

Arabella 301

Chapter 301

He was beefing up his crew and gang so easily, as if the heavens were giving him a hand, and he couldn't turn it down!

Arabella must've figured out what he was thinking, and she scoffed, "I'm not afraid of owing a debt, I'm just worried you won't have the guts to take me in."

Keith burst out laughing, "You're hilarious. I'm a gang leader, of course, I can handle you!"

The more he looked at Arabella, the more appealing she seemed. Even though she was a girl, the icy cool aura she radiated was totally badass.

Romeo looked at Arabella, "I didn't expect you to be so young and already a gang leader."

"So are you."

They were about the same age, really.

Romeo looked into Arabella's eyes, like an adult asking a child, "Do you know where we are?"

They were in the triangular zone, up against the vicious Mafia Wolf. She, a girl, dared to barge in with just one subordinate?

“You said the previous price was off the table and asked me to quote again, didn’t you?” Arabella muttered, “You’re not thinking of backing out now, are you?” “You” Keith was at a loss for words.

“As a gang leader, don’t you have any credibility?”

Keith suddenly realized something, “You two know each other? You plan to team up to scam the cinnamon tennis from me at a low price? Mafia C and Mafia Flame are in cahoots, just to rip me off? Aren’t you afraid of being laughed at?”

“So, you are thinking of backing out?” Romeo asked casually.

“Fine, I back out!”

Between the $300 million and credibility, he chose the former!

One of his men tiptoed up to Keith’s ear and whispered, “Keith, there are Mafia C guys all over the place, we’d better be careful.”

In the plush cabin

Romeo had Arabella sitting on his lap, gently stroking her soft hair. "How many secrets are you hiding from me?" Arabella sheepishly avoided his gaze. "Not a lot," she thought, "although more than the fingers on both hands."

"Are you after the cinnamomum tenuis because of my grandma's condition? Romeo asked softly, looking at the girl in his arms. "Did you know how serious her condition was when you were treating her? That she didn't have much time left?"

"Yes"

"Why didn't you tell me sooner? Romeo gazed into her eyes. "Or had you already decided to go to the triangular zone on your own to find the cinnamomum tenuis? Who told you that could save my grandma?"

"I read about it in a medical book a long time ago."

Whether it could cure her or not, that would depend on his grandmother's condition.

"The triangular zone is too dangerous. What am I supposed to do if something happens to you?" Romeo couldn't bear to imagine.

"The ones in danger would be others."

Yes.

His girl was a better shot than Carl. She took on the Cooper family's goons all by herself, taking down over twenty men with ease. The ones in danger were indeed the others.

"And you had the nerve to tell me you were at a company meeting?" Romeo gave her a peck. "How long were you planning to keep this from me if I hadn't run into you?"

"I wasn't lying to you." Arabella said calmly. "I just didn't want you to worry."

"I'd worry more if you were in danger." Romeo kissed her lips again. "Promise me, you won't take such risks in the future."

"Okay. Although she agreed verbally, Arabella was thinking, "Just agree to get him off my back."

"Mafia Flame was founded three years ago, how old were you then? Why were you in the triangular zone?" Romeo was puzzled. "Why did you become the boss of Mafia Flame?"

He hadn't expected her to even encrypt her phone, making Romeo all the more intrigued by who she really was.

Out of respect, Romeo didn't answer her call, nor did he hang up. He simply let the phone vibrate for a while before ending it himself.

He put the phone on the nightstand, gently covered her with the blanket, and leaned down to give her a passionate kiss.

She looked beautiful when she was asleep, just like a princess from a fairy tale, with her curly eyelashes, high nose, and gorgeous lips.

Watching her, he couldn't help but lean down and gently kiss her again.

Just then, the phone vibrated again.

Someone had sent her a text

Romeo glanced at it unintentionally and saw a few messages on the screen.

[Boss, QY's monthly report has been sent to your mailbox.]

[The newly launched jewelry series is very well received.]

[When will you have time to draw some more?]

The person who sent the text was named: Mr. Jaime.

Romeo thought, "Jaime? That's the person in charge of QY?"

Rumor had it that QY's founder, Queen Abby, never showed her face and focused solely on creating. All of QY's affairs were handled by Jaime.

So, Bella was Queen Abby?

QY was founded by her?

No wonder she always refused when he gave her clothes and jewelry from QY.

Facing her own designs every day, there would be no novelty. No wonder he never saw a look of surprise on her face.

Everything was designed by her, where would the surprise come from?

He remembered the expression on her face when she received his gifts, as if she was a bit embarrassed.

Thinking about that, Romeo smirked. He hadn't expected that Bella was not only a healer and a master of making medicines, but also a piano master, and the founder of QY.

The chef had prepared the food, which Romeo personally brought up to Arabella, “Can’t sleep, huh?”

Arabella was surprised to see him carrying two big plates of food, “You usually eat in your bedroom?”

“Nah,” Romeo put the plates on the table and said softly, “But I’m willing to change all my habits for you . Wait here, there’s more food downstairs. Let me go grab it.” Arabella watched his silhouette leave the room, a warm feeling welling up in her heart

Outside the window, the lake shimmered in the sunlight, and a sea of flowers swayed in the wind. Arabella went to the balcony to enjoy the beautiful view and feel the cool breeze.

Romeo came over with two big plates of food, looking tall and handsome. His gaze at Arabella was full of adoration.

“Let’s eat here,” Arabella pointed at the table on the balcony, “The view is great here.

“Alright,” Romeo put down the food and pulled out a chair for her.

After Arabella sat down, she saw him bring over more food.

After eating, Arabella said lightly, “I should go now, keep the Cinnamomum tenuis, I’ll make the medicine when I gather the rest of the ingredients.”

Arabella pulled to a stop at the red light, whipping out her phone.

[Boss, here’s the photo they sent. You’ve got to see if it’s legit.]

Arabella clicked open the photo and squinted. Yup, it was indeed glycyrrhiza and the root of a purple lotus.

Whether it was the shape, colour, texture, or even the root part, she could confirm that these two things were the real deal.

The renowned Dr. Bell they'd been searching for for months turned out to be Ms. Bella

Seeing their stunned expressions, the guy in the suit quickly started explaining, "Mr. Romeo, I also find it hard to believe that Dr. Bell is a girl, but she insisted it's true."

Seeing that Romeo didn't react except for his surprise, he bowed deeply in apology, almost in tears: "Mr. McMillan, I just came to pick up as agreed. If I got the wrong person, please punish me! I'm sorry!"

"You really know how to surprise me, over and over again" Romeo stepped forward, gently touching the girl's delicate face. "You said you had something to deal with tonight was it this?"

Phillip shed tears of joy at the sudden good news. He bowed his head in gratitude and said, “I want to thank you on her behalf.”

“Phillip, you’re too kind!” Arabella quickly went to support him.

In Arabella’s view, what she did was just a simple act of kindness, not worth mentioning.

But for the McMillan family, it was a lifesaving favor!

“Before we found Dr Bell, Ms. Bella secretly went to get medicine for Shirley. The places she went were very dangerous; she could have lost her life at any time, but she didn’t back down. She could have let someone else take the risk, but she didn’t; she decided to go herself!” Carl said it respectfully.

Everyone’s opinion of Arabella improved after hearing this.

“She also quietly prepared the medicine for Shirley. If we hadn’t accidentally discovered her true identity today, we wouldn’t have known how much Ms. Bella has done for the lady.”

She didn’t seek any reward for her hard work and help, nor did she use this opportunity to make herself look good in front of others.
