

Arabella 641

Chapter 641

Chasel was once again taken aback, but after all, it was just a verbal promise, and he wasn't completely buying it.

"If I have to give up my status and position to be with her, I wouldn't hesitate to chuck everything I have now."

Even if he had to live as an ordinary person for the rest of his life, as long as Bella was there, he would be the happiest man in the world.

Getting her was like getting the whole world. Enough said.

"Easy to say, but damn hard when it actually comes to giving up."

Romeo got Chasel's point.

I'll say it to you. If one day you guys feel that Bella is being wronged by me, or if "The moment the mission ended, the boss flew straight back, without even taking a break! We were so exhausted last night that we could fall asleep standing up!"

"The boss is really jealous of your brothers, who got to see you first. You might not believe it, but he felt really bad about not being able to buy you a gift himself."

"I gotta say, the boss really values you. Whenever he gets a chance, he asks the other brothers about you. But they always brag about how close they are with you in front of him, making him both envious and helpless."

Hearing this, Arabella looked towards the silhouette having a conversation with Romeo, feeling even warmer inside.

So, having a brother who cared and loved her this much was such a wonderful thing.

"By the way, the boss didn't know you were his sister last night. If he knew, he definitely wouldn't have invited you to join." The man didn't finish his sentence, as if he remembered something, and quickly shut up.

Kelly, who was standing nearby, was a bit curious: "Join what?"

They couldn't reveal the Ministry of State Security, but Kelly was still surprised. "You guys met last night? What Chasel invited you to join couldn't be?"

Chapter 642

Before she could even finish, a few of the underlings hastily made a motion to silence her, signaling her not to spill the beans.

Mya and Joyce were completely clueless as to what was going on.

At that moment, Chasel and Romeo wrapped up their conversation and started heading their way.

The sunlight radiated off them, making their tall, leggy figures even more striking. They were absolute hunks.

Mya and Joyce were gobsmacked. Just how many people would these two overshadow if they stepped into the entertainment industry?

"Sorry for the wait." Romeo ruffled Arabella's hair affectionately.

Meanwhile, Chasel was rolling his eyes and saying, Not this again! Didn't he promise to tone it down in public? But here he was, being all lovey-dovey again.

Arabella shot Chasel a glance and asked in a soft voice, "Are you done?"

"Yep." Catching his sister's gaze, Chasel quickly added, "I was gentle and polite, I didn't lose my temper." "I will pick you up and take you home for dinner, then we'll drop you back at school," Romeo stated their final

"Yes, boss!"

"Go run ten laps around the field."

Did they hear that right?

"Boss, this is someone else's school."

Running aimlessly around someone else's sports field, and for ten laps at that, seemed a bit inappropriate, didn't it?

"So, you're suggesting you run around the entire Summerfield instead?"

"No, we definitely didn't mean that!"

"With so many girls at the school, this is your chance to show off in front of them. What if someone takes a shine to you?"

The underlings: What the heck! They were pretty darn desirable too, okay! They had achieved a lot over the years, and their good looks were more than enough to make them stand out in any crowd!

Chapter 643

But Chasel clearly had no intention of letting them off the hook.

Man! Who would have thought that after Arabella left, the Minister turned back into that cold, sarcastic, and sneaky guy?

They really missed Arabella just now.

If she was still here, the minister surely wouldn't bother them.

Did Arabella know she has such a fickle brother?

Sigh, they got to face reality! They had to hit the pavement.

When they went for a run, Chasel took out his phone and texted David on WhatsApp first.

Chasel stared at his phone for a while, then thought of something and forwarded what he had just sent to David to Hans.

Hans almost immediately replied: [Touched only once? What is there to brag about?]

[Only going back for four days? That's hundreds of hours less than the time I spent with Bella.]

[In Bella's eyes, you're a stranger, not like me. I've already made a place in her heart.]

[Bella likes quiet and usually doesn't like to be disturbed. If there's nothing important, try not to call or message her. If there's an emergency, you can tell me, and I'll pass it on for you.]

After receiving these replies, Chasel was very depressed, thinking: As if I'd believe you!

Didn't expect Hans to change too. In order to fight for the position in his sister's heart, he would even make up such lies.

[Bella just told me that she likes chatting with me best. She wants me to call or message her whenever I have time.] Chasel quickly sent the message after editing it, deliberately making Hans uncomfortable.

[I've taken a screenshot.] Hans wasn't easy to mess with either: [I'm going to send this screenshot to Bella right now to verify its authenticity.]

This was too shameless!

Chapter 644

Louisa, arm in arm with Kenneth, walked out of the office, with the director respectfully seeing them off.

"Take care, Mr. and Mrs. Collins."

Once outside, Louisa only saw Chasel. Where was everyone else?

"Where's Bella?" Kenneth asked, "I haven't had a chance to chat with her."

"She's still at her extracurricular activities. She'll be home for dinner after she's done."

"Awesome!" Louisa hadn't expected her daughter, who'd been staying at school for so long, to finally be coming home.

She had been eating and sleeping poorly these past few days, constantly worrying if Arabella was cold or hungry at school or if she was being bullied.

Kenneth happily said, "Finally, you can sleep peacefully tonight! Because Bella's coming home for dinner, we should ask the kitchen to prepare more of her favorite food, like those Australian prawns from last time."

Chasel thought for a moment, took out his phone, and called an elder.

"Mr. Jarvis, it's me."

"Chasel, hahaha, what brought you to call me today?" A hearty laugh came from the other end of the phone.

"To be honest, I need a favor from you, Mr. Jarvis."

The voice on the phone remained cheerful: "Shoot."

"Well, I have a friend who is exceptionally gifted in medicine and has great ambitions. She's a rare medical prodigy, and I'd like to ask Mr. Jarvis to personally tutor her."

Last night, Bella mentioned that she would work in the medical field after graduation to help more people.

Chapter 645

This meant her ambition was here!

Mr. Jarvis was a big shot in the medical world. If he could personally guide Bella, then Bella was definitely going to be the brightest star in the medical field of Solterra in the future!

On the phone, Mr. Jarvis seemed surprised. He didn't expect Chasel, always independent and resolute, to actually call him for help.

He curiously asked, "Is this person you're talking about important to you?"

Thinking of his sister, Chasel's tone became softer: "Actually, she's my long-lost sister."

"Bella?"

"You know her?" At this point, Chasel felt surprised. How did Mr. Jarvis know what his sister's name was?

Mr. Jarvis laughed on the phone, waving his hands, and said, "I can't teach her."

"Mr. Jarvis?"

"He has a high position and a great responsibility; it's hard and dangerous. I guess this time he won't be able to stay for long. Alright, you go have dinner with him and don't participate in the upcoming extracurricular activities. Go home and have a good time with your family."

Over the years, Bella has hardly felt the warmth of family. Now that her other brother was back, there's one more person to love her, and that's a good thing.

Hearing President Barton say this, Arabella replied, "That won't do."

"As for your classmates, don't care about their opinions. At the beginning of the school's enrollment, we publicly announced that as long as the top scorer comes, everything is up to the top scorer; the school won't say you're late or absent for no reason. This is your privilege so use it well!"

Arabella laughed and said, "Chasel and I will have dinner tonight, you don't have to worry. As for the experiment, I'll do it when I get there."

"Alright."

Without her, he really couldn't complete it alone.

Chapter 646

In the evening, a swanky yet low-key car pulled up at the school gate.

Two tall and handsome dudes stood by the car, their striking appearance and height drawing quite a bit of attention.

"OMG, look over there! Those two dudes are seriously hot!"

"Are they waiting for someone?"

"I wonder if they have girlfriends. Let's go ask for their numbers!"

Some of the girls tried to approach them, but they were politely blocked by the driver.

Both men were looking towards the school, seemingly waiting for someone, and they chatted occasionally.

Their good looks and charisma made it hard to look away.

Finally, a girl walked out of the school gates and headed their way.

Since she was sitting close, Arabella naturally heard Carl's voice on the phone.

Romeo was initially about to blow his top, but upon catching Arabella's gaze, he swallowed his anger.

"Great timing."

After hanging up, Romeo instructed the driver to make a pit stop at McMillan Corporation, then told Arabella, "You and Chasel go home and have dinner first; don't wait for me. I'll come over as soon as I've handled everything."

"Alright, be nice."

"Don't worry."

Since Arabella asked him to, he reluctantly agreed not to lose his temper at anyone.

Finally, only the driver, Chasel, and Arabella were left in the car.

Chasel was delighted to have his sister's company all to himself. David had warned him before that Romeo would constantly monopolize his sister's time, and having alone time with her was harder than climbing to the sky.

But it seemed like David had been worrying too much.

Chasel was filled with joy. Looking at the obedient girl beside him, his heart was brimming with warmth.

Chapter 647

His sister looked really pretty, well-behaved, and talented.

"Did you study medicine with Mr. Jarvis before?"

Arabella was a bit surprised. "How did you know?"

Chasel told her the story, plain and simple.

Arabella didn't expect that Chasel would go to Mr. Jarvis for help.

"Mr. Jarvis said your medical skills have surpassed his. I underestimated you that day. I was thinking of inviting you to join us."

He didn't mention the Ministry of State Security, fearing eavesdropping.

How could they possibly recruit Dr. Bell?

Such a considerate and lovely girl, and the Murphy family treated her like this!

Thinking of the Murphy family's actions, Chasel was angry. Luckily, Arabella was decisive and sent those villains to jail.

"Let me go in with you."

Arabella nodded, took a few steps, then suddenly felt something strange. She turned around to take a look.

There was nothing unusual around, but she felt like someone was watching them.

Chasel followed her gaze and asked quietly, "What are you looking at?"

"Nothing." Arabella thought, Was it Chasel's identity that attracted "enemies"? But with Chasel's position, how could he be discovered by the enemy so easily, let alone come here?

Was she too nervous? Or was the person lurking in the dark targeting her?

The living room was filled with things Chasel bought for Arabella. Many servants were moving things to Arabella's room.

Chapter 648

"I heard girls love sweets." Chasel picked up a nearby lollipop casually, tore open the wrapper, and handed it to Arabella.

Arabella took a bite and said, "Thanks, Chasel. It's sweet."

"Ms. Bella, you're back? Chasel had some flowers planted on your balcony. They're really beautiful; you should take a look."

Previously, Hans had planted flowers on Arabella's balcony, and Chasel was no exception. However, when Arabella went up, she found that the flowers Chasel had planted were hung layer by layer on her railing, perfectly covering the flowers Hans had planted earlier.

This childish behavior made Arabella laugh.

A question came from the living room: "Why did only you come back? Where's Bella?"

"Didn't Bella come back with you?" Kenneth also asked, "Is she still at school? How could you leave her alone at school?"

As Arabella was about to go downstairs, she felt a gaze coming this way again.

"Why shouldn't I come back?" Serena looked a bit downcast and somewhat aggrieved.

Louisa quickly said, "No, I mean, aren't you participating in extracurricular activities?"

"I heard Chasel was back, so I wanted to see him. Isn't Arabella also participating in extracurricular activities?" Serena meant, wasn't Arabella back too?

She bit her lip and said, "If there's no food prepared for me at home, it's okay; I just came to see Chasel; I'll leave after a glance."

"What, is our house running out of food?" Kenneth also stood up and walked over to her, patting her shoulder with a smile and saying, "Tired, huh? Come join us for dinner."

He explained, "Your brother came back suddenly and didn't notify us in advance. We thought you were busy with extracurricular activities, so we didn't tell you, afraid you'd be too tired. Arabella happened to run into your brother at school."

Serena obviously didn't believe it. Huh? Who did they think they were fooling?

Chasel worked at the Ministry of State Security. Even if he came back suddenly, he wouldn't go to Arabella's school and not come to find her!

After all, she and Chasel had lived together for eighteen years, and Arabella had only just come back a few days ago.

Chapter 649

Dad lied without batting an eye, did he really think he can pull the wool over her eyes?

Instead, it's the sharp Louisa who suddenly turned to Martha on the side and asked, "Did you spill the beans on Serena?"

"Serena has been missing Chasel. When Chasel suddenly came back today, I was so excited that I let the cat out of the bag." Martha added, lowering her head on purpose, "I'm sorry, madam, it's all my fault!"

Louisa was left speechless, as if she didn't want Serena to see Chasel!

"Serena's back?" Chasel saw his other sister, treated her no differently, and gently said, "Come eat."

"Chasel, you're finally back! It's been so many months since our last meet-up; I missed you so much!" Serena's eyes turned red as soon as she saw Chasel, as if she had been wronged.

"You're all grown up and still crying?" Chasel laughed and pulled out a chair for her. "I've been busy with work, and now Bella is back home, so I'll try to come back whenever I can."

A servant bowed and handed Serena her cutlery: "Serena, here's your cutlery."

"I was born with it," Arabella spoke the truth.

Edith, on the side, keeping a poker face, tried to defuse the situation: "Ms. Bella's skin is naturally good, just like the madam!"

"Yes, yes, yes, I never get sunburned, no matter how much sun I get." Louisa laughed.

"Is it genetic?" Serena lowered her head, feeling like she had no connection with this family.

The atmosphere became awkward once again.

Just then, a voice came over, saying, "Sorry, I'm late."

It was Romeo!

Hearing his voice, Serena's eyes lit up again. Was Romeo also coming home for dinner?

"Romeo, have you finished all your stuff?" Kenneth brought over a chair himself and said, "Come over; we're about to start dinner."

He placed the chair next to Serena and said, "Serena, stand up and give your seat to Romeo."

Chapter 650

Serena was originally sitting next to Arabella, but once Kenneth finished speaking, she had to awkwardly stand up and vacate her seat.

A servant moved Serena's chair next to Louisa. After Serena sat down, she noticed Romeo and Chasel both serving Arabella food.

"Tastes good," Arabella said. "They did a good job with the shrimp."

"I've never tasted my mom's cooking before." Chasel also took a bite. Surprised, he looked at Louisa and asked, "Did you do this all by yourself?"

"Is it good?" Louisa asked with a hint of pride, "Bet you didn't expect my cooking skills to be so on point."

"My wife's cooking is top-notch!" Kenneth tasted a bite, nodded repeatedly, and praised, "This meat is tender and firm, even better than a professional chef!"

"Indeed, it tastes good; let me try my dad's cooking." Chasel took a piece of braised abalone, and his eyes lit up. He didn't expect his sister's homecoming to inspire his parents' culinary skills.

During the meal, Serena tried every means to let Chasel serve her alone, wanting Arabella to know that in this family, Chasel listened to her, she was the one truly loved by the Collins family for eighteen years!

"You're such a princess," Kenneth laughed. "Look at Bella; she doesn't need to bother Chasel."

"It's because Chasel spoils me," Serena pretended to be happy.

After dinner, Arabella received a message from her subordinates.

[Boss, there's no one at your front door.]

No one? Did that person leave?

"I'm going out for a bit; wait for me here."

After Arabella left, Romeo and Chasel looked at each other, feeling somewhat puzzled.
