

Arabella 1668

Chapter 1668

Jack promptly sent over several vintage videos. They were grainy and aged, but you could still make out the genders of the people on screen. Then Jack shot through some documents, including screenshots of bank transfers and more.

"Boss, this is as clear as day - we've got a case of a mistress ordering a hit. Carol's mom was taken out by this homewrecker. We gonna do something about it?"

Arabella sifted through all the documents before grasping the full picture.

It had been Crystal Temple's birthday, and both families had planned a fun-filled day at the amusement park. But Carol's family of four got there first. Later, tragedy struck when Crystal's family got into a car accident, and Carol's mom rushed to help.

Lurking in the distance was a truck, eyeing the scene, but the busy street and the crowd deterred any direct action. If things escalated, there would surely be an investigation.

hit Crystal's family was fraught with guilt and fear, insisting switched lanes, accelerated, and plowed straight toward them. The a million to ram into someone. Desperate due to poverty and medical debts plaguing his covered her tracks perfectly, not realizing that even the most meticulous 900 grand upon completion. But since the driver died at the scene, leaving no witnesses, his driver had traded his life for, but Maureen refused to pay up. She knew that for something like this, they couldn't just go to the police. They had to swallow

Maureen might renege on the deal, the truck driver had secretly saved all the records in dire need of cash, the matter slowly surfaced. The documents

Arabella couldn't believe that to become the lady of the Brooks family, that woman could harbor such malicious intentions.

Although Carol's birth mother didn't die on the spot, she was left permanently disabled. With Carol sent to an orphanage and her brother Dennis sold to a rural village, their mother died of illness, unable to find her children.

And all the hardships Carol later endured could be traced back to this woman!! If it weren't for her hiring a hitman, none of this would have happened!!

At that moment, the Brooks family was in the midst of a heated argument.

"You clearly know that girl from QY, why won't you help out your sister? It's just a matter of speaking up! Is it really that hard?" Maureen was fuming.