

The Princess and the Pauper (Arabella)

Chapter 929

Chapter 929

Could it be that the place where his sister went was the location that Carol left behind?

He was worried about the dangers, that's why she didn't let him follow.

Upon a closer look, Romeo, who had returned with his sister, had also deceived him.

He and Bella's wedding plans were not even settled yet, and they were already teaming up to deceive him.

Clark decided to go and "settle the score" with them.

"Clark, don't get upset. She just wanted you to rest more since you're injured" Donald hurriedly followed, trying to explain, "The boss didn't tell you because she didn't want you to worry and lose sleep."

Outside.

Romeo, with his head lowered, asked the girl in front of him, "Where do you want to go?"

Off to the side, Dennis was anxiously whispering, "Arabella, we're running out of time."

"Can I tell you later?" Arabella wasn't sure what was happening, but she had a hunch it had something to do with the person Dennis mentioned that day.

That person was probably not going to make it.

"Be careful with everything and call me anytime if there's any situation."

Romeo didn't want to restrict her freedom or ask too many questions about what she was up to. He gave her great trust and space.

"Come back soon," He gently patted Arabella's head, like reminding a child.

A subordinate handed an umbrella, Dennis took it first, waiting for Arabella to take the first step.

"I'll be back soon; we can keep in touch."

Arabella's words seemed to put Romeo's mind at ease, his expression softened.

Seeing him smile, Arabella and Dennis left together. Her slender figure slowly left Romeo's sight.

Romeo watched her leave, with a complex expression on his face. Tom held his breath for a while before finally saying, "Don't worry, Mr. McMillian, the boss just went to take care of some business, she'll be back soon enough."

Romeo still stood there, watching the car drive away into the distance, no one knew what he was thinking.

"Dennis was in such a hurry, must be something urgent that he needs the boss' help."

"He rarely comes here."

"There's no choice but to help him, the boss owes him a favor."

No one knew who said the last sentence, but Romeo's gaze fell on him as he curiously asked, "Owes him a favor?"

"Didn't the boss tell you?" The man realized he had misspoken, quickly covering his mouth, but it was already too late.

Romeo's gaze was too intense for him to bear, so he looked to Tom for help.

Tom could only briefly explain the situation.

Even though it was brief, Romeo's heart still ached.

So, before he knew Bella, she had already suffered so much.

Some hardships, even men couldn't bear, but she persisted.

Just as Clark was about to step out of the castle door, he saw Romeo walking back with an umbrella, step by step up the stairs.

"Clark!"

The tone of Romeo's voice felt like he was a bit surprised.

Clark's face was gloomy, "It's one thing for Bella to act recklessly, but how could you join her? In the middle of the night, in torrential rain, if something happened, I would feel guilty and miserable for the rest of my life.

Although you can protect her, it's the unexpected that's terrifying."

Donald, standing nearby, pleaded with Romeo with his eyes.

He didn't mean to spill the beans.

Because he mentioned that Dennis owed Bella a favor, they wasted some time, and that's why things escalated to that point.

"We finally found Bella in our family, and I don't want anything to happen to her. I especially don't want her to be in trouble because of me, can you understand that?"
