

Forsaken by my Mate

Chapter 27

Bree's POV

About an hour after Nico left, it happened. I was sitting on the bed, and I felt the familiar pain come to me. I cannot believe that he is doing this to me again. I scream out in pain because it is worse now that we are mated. Thank the Goddess, I didn't let Nico mark me. I would be in probably even more pain. I try to contain it, but a few minutes later a scream rips out of me, and I fall to the floor. I am not going to make it and as bad as this is hurting me, I am going to welcome death.

I heard pounding steps on the stairs and Jaden throws the door to my room open and looks around to see what danger I am in. He sees me on the floor and drops down next to me asking me what is wrong, but the pain is so intense that I cannot answer him. The pain is taking my breath away and it is taking all I can do to be able to breathe through this. I am holding my stomach and I cannot straighten and Jaden shakes his head like that was impossible.

This goes on for about 10 minutes before the pain subsides. I am still hurting and cannot straighten up. I have sweat on my forehead, and I feel like I have run a marathon. Jaden helps me up from the floor and places me on the bed. I still feel the residual pain in my abdomen, but what hurts the most is my heart. Nico cannot stop betraying me, and I need out of this situation right now. I cannot live like this. I have to find a way out of it.

I can hear Jaden speaking in the background and his voice is getting higher and higher until he finally starts yelling into the phone. I don't care what his reason is for what happened, I cannot forgive him for the betrayal again. I warned him that I will not be with him again he had betrayed my trust for the last time. I am sick of Nico and his, "I did it for the pack" excuses. I cannot stop crying and I can tell how upset Jaden is right now. I can sense he wants to go to Golden Summit to check on things but doesn't want to leave me alone to do

"Just go Jaden, I know you need to go to go to Nico to check on him and what is going on, but just lock the door and leave me here.

If Nico, does it again and the pain kills me, I will welcome it, as he has already broken my heart. I just want you to tell him if I do pass, that I was pregnant with the heir to Golden Summit when he did this to me. I never deserved to be punished like this for finding my mate" I tell him and then turned over on my side. The tears run down my face, and I can tell that Jaden doesn't want to leave me in my condition, but he needs to go see what the hell is going on.

"I will be back Sabrina, just give me an hour to see what the hell is going on because Nico is talking some nonsense about you being at Golden Summit when you are here. I am very worried. I will come back and get you and if he is betraying you, I will take you back to your pack. You don't need to be suffering in this alone. I will take care of you. You are my Luna, and you matter to me" Jaden tells me, and the locks me back into the room. I couldn't care less right now, as what Jaden just said doesn't make any sense at all to me, except for the fact that the finds out that Nico has betrayed me, he will be taking me back to my pack.

Try even harder as I am now locked here, with no one to let me out in case of an emergency, but right this minute I cannot bring 10 million dollars. I loved Nico, he was my mate, but he is slowly killing me with his actions. I cannot give him another chance as I begged several times out of my mind to go back to this pack, and he ignored my tears. Basically, he said that he can take care of himself, and downplayed himself as I was just a paladin's wife, who didn't know that her big stone can handle himself. Well, apparently, he cannot, or I wouldn't have just one thought our pain that I did.
