect her!

"Let's do this one," Arabella said casually, "Let's check it out."

She was curious to see whether the haunted house was scarier than the "triangular zone" she had experienced.

she was going shopping rather than embarking on an adventure. She was braver than he had imagined. Before entering the haunted house, they had to pass through a narrow, dark passage.

Arabella hid behind Romeo, looking at his handsome profile She suddenly felt a warmth in her heart.

One by one, the enemies fell under his fists Arabella was a bit puzzled. These guys were so weak. Who gave them the guts even to try and assassinate them?

These guys needed some serious training when they got back. They were so weak, and it's laughable.

Before long, Romeo kicked the last enemy into the corner of the wall. The man screamed in pain, his head bleeding from the impact

Listening to the painful screams echoing throughout the room, Romeo softly told the girl behind him, "Arabella, turn around and cover your ears."

"Okay" Arabella knew what was about to happen and obediently followed his command.

Romeo's eyes filled with a cold light. He stomped on one of the men's hands, his voice icy, "Who sent you here?"

"Ah The man fainted from the pain of hearing his own bones breaking.

“Me, I mean we’re out of this business from now on, never to be involved in this sort of thing again!” The guy was so terrified that tears streamed down his face. Panicked, he forgot his dignity and knelt down to beg, “Please, have mercy and let us go!”

Romeo sneered, “You should be grateful she’s here.”

Everyone shivered in fear. Did Romeo mean that if it weren’t for the girl’s presence, he would have killed them all to avoid scaring her?

Who was this girl? Some rich family’s darling daughter?

If they had known, they would have kidnapped her instead! Romeo was too hard to deal with! A girl would have been an easier target. This was what the assassins were thinking.

Romeo stood up, pulled out his phone and called Carl, “Need you to come over and handle something.”

As soon as he finished speaking, he noticed someone trying to sneak away.

“Who said you could move?”

The guy was so scared he nearly lost his soul. He quickly lay back down, shivering uncontrollably.

Only then did Romeo walk over to Arabella and hold her hand, gently saying, “Don’t be scared. I’m here.”

"You, you're the epitome of stupidity!" Zachary's mom slammed the table angrily, her headache becoming unbearable and her heart starting to hurt.

"Look at what you've done to your poor mom!" Mr. Panter quickly comforted his wife, then said, "Next Monday is the wedding date we originally agreed on. I'm only going to ask you once, are you sure you want to get engaged to her?"

"I'm sure!" Zachary's responded firm as if he had already decided to give everything for love.

"Alright, I respect your decision!"

"Honey!" Mrs. Panter wanted to say something, but Mr. Panter signaled her to calm down. It's just an engagement party. Let's let the Murphy family lower their guard first. If they did something to disappoint Zachary, he can always call off the wedding.

"But we're old now, so you'll have to handle all the arrangements for the engagement party and the guests yourself." Mr. Panter clearly didn't think much of the Murphy family's daughter or care about the wedding party.

"Do you think someone comfortable taking on high-paying tasks would be willing to work for others?" Romeo shot back.

True, folks took on tasks online because they can choose their own hours, not chained to a fixed work schedule.

“Plus, he cracked the existing system and set up a new one in less than half a day. With his skills and capabilities, why would he be content working with the rest of the team, stuck in a lab all day?”

He can create a new system by himself. What did he need others for? Would they just get in his way?

Carl admitted this made sense, but letting go of such an expert was a shame!

This guy was definitely beyond their research team!

If they could recruit such talent, it would be a huge boost for the future development of their group.

“How about we give him a cut of the profits?”

As for working hours, he can come and go as he pleases! As long as he can help us build a more powerful system or invest in other research?”

“Instead, why not just give him another hundred million to set up a whole new system.”
