

Arabella 1589

Chapter 1589

Looking to leave?

Guess that would have to wait until New Year's Eve.

"Listen to me." Martha began to strategize for Serena again.

A spark lit up in Serena's eyes. Yes, that was a plan worth trying.

Meanwhile.

Hans was about to hit the sack when his phone buzzed with a breaking news alert, [The Most Charming Matchmaker, David.]

Puzzled, he tapped on the notification and discovered that during a concert segment, David played cupid, helping his fans propose successfully, even distributing wedding favors to the crowd.

Though the house was heated, the chill was still biting.

Luckily, Edith was still up. Praising Romeo for his thoughtfulness, she tiptoed to Arabella's room, gently opened the door, and quietly tucked her in.

Seeing that their video call was still connected, Edith inwardly swooned at how sweet they were. She hadn't realized Ms. Bella needed to video chat with Mr. McMillian every night before sleeping.

After leaving a nightlight on, she slipped out quietly.

Romeo watched the peaceful face of the girl, who must have been exhausted, not even stirring when Edith came and went.

In the past, the slightest noise would have woken her.

What he didn't realize was that it was his presence, his voice, that gave Arabella a sense of security.
