

Chapter 309

Chapter 309 Ross's Boyfriend

"Take it easy, ma'am. I was just wondering if you need any other services." Sam Robin said, leaning in suddenly."It's a long trip, isn't it? Call me anytime if you're feeling lonely."

"Shut up!" My face immediately changed.

I got what he meant. Did the Explorer also provide sex? It was disgusting!

"Hey, don't be angry. I'm just kidding." Sam Robin looked at me with a playful smile.

But I fully understood the look in his eyes.

He was raping me with his eyes!

I wanted to throw up again!

"I don't need any extra service. Now, get out of my door!" With that, I slammed the door shut.

The door made a loud noise, isolating his disgusting face.

I lay back on the bed. Fear and anger mixed to make me feel even worse about the trip.

A huge wave made the world toss and lose balance again. My face turned pale and I rushed into the bathroom again.

At this moment, I regretted it.

Maybe letting Aaron go was the right decision, but not necessarily a good one. His existence would at least save me from having to face the harassment from that bastard just now.

Lying on the bed weakly, I fell into a drowsy sleep.

Many images related to the sea flashed through my mind when I was half asleep.

I saw someone falling into the water, and me

jumping in to save him and giving him

artificial respiration..In those fragmentary pictures, I was like a mermaid in a fairy tale.

When I woke up, those memories felt both familiar and strange to me.

The emotions in the memory fragments were so real, but all the pictures were blurred. No matter how hard I tried to recall, it was useless.

Perhaps, it was just an illusory dream.

I stopped thinking so much. I found my phone and checked the time. It was already half past five in the afternoon.

The past few hours could be regarded as my first sleep since I boarded this Explorer. God!

There were huge waves outside the window. The closed room was small, but it contained a huge sense of emptiness. I changed the seasickness patches. After confirming that I no longer felt very uncomfortable, I opened the door and left the cabin.

I didn't want to hear that pervert knocking on my door again.

After adapting to the violent turbulence at sea, I held on to the handle of the corridor and headed to the cafeteria.

Surprisingly, many people were walking outside at the moment. When a huge wave hit the deck, I even heard exclamations from outside

Looking outside through the tempered glass, I saw several figures on the deck at the moment.

Among them, a beautiful figure attracted my attention. It was Ross!

That was a professional side of Ross that I hadn't seen. Wearing a waterproof jacket and goggles, she stood firmly on the deck with her legs slightly bent her one arm wrapped around the mast to ensure that she would not be swept away by the waves. She was holding a

Canon camera with a telephoto lens in her hand, taking high-speed continuous shots of the waves.

Huge waves quickly hit the Explorer from a distance. As the distance got closer, the huge waves gradually became like a high wall.

People were extremely small in front of it, and it looked like they would be washed away at any time!

When it fell towards Ross, I gasped and held my breath.

The white waves almost obscured all my vision. When I was able to see the outside view again, Ross had disappeared in place.

"My God!" I hurried to the window, trying to find Ross.

Fortunately, soon I saw her back disappearing into a hatch. She came back.

After a short while, I saw Ross appear in the cabin. She was soaked all over and shivering from the cold, but there was a flamboyant smile on her face. I hurried to find someone to hand her a bath towel.

"Did you just see it?" Ross took the towel and covered her head, excitedly showing me the results of her expedition.

"Now, I know what kind of person you are." She was a fanatical pursuer of art! Behind every shocking photo, it might mean that she had escaped the scythe of death again and again!

"Have you had lunch yet? I didn't see you at the cafeteria at noon." Ross asked me.

"I'm just going to." Ross and I went to the cafeteria.

After my body got used to it, a strong sense of hunger came over. I felt like I could even swallow a cow right now.

Ross watched me gulping down the food with my head down, and she laughed.

"My boyfriend said that according to the current speed, we will pass the Drake Passage

at noon tomorrow and officially enter the Arctic Circle. By then, the cruise ship will be no different from the ground, very stable."

"Your boyfriend?" I was a little surprised, "Did he come with you too?"

"Strictly speaking, I came with him. He is an explorer here." Ross smiled beautifully.

After a while, we finished our food and prepared to go back to our cabins to rest. Just as I turned around to pick up my phone,I heard Ross call out "honey" suddenly and affectionately.

"Did you just finish lunch?" A somewhat familiar man's voice came from not far behind.

I paused and turned to look at the person coming. I saw that man with a crew cut Sam Robin walking in that direction of me and Ross. He put his arms around Ross's waist and kissed her skillfully as if no one was around.

He was Ross's boyfriend!

At this moment, my heart sank.

Before I could react, Ross held Mr. Robin's arm and looked at me affectionately,"This is my boyfriend Sam Robin, and he's Irish. Sam, this is Olive Woods, a doctor of pharmacy."

Sam Robin finally noticed me. I expected him to panic, but he didn't!

He didn't even look surprised, but directly greeted me with a smile,"Oh, it's you, Ms. Olive."

His frivolous tone, playful eyes, and rude behavior of calling me by my first name all stimulated my nerves. I didn't understand why Ross was with such a bastard!

"Sam, do you know Dr. Olive?" Ross also noticed her boyfriend's abnormal reaction.

"Yes. Today, the captain asked us to remind the passengers one by one, and I found her in a bad state. So I brought her some bread."

Sam Robin said frankly, without mentioning some of his out-of-bounds behaviors. He just looked at me unscrupulously and even chuckled after he said that.

"What are you laughing at?" I was a little annoyed.

"Don't be nervous. I just feel that we might be destined to meet." Sam Robin winked at me and whistled in a particularly frivolous manner."I'm very happy to spend the rest of the trip with you."

How dare he say that right in front of Ross?!

I was speechless!

Ross was his girlfriend! And Ross was the first friend I'd made here!

I looked at Ross nervously, trying to explain. But to my surprise, Ross didn't seem angry.