

Arabella 33

Chapter 33

But Romeo's tone didn't sound like he was kidding at all!

Carl swallowed nervously, "Mr. McMillian, your betrothal to Serena was arranged by the elders. If you cancel it tonight, it's like embarrassing the Collins family... It'll ruin the long-standing friendship between the Collins and the McMillian families..."

That was the real kicker!

Romeo was silent, just quietly watching the traffic outside the car window.

"Mr. McMillian, I know you don't like Serena, To be honest, I don't like her either, and I find her contrived and hypocritical. Compared to her, I find Ms. Arabella much more likable! But this isn't just about you and Serena, it's about the two big families, the Collins and the McMillian..."

Thinking about Phillip lying in his sickbed, Carl knew he would flip his lid if he found out.

"Mr. McMillian, could you maybe reconsider?" Carl made a last-ditch effort to persuade him.

But Romeo just turned his gaze, saying nonchalantly, "Get the gifts ready, we're going tonight."

"Mr. McMillian?!"

say, "Even if you don't care about the Collins family, regardless of your friendship with David Collins, or Serena...at least think about lose his great-grandson, relations between the McMillian and Collins families would fall apart, and he would be called cope with such change his decision.

were futile, feeling helpless.

be decided by anyone. If the old man forced

Her behavior today didn't earn Mr. McMillian's favor, it made him grandpa yet. I'll tell him myself when he's feeling

Mr. McMillian mean to break the news to an engagement would spread fast. When Phillip found out, he must be very angry. They could only hope sat her down at over Phillip's situation, didn't dare show her face. She lied afraid of what her parents would think of Arabella chatted with her parents a bit

the sofa, when suddenly,
Mr. McMillian is