Let me go, Mr. Hill [by Shallow South] Chapter 771

“What I said is the truth. Otherwise, why would there be women who cheat on their husbands, not only mentally but spiritually as well? Isn’t it because they can’t bear the loneliness?” Chester took a long drag on his cigarette. “As for the 200 million dollars that Sarah gave to Lucifer, I reckon she was threatened.”

There was no doubt that Chester was the calmest one among the three men at that moment.

Shaun quickly realized it too.

If Sarah just wanted to have sex with that man, she would not have given him 200 million dollars.

“Let’s talk about this matter again after she comes out.”

A moment later, Shaun opened the car door and got in.

Too many things had happened today. He just wanted to cool down for a while and think about his and Sarah’s future.

A few minutes later, he called Hadley. “ I need all the information on Sarah’s case.”

Sarah spent only a day and a half in the police station.

However, that day and a half felt like a year. She was interrogated by the police every minute.

“Do you know that Lucifer took drugs?”

“Did Lucifer use your money to take drugs? Why did you give him 200 million dollars?”

“You went to the apartment a few times every week and spent a few hours there. Your clothes were different when you came out, and the way you walked looked as though you were hiding something. What relationship do you share with Lucifer?”

“Why didn’t you make a police report when he went missing?”

“Do you know that he brought women back to the apartment?”

“Did you already know that he was dead?”

She had tried staying calm at the start of it, but their sharp questions forced her to deny everything hysterically in the end. “I didn’t. Nothing happened between me and him at all.”

“Sarah Langley Neeson, we have already obtained surveillance footage from the areas near your apartment. If you keep refusing to cooperate with us and refuse to say anything, we’ll have reason to suspect that it was you who hired someone to kill Lucifer.”

The police pointed at her while saying word by word, "You have to understand that you're Lucifer's closest contact. It's useless for you to hide things because Shaun already knows about everything. He came to the police station yesterday evening. Otherwise, why do you think that you haven't been released on bail until now?"

At that moment, Sarah only felt as if the sky was about to fall.

She shuddered. The thing she feared the most still happened in the end.

No, it was not the time for her to be flustered. Firstly, she could not go to jail. Besides, Lucifer was killed by those people. She was not involved in anything after that. It was impossible for the police to determine that she was the one who killed Lucifer.

After remaining silent for more than ten minutes, Sarah's eyes reddened. She started crying all of a sudden. "I didn't mean to hide anything..."

7:00 p.m. of the next day.

Sarah was released on bail. She was still wearing the wedding dress from yesterday. However, after spending so much time in the police station, the white dress had turned dark. Her makeup was smudged too. She looked like a female ghost.

Shaun was waiting outside. After seeing her, a trace of unfamiliarity flashed across his eyes.

The Sarah in his memories was beautiful, but he did not know when she became so unrecognizable.

"Shaunic, Shaunic." When Sarah saw him, tears flowed out of her eyes. She lifted her dress and ran toward him while stumbling. She wanted to fling herself into his embrace.

However, Shaun quickly evaded her. Sarah looked at him with a blank expression. Hurt, regret, and pain flashed across her eyes.

“Shaunic, I didn’t lie to you on purpose. I was forced to do so. That person was one of the criminals who kidnapped me back in the States. You should know how painful that incident was for me. I’m not clean anymore, yet that person appeared again like a demon.

“He said he had indecent pictures and videos of my past. I had no choice. I was afraid that you would be disgusted with me if you found out, so I gave him money. I gave him 200 million dollars but he wasn’t satisfied. He wanted me to have s*x with him.”

Sarah crouched down and cried bitterly as she spoke, “I felt disgusted. Every time he touched me, it felt so repulsive that I wanted to puke. Shaunic, I made a mistake. I’ve done you wrong, but it wasn’t intentional. I love you. You were already so repulsed by me that you would puke whenever I touched you. I was scared that you’d hate me even more if you saw the pictures.”

“Get up.”

Shaun extended his hands to help her up.

Sarah flung herself into his embrace. She wailed while hugging him. "Shaunic, don't leave me. I'll die without you."

Shaun's body stiffened.

Actually, the police had already told him about these things before he bailed her out of jail.

He had still blamed Sarah for her stupidity before. She should have told him that someone was threatening her.

However, Sarah's cries made him understand that maybe the issue stemmed from his constant refusal to touch her and it had made her increasingly insecure.

He did not blame her as much anymore, but he still felt uncomfortable.

He even wanted to push Sarah away instinctively. "Sarah, calm down. Let's go back to the seaside villa first." Shaun helped her to get in the car. Hadley was in front, driving the car.

During the whole journey, Sarah leaned her body on Shaun's chest. She kept explaining, "Shaunic, Lucifer is dead now. I won't do you any wrong from now on. Let's call it even, okay? Didn't you have sex with Catherine some time back as well? I know all about it. You spent two nights at her place."

Shaun laughed bitterly in his heart.

He said he loved Sarah, yet he had sex with Catherine. On the other hand, Sarah said she loved him for more than ten years, yet she still had sex with another man before their wedding.

That was the first time he was at a loss regarding their relationship.

Could he really continue being together with Sarah? Was such a relationship not dirty?

“Shaunic, say something. I beg you, just say something. You’re making me feel scared.” Sarah started sobbing again as she was at a loss.

“Sarah, answer me seriously. Do you have anything to do with Lucifer’s death?” Shaun’s cold eyes stared into her. His gaze looked as if he wanted to burn a hole into someone.

Sarah trembled. She said, “Lucifer died due to a gunshot. Where would I find a killer who could do something like that? If I had that ability, I would’ve gotten someone to deal with him a long time ago. I wouldn’t have allowed myself to keep getting threatened by Lucifer.”

Shaun pressed his lips together in silence. He did not say a word.

Sarah continued saying, “Lucifer did so many bad things overseas. It’s not an exaggeration to say that he was without a conscience. After he returned, he kept gambling and taking drugs. He had too many enemies.”

“Enough, I got it.”

Shaun finally said something. After he spoke, he turned his head and looked outside the window.

Sarah gazed at his handsome side profile. She breathed a sigh of relief inwardly. However, she still had many doubts in her heart. Who dug out Lucifer’s body? Who was the one giving her a hard time behind the scenes?

She was unconfident, but luckily, Shaun had chosen to believe in her.

After arriving at the seaside villa, Shaun brought her inside.

When she saw the suitcases in the living room, she did not have a good feeling. "Shaunic, are we... moving somewhere else?"

Let me go, Mr. Hill [by Shallow South] Chapter 773

"It's not both of us, it's just me." Shaun rubbed his brows. A deep trace of helplessness flashed across his narrow eyes. "I'm sorry, Sarah. I think we both need some time to cool down."

Sarah was stunned. She could not believe it.

Had Shaun not decided to stop pursuing that matter just now? Why was he leaving all of a sudden?!

No, she could not let him leave.

Sarah grabbed Shaun's hand. "Shaunic, don't go. I beg you. What will it take for you to forgive me? As long as you say it, I'm willing to do anything."

“Sarah, don’t do this...” Shaun tried to push her hand away.

However, it was as if Sarah had gone crazy. Her face was streaked with tears. “ If you want to cool down, you can do it here. I won’t disturb you. Shaunic, everyone in Canberra sees me as a joke now. If you move out so suddenly, what will those people think of me? They’ll think that I’m a seductress. I won’t be able to hold my head high for the rest of my life. If you don’t want me, I’d rather die! ” “Sarah, are you threatening me?”

An icy coldness laced Shaun’s helpless tone. His towering figure emanated an aura that could make one’s heart shudder involuntarily.

Sarah was frightened. She shook her head.

“No, Shaunic. Can’t we just sit down and talk peacefully? We’ve known each other for 20 years. We’ve had feelings for each other for more than ten years and went through so many hardships together. It really wasn’t easy for us to come to where we are today.”

Shaun gazed at her in confusion. “ Sarah, I’ve done a lot of thinking in these two days. Actually, I never once thought that you were dirty. However, the fact that I can’t touch you has become a hurdle in our hearts that we can’t overcome. Every woman has her basic needs, and I can’t satisfy them for you. I’ve already forgiven you, but I can’t act as if nothing has ever happened before. Do you understand?”

Just thinking about the countless women Lucifer had slept with and the times he had sex with Sarah made Shaun feel repulsed at the thought of hugging her.

How could they even talk about being together for the rest of their lives?

“What do you mean?” Sarah got agitated and hysterical. “In the end, you just think that I’m dirty!”

“Sarah, aren’t you tired? Whenever we fight, you’ll always bring up this matter.” Shaun had a bitter expression. “If I hated you for being dirty, I wouldn’t have gotten together with you from the start.”

“Then why are you leaving?” Sarah begged pitifully, “Shaunic, don’t go. I’ll tell you everything from now on. I won’t hide anything from you, okay? Whichever part of me that you think isn’t good enough, I’ll change it.”

“Sarah, I’m sorry. I’m really tired.”

Shaun broke her grip. He simply took his suitcases, turned around, and walked out.

Sarah was on the verge of falling apart. She grabbed his suitcases and refused to let go. “You said we just need a break, so you’ll still come back. I won’t let you bring your stuff away. Shaunic, I admit that I was wrong, but you got together with Catherine too. You betrayed our feelings before as well. I can forgive you for that, so why can’t you forgive me?! ”

Shaun saw her holding onto his suitcases, refusing to let go. He was annoyed by her cries as well.

Therefore, he simply abandoned his things and left straight away.

He did not know why he and Sarah had become like this.

In his memories, whenever he felt tired or lonely, he could always feel a sense of belonging as long as he saw Sarah.

However, Sarah was like a huge mountain pressing on his heart at that moment. Whenever he faced her, he would feel indescribable exhaustion.

When Shaun walked out of the seaside villa, he felt some guilt in his heart. At the same time, he felt relaxed as well.

Hadley drove the car over. Shaun got in the car and lit a cigarette. He asked absently, "Hadley, am I a huge scumbag?"

Let me go, Mr. Hill [by Shallow South] Chapter 774

"President Hill, you're not a scumbag. You just... don't love Ms. Neeson anymore." 'You stopped loving her a long time ago, but you were just deluded by Ms. Neeson's hypnosis,' Hadley thought.

"I don't love her?" Shaun smiled bitterly. "I used to think that I'd love her forever."

"There's a barrier between you and Ms. Neeson," Hadley said, "Happiness is the most important thing when two people are in a relationship. But I never thought you were happy every time I saw you coming out of the villa."

Shaun was taken aback. Was he not happy?

When he thought about it, it seemed accurate. He did not know when it began, but he would rather work extra hours at the company.

Hadley saw that Shaun was in a daze. He continued saying, "Besides... even if you suppress this matter, the police had appeared in public to bring Ms. Neeson away that day. Many people have already caught wind of it. If you still insist on being together with Ms. Neeson, not only will it anger Old Master Hill and Old Madam Hill, but the outsiders will mock you as well."

"Don't say any more."

Shaun clenched his fists that were resting on his legs.

It was a wedding of the century, yet he became the laughing stock of Canberra in the end.

In the seaside villa.

After Shaun left without hesitation, Sarah broke everything she could find in the house like a madman.

The whole place had been decorated with rose petals due to the wedding. However, it was as if the red rose petals were now mocking her.

She should have become the young madam of the Hill family now, the person whom the whole of Australia envied.

Why had she fallen from heaven to hell in an instant?

Aunty Zara, who was in the kitchen, was so frightened that she did not dare to come out. At this moment, Yael frantically ran inside. "Calm down, Ms. Neeson. Eldest Young Master Hill is just angry. He'll come back after a while."

“Yael, do you think that I’m disgusting too?” Sarah asked as she cried.

“No, I know that you didn’t have a choice. Ms. Neeson, you’ve been through too many hardships. Eldest Young Master Hill has no clue at all.” Yael was upset that Shaun was being so merciless. Ms. Neeson obviously loved him deeply.

“Thank you, Yael, ” Sarah muttered, “You’re the only one from Shaun’s people who’s still on my side now. You must help me keep an eye on him. I’m worried that Catherine may take advantage of this opportunity. Of course, there may be other women as well.”

“Don’t worry. I’ll help you keep an eye on him. I’ll tell you if anything happens,” Yael said, gritting her teeth.

“Okay, Yael. I’ll never forget our sisterhood.” Sarah hugged her.

After Yael left, Sarah furiously dialed a person’s number. “Didn’t you say that you buried Lucifer’s body in a desolate place back then? Why was his body discovered by the police at the riverside?”

“They were careless. I reckon they were tailed when they buried the body, ” that person said in a low voice.

Sarah was exasperated. “ I thought you were very capable. You guys have put me in trouble this time. The wedding was canceled, and Shaun and I are at odds with each other. If I knew you guys would be so useless, I would’ve done everything myself back then.” The person on the other side of the phone sneered coldly, “Sarah Langley Neeson, you didn’t tell me that the person took drugs. You even had sex with him. You can’t blame me for your indecent actions.” Let me go, Mr. Hill [by Shallow South] Chapter 775

“If it weren’t for my quick thinking, I would’ve almost gotten involved in your trouble. I’ve yet to settle my debt with you. Besides, you should think of what you still have that’s useful to me. Once you leave Shaun’s side, you’re nothing at all to me.”

The call ended mercilessly. Sarah was appalled.

She gripped her phone tightly. She knew all along that in the eyes of those bunch of people, no matter how outstanding she was in the field of psychology and arts, they would only prioritize family background. The Neeson family was not what it used to be. Therefore, she could only hold tightly onto Shaun, Rodney, and Chester.

A wave of panic swept over her. She dialed Rodney’s number.

Half an hour later, Rodney quickly rushed over.

Sarah had already washed her face and changed into a set of white clothes. She sat on the sofa in the living room, drinking wine. Her look was that of someone in despair, yet it had a touch of purity too.

“Sarah, stop drinking.” Rodney snatched her wine glass away. Seeing the woman he had been secretly in love with since he was young in such a state pained him.

“Rodney, don’t you hate me?” Sarah looked up with reddened eyes. “Don’t you think I’m disgusting?”

Rodney initially felt uncomfortable that the goddess of his heart had slept with a middle-aged man. However, looking at her being like this, he strangely pitied her. “Sarah, you were so silly. Why didn’t you tell us? We know about all the sufferings you went through back then. We understand that you were a victim and don't mind it at all. You cheated on Shaun this time. No man can stand that."

"I was afraid that you guys wouldn't be able to take it if you saw the pictures. I just wanted to keep the last bit of my dignity. I never expected that I would lose my remaining dignity as well."

Sarah smiled pitifully. "Shaunic left, and the wedding can't be held again. Everyone in the circle must be talking about me and looking down on me. I can't take it anymore. I wanted to die back then too, but I hung on when I thought of Shaunic. I never knew... I should've just died back then."

She took the wine bottle and drank straight from it after she spoke. "Don't stop me. Just let me die from drinking."

"Don't be like that. Maybe Shaun will just be angry for a while? Give him some time." Rodney took the wine bottle away forcefully. He gritted his teeth and said, "I'll surely advise Shaun to come back."

"What if he doesn't come back?" Sarah had a dazed expression.

"I'll think of something. Even if he doesn't come back... You don't have to be afraid. I'll always be your strongest backing," Rodney said with determination.

In the president's office of Hill Corporation.

The lights had been on for a whole night, but Shaun was still working.

Everyone in the company noticed that their president had become an utter workaholic. In the past, he would still return home to rest after working extra hours, but now, he did not return home at all. He worked day and night.

Shaun had no feelings about it. However, the employees of the secretarial department who worked extra hours and stayed up all night with him could not take it anymore.

“Assistant Young, please advise President Hill to go back to rest. Even a normal person won’t be able to take it if this keeps going on. President Hill is going through a break-up, but he can’t make us suffer together with him.”

“That’s right. I still have my wife and kids back at home. My kids call me every day to say they miss me.”

Hadley’s expression darkened. “When did President Hill break-up? What nonsense are you all talking about?”

“Assistant Young, we heard all about it already, ” a secretary said with a low voice, “During the wedding, Ms. Neeson was taken away. I heard that she has already been bailed out, but President Hill never mentioned anything about holding another wedding. He doesn’t even go back home now. This means that Ms. Neeson had indeed cheated on President Hill.” “What was Ms. Neeson thinking? Our president is so excellent. What was she dissatisfied with?”

“That’s right, the president is so tall and mighty. It’s clear at a glance that he can last very long. Is she still not satisfied?”

“Maybe the president only looks strong on the outside?”

Hadley, who watched as they continued to gossip, felt exasperated.

If they went on like this, Eldest Young Master Hill's privacy would be stripped away.

"Shut your mouths. You're gossiping about the president in the company? Do you not want to work anymore?" Hadley warned.

The employees realized that they were getting carried away and broke out in a cold sweat.

At that moment, Lea knocked on the door and walked in. "Where's Shaun?"

"In the office." Hadley quickly went up to her and said, "Madam, you must persuade President Hill.

He's been working relentlessly for two days and hasn't rested."

Lea opened the door and went in, closing the door behind her.

The interrupted Shaun raised his bloodshot eyes. "Why are you here?"

"Even if you don't want to go back, your secretary department can't keep working overtime with you day and night. They're people with families."

Lea dragged a chair over and sat down. She sighed when she saw Shaun's scruffy face. She had always thought that Shaun was not like her at all, but now, she realized that Shaun took after her the most. The path he walked on was exactly the same as hers. "What are you planning to do with Sarah now?"

Shaun pursed his thin lips silently. These days, Sarah had been constantly calling him and sending him messages, but he ignored all of them.

Lea frowned. "Although I don't know the details, you never mentioned holding another wedding with Sarah again, which means that what the police said that day was right. Sarah did something that let you down."

"I'll solve my own affairs. I don't need you to meddle." Shaun's handsome face became contorted.

"If she really cuckolded you, the Hill family will never accept her," Lea said firmly, "I'm saying this from the standpoint of someone who's been around the block. Shaun, maybe you never properly understood Sarah Neeson in the first place."

If it were in the past, maybe Shaun would have retorted, but somehow, he found that he actually agreed with Lea at that moment.

How could Sarah have come back without showing even a trace of guilt after sleeping with Lucifer multiple times? She even showed such deep affection for Shaun.

Was it because Sarah was too good at concealing and acting?

If Lucifer had not died, he would have kept threatening Sarah. Maybe after they married, Sarah would continue sleeping with him. If it were before marriage, Shaun could endure it because of Catherine, but what about after their marriage?

What man could accept that? Besides, what if Sarah got pregnant with that man's child?

The more he thought about it, the more terrifying the consequences were.

Lea took a deep breath and said with some bitterness, “Just take me as an example. I used to say that I understood Mason and even fought with you because of him, but these years, he’s been caring about me less and less. Has he changed?”

Maybe not. Maybe he had always hidden that side of him. The Campos family needed the Hill family’s support and protection, so he tolerated me and I never realized it. I’ve been with him for more than 20 years. We met in university, but I’ve only begun to gradually understand this man now at the age of 50.” After a pause, her tone softened. “Don’t think that you understand Sarah completely just because you’ve known her for a long time. You have to understand that she became entangled with another man outside. In addition, she disappeared abroad for a few years. People change. The more they experience, the more they change. Let me go, Mr. Hill [by Shallow South] Chapter 777

Shaun shook.

Yes, Sarah had gone missing for a few years overseas.

How could he know if she had changed or not?

Lea could not understand Mason after 30 years. What about him? He only knew Sarah for 20 years.

“Shaun, you’re not an ordinary person. You’re the leader of Hill Corporation and you stand on the top of the pyramid. Others will be paying attention to your marriage. You’ve divorced once, and this happened when you were about to get married for a second time. It’ll become a stain on your life.”

Lea stood up and said seriously, “Have a proper think about it.”

She finished her sentence and turned to leave.

Shaun sat alone in the office chair for a long time until there was a knock on the door. Then, Suzie's little head poked in from outside. "Uncle, can I come in?"

Even though Shaun was in a bad mood, his heart immediately turned soft when he saw the little one's cautious yet eager to please appearance.

"Suzie, didn't you go to preschool today?" Shaun noticed she was still wearing the preschool's red uniform.

"Grandma said you were in a bad mood, so I came over to keep you company," Suzie tilted her head and spoke.

Shaun's heart suddenly warmed.

He did not expect Lea to care about him even at a time like this.

"Uncle, this is for you." Suzie ran to his legs and clumsily climbed onto his lap. She opened her palm, revealing the piece of chocolate inside. "Every time I'm in a bad mood, I'll stop crying after eating some chocolate."

Shaun looked at her and smiled. Then, the little girl unwrapped the chocolate and shoved it into his mouth.

He rarely ate candy, but when he bit into the chocolate this time, it was sweet.

"Uncle, are you feeling better now?"

Suzie looked up at him with sparkling eyes.

“Much better. Thank you, Suzie.” He rubbed her little head.

“Mmh. Uncle, your body... is a little stinky,” Suzie suddenly said with a disgusted look.

Shaun froze. He had not slept much in the past two days, much less showered.

“I’ve... been busy with work these days and forgot to shower. Wait for me here. I’ll go take one now.”
Shaun awkwardly turned on the TV for her.

“Okay.” Suzie sat down on the sofa obediently and watched Peppa Pig.

Shaun washed himself from head to toe in the bathroom and even shaved his beard. He changed into a pair of black trousers and a white shirt. He exuded a handsome and elegant aura.

Suzie’s eyes lit up. “Uncle, you’re so handsome. Let’s go out on a date.”

Shaun could not help but laugh. “You little rascal, do you even know what a date is?”

“I saw it on TV. People on TV always go on dates.” Suzie giggled. “Let’s go to the amusement park. I wanna go.” “Okay.”

Shaun agreed without thinking.

In fact, he had also found it very boring to work in the company every day. However, he did not want to go out to face Rodney and Chester.

If it were Suzie, he would be happy to spend time with her. When he drove to the amusement park, Suzie's watch phone rang. A pleasant female voice sounded. "Suzie, I'm at the gate. Where are you?"

Let me go, Mr. Hill [by Shallow South] Chapter 778

July 28, 2021 by gamanovel

It was Catherine's voice.

Shaun's heart skipped a beat. He turned behind to look at Suzie and saw her lower her head to say to the watch, "We're at the parking lot. We'll be right there."

After the call ended, his handsome brows quickly furrowed. "You invited Catherine?"

"Yep." Suzie shook her legs.

"...Why didn't you tell me earlier?" Shaun was upset.

"Because I was afraid you wouldn't want to come if I did." Suzie stuck out her tongue. "Grandma said you broke up, so I asked Daddy what men should do when they break up. Daddy said that the best thing for a man to do after breaking up is to get into another relationship. The only other person I know of is Aunty Cathy."

Shaun was speechless. Well, it turned out that in the eyes of others, he had broken up. "Um... You invited Aunty Cathy and she agreed that easily?" "Yep." Suzie nodded.

Shaun subconsciously gripped the steering wheel. Could it be that she knew he had not gotten married and wanted to get back together with him.

He undid the buttons around his neck, and his depressed mood improved inexplicably.

However, Suzie said, "Because I lied and said I was with Daddy."

Shaun, " "

It turned out that the woman agreed to come to the amusement park purely because... of Liam?

How on earth was he inferior to Liam?

He gnashed his teeth at the last three words.

"Even if you tell Catherine that you were with me, she would've agreed too." Shaun snorted secretly. Catherine still had him in her heart. She would definitely think this was a chance to get back together with him.

"Nope." Suzie pouted. "I told Aunty Cathy that I wanted you to take me to her place for dinner, but she said that if I called you, she wouldn't let me come. She said that she gets annoyed just looking at you."

Shaun immediately felt his heart hurt in anger. Was this girl trying to comfort him or anger him? "Then why are you matchmaking us? You're matching the wrong people."

“Did I do something wrong?” Suzie pursed her lips when she saw the anger on his face. “Then I’ll call Daddy and tell him to come over. Uncle, you can go back.”

“You called me here and now you’re telling me to go back?” Shaun felt as though a knife was slicing his heart. This girl was too heartless.

“I can’t let Aunty Cathy go back. Aunty is a woman.” Suzie blinked at him innocently.

Shaun was speechless. When the girl was about to dial a number on the watch again, he blurted out, “Forget it, don’t call. I’ve already parked the car so I’m too lazy to go back.”

“So you’re willing to go on a date with Aunty Cathy?” Suzie’s pink face showed a hint of playfulness.

“What date? Don’t speak nonsense. I’m just accompanying you to the amusement park.”

After Shaun opened the door and went down, he subconsciously looked at his own reflection on the window. Fortunately, he had showered before going out. It was just that his shirt was not ironed properly.

He hurriedly tucked his shirt into his pants while looking at the window. He then looked at his beard which had not been shaven clean. He had not rested well these two days, so his eye bags were a little dark too.

The door suddenly opened and Suzie gloomily came out with her hands on her hips. “Uncle, what are you doing while facing my window?”

“My shirt was messy so I was tidying it up.” Shaun cleared his throat and changed the topic. “Look, there’s cotton candy over there. I’ll buy one for you.”

“Okay!” Suzie was successfully distracted.

Five minutes later, the two finally walked to the entrance of the amusement park. Before they reached, Shaun already spotted Catherine’s figure at the gate. She was wearing jeans and a white T-shirt, as well as a pair of white shoes. Her curly chestnut hair was pulled up into a ponytail. It was a very common look among university students, but with her beautiful face, she looked so pretty that he could not tear his eyes away.

Let me go, Mr. Hill [by Shallow South] Chapter 779

Right then...

Shaun saw several men looking at her. A young man who looked like a university student stopped in front of her to strike up a conversation. “Lady, can I add you on WhatsApp?”

Under the sunlight, the young man’s pure face looked shy.

Catherine was shocked. She was just about to smile and refuse.

A low and magnetic voice suddenly sounded. “Wifey, I’m sorry I’m late.”

The young man turned around and saw Shaun’s handsome, dignified face. He immediately paled. He did not expect Catherine to be married since she looked so young. Their child was so big as well. “I... I’m sorry. I didn’t know you were married. Sorry for disturbing you.”

The young man quickly turned and fled after speaking.

Catherine glared at the damned man who suddenly appeared. "Who's your wife? You'd better watch your mouth."

"Yeah, Uncle, since when did Aunty Cathy become your wife?" Suzie asked curiously while eating cotton candy.

"I was afraid that she would be deceived by those childish little boys." Shaun showed a disdainful sneer. "Catherine Jones, how old are you? Aren't you embarrassed smiling at boys that young? Do you know the meaning of the word 'restraint'?"

You're harming the country's blooming youths. "

"I'm only 25. The boy just now was 20, at most. How am I harming youths?" Catherine snapped at him. "There are older girls dating younger boys everywhere now, old man."

"You're calling me an old man?" The air around Shaun grew thick.

Catherine crossed her arms and sneered, "Aren't you? You're like a generation older than me. When you were at school, I hadn't even been conceived. My dad's sperm was still rushing to swim over to meet my mom's egg."

Shaun, " "

Suzie saw her scummy dad's livid face and could not help but ask, "What's a sperm and an egg? Why do they have to swim?”

Shaun glared at Catherine coldly. “Catherine Jones, you’d better think before you speak. Remember that there’s a kid here.”

“Uh...” Catherine immediately became awkward. She lowered her head and said gently to Suzie, “That’s a science and biology question, so you won’t understand now even if I tell you. You’re still young, so you need to study hard, understand?”

“Okay, I understand. I’ll study hard.” Suzie nodded obediently.

Shaun was completely speechless at how quickly Suzie was fooled. When did this woman become so good at fooling children?

“By the way, why are you with Suzie? Where’s Liam?” Catherine suddenly looked at Shaun with disgust.

“What’s wrong with me? Do you like going on a date with Liam that much?” Her attitude made Shaun furious.

“Liam is my savior. As for you, you’re a man who’s already engaged to another woman.” Catherine sneered, “I’m afraid of getting accused of stealing you away if I’m accidentally photographed by reporters when I’m with you. After all, as long as there’s anything that hurts your darling Sarah Neeson, you won’t hesitate to push the responsibility to me.”

Shaun felt depressed at her criticism. He knew that he had done many things to hurt her because of Sarah in the past. “Sarah and I aren’t getting married.”

“Are you kidding?”

Catherine deliberately raised her brows in surprise. "Aren't you going to hold another wedding? Oh, was what the police said true? She really did it with another man—"

"Catherine Jones," Shaun said fiercely and sternly. His voice exploded like a thunderclap.

Suzie was so frightened that her hand shook and the cotton candy fell to the ground. Then, she started to cry. "Uncle is so scary!"

She hid behind Catherine in fear.

Let me go, Mr. Hill [by Shallow South] Chapter 780

Catherine quickly picked the little girl up. When she saw Suzie's tears, she glared at Shaun with anger. "We're not the ones who provoked you, why are you raising your voice at us? Go to Sarah if you dare. You only know how to yell at me every time. Get lost. I'll accompany Suzie. Your company isn't needed."

Then, she carried Suzie into the amusement park.

Shaun, who was left behind, clenched his fists in annoyance. When he watched the two of them walk farther and farther away, his long legs quickly chased after them. "Suzie is my niece. Even if she wants to play, she'll play with me."

"Uncle, I don't want you. You're too fierce." Suzie refused without mercy.

Shaun shrank back and could only say in a soft voice, "Suzie, I didn't mean it just now..."

"Uncle, you shouldn't apologize to me but to Aunty Cathy," Suzie said seriously.

Shaun glanced at Catherine but only saw her continuing to walk forward. She did not pay attention to him at all. He felt depressed.

Suzie looked at him encouragingly. "My teacher said that a true man apologizes when he knows he's wrong."

Shaun, " "

When facing the child's innocent eyes, he felt as though he would not be a man if he did not apologize.

He silently sighed and grabbed Catherine's arm. Lowering his voice, he said, "Sorry. I've been in a bad mood recently and spoke too loudly just now. Don't take it personally."

Catherine turned around in annoyance to glare at him, but Suzie said, "Aunty Cathy, just forgive him. Uncle is pretty pitiful too. He's already so old but he just broke up. My daddy is younger than him but he already has such a big daughter like me."

Shaun seemed to have been viciously stabbed by an invisible knife. His handsome face turned ashen.

If he had not accidentally pushed Catherine back then, his daughter would be just as big, okay?

However, he could not voice out his bitterness.

Catherine looked at his defeated and uncomfortable expression. She felt happy. "Fine, I won't argue with you since our little Suzie has spoken up for you, but if you still want to follow us, then talk less and mind your own business."

Then, she led Suzie to the plane ride.

Shaun could only follow the two from behind. As Catherine accompanied Suzie on the plane ride, he minded his own business and watched from below.

When Suzie and Catherine played bumper cars, he minded his own business and watched from outside.

Finally, when they went to the Ferris wheel, Catherine let him bring Suzie up since she was afraid of heights.

“What’s so scary about the Ferris wheel? I’m not scared.” Suzie disagreed and insisted on Catherine joining. She even pulled Shaun inside with her.

The three people sat in the small cabin. Shaun sat on one side while Suzie and Catherine sat on the other.

It was fine at first, but when their cabin rose, Catherine’s legs went weak. She grabbed the railing on the side out of fear and did not dare to look down.

Shaun looked at her frightened appearance and inexplicably felt amused. He had known her for so long, but he never knew that she was so afraid of heights. She did not even dare to sit on the Ferris wheel.

For some reason, he suddenly wanted to scare her.

When the Ferris wheel reached its peak, he deliberately shook the cabin. The cabin swayed gently, but Catherine was so frightened that her whole face turned white. Her whole body was shaking, but she did not want to scare Suzie, so she squatted on the edge of the seat and curled up into a ball. Her teeth were chattering due to fright. Shaun's heart contracted.

Reaching out, he pulled Catherine into his arms and hugged her tightly.

The burning heat of his body enveloped her, making her subconsciously rely on him. She could not help but grasp the shirt on his chest.

However, when she remembered that he had scared her, she raised her hand and pinched his chest hard. "Shaun Hill, you *sshole ! Why did you scare me?"

Shaun hissed. It was clearly painful, but when he heard the woman's soft voice, he could not get angry at all. He smelled the fragrance of her hair and hugged her soft body, feeling his heart fill to the brim.

Then, Suzie's upset voice sounded. "Hmph, you two are hugging each other and abandoning me to the side."

Catherine blushed and wanted to go over, but the Ferris wheel was still high up, so her legs were weak.

"Forget it. I'll take care of myself." Suzie looked out the window.

Catherine lowered her eyes in chagrin.

Shaun looked down and saw her fan-like eyelashes flutter.

About three minutes later, the Ferris wheel was two-thirds the way down and she immediately broke free from his arms to sit beside Suzie.

Shaun's eyes narrowed at his empty embrace and he reminded, "That was just the first round. There's one more."

"I'm getting off. You two can stay." Catherine was truly afraid. She used to be young and ignorant and was not scared of getting on the Ferris wheel, but now, she was really scared of it.

"I don't wanna sit here anymore either. It's not fun at all. I wanna go on a boat ride." Suzie had already seen something more interesting below.

Shaun's expression darkened, but he could only follow the two of them out.

They went around the amusement park. Finally, they found a McDonald's to eat at.

Shaun rarely stepped into such places, but Suzie insisted, so he had no choice.

After Catherine ordered a set meal, the three of them sat by the window and ate.

He was not interested in such foods and only got a cup of coke to drink when the voices of a young couple suddenly sounded from the side.

"This chicken nugget is delicious. I'll give it to you." The girl ingratiatingly took the chicken nuggets and put them on the boy's tray.

The boy glared at the girl helplessly. "I don't understand you. You're just giving me things that you don't want to eat yourself."

"Hehe, it's because you're my boyfriend. It's a boyfriend's responsibility to eat what his girlfriend doesn't want to."

"Sigh, it's too painful to be your boyfriend." "Why don't you try saying that again?"

"I didn't say anything." The boy took the chicken nuggets and ate them gloomily.

Shaun froze. That scene gave him a very familiar feeling, as though he had experienced it before.

Suddenly, a woman's voice sounded in his mind. "Why can't you eat what I've eaten? Is it because you hate me? Or don't you love me anymore?"

However, before he could think more into it, there was a piercing pain in his head.

The coke in his hand fell to the ground with a splash.

His handsome face turned pale with pain.

Suzie and Catherine were shocked. They looked at him at the same time.

"Uncle, are you okay?" Suzie looked worried.

“ I’m fine. I’ll go wash my face. ” Shaun hurriedly went to the washroom.

Catherine was confused until she saw the couple at the side. She froze and remembered something from the past. She and Shaun had also experienced it before when they ate at a KFC outlet in Melbourne.

Did he remember something?

Just as she was thinking about this, she suddenly heard the waiter’s voice. “Mister, are you okay?

Mister!

“Someone fainted. Who came with him?”

She looked in the direction of the bathroom where a bunch of people were gathered. She rushed over and pushed through the crowd, only to see Shaun on the ground, unconscious.

“Shaun... Shaun...” She pulled him up and called out his name for a long time, but when he did not respond, she quickly dialed 000.

Soon, the ambulance came and she took Shaun to the hospital with Suzie.

Suzie looked worried. "Mommy, what happened to scummy Daddy? Why did he suddenly faint?"

Catherine frowned. She suspected that Shaun might have remembered something after he heard the couple's conversation earlier.

However, the psychologist from before said that only 0.1% of hypnotized people would recover.

Some who recovered even became fools.

At that time, the door of the ER opened and a doctor came out. "Has the patient not slept for a few days? I believe he has stayed up for an extended period of time without rest, causing brain nerve dysfunction which resulted in fainting."

"I see."

Catherine was speechless. She thought that he fainted because he was stimulated by past memories. Well, it seemed she had thought too much.

At that moment, Chester and Rodney also arrived. When Shaun was sent to the hospital, the people in the emergency room had informed Chester. Rodney happened to be with him, so the two of them arrived together.

However, when Rodney saw Catherine outside, he flew into a rage. "Catherine Jones, why are you here? You're like a ghost haunting him. Are you trying to regain your position because Shaun and Sarah's wedding is temporarily canceled? I'm warning you, you'd better stay away from Shaun. "

"Why are you so fierce?" Suzie glared angrily at Rodney.

"Little brats like you should stay out of matters involving the adults. " Rodney glared at Catherine.
" There are so many men under the sky, so why are you clinging to Shaun? Don't you feel ashamed for being a third party?"

"Third party?" Catherine laughed. "Fine, I'm at fault no matter what I do. I shouldn't have dialed 000 and sent Shaun here. I should've just let him die instead."

"You..."

"By the way, when Shaun wakes up, remember to tell him to pay me back for the medical fees. I didn't get anything when I divorced him, and I don't plan on spending a single cent on him," Catherine said coldly and carried Suzie away directly.

She felt that her IQ would drop if she continued talking to Rodney.

"Don't think I don't know you want Shaun to pay you back so you can hit on him later. Shaun will marry Sarah, so stop dreaming! "

Rodney yelled at her back.

Then, he took out his phone and wanted to call Sarah.

Chester took his phone away and snapped at him, " Can't you let Shaun have some peace and quiet?"

Didn't you hear what the doctor said? Shaun hasn't slept for several days. He hasn't slept well since that incident with Sarah."

"I'm calling Sarah over to take care of him," Rodney explained, "The two of them can't just carry on like this."

"But you have to wait until Shaun gets slightly better. He'll have a headache if he sees Sarah now." Chester was exasperated. "Don't you know why he doesn't answer our calls anymore? It's because he doesn't want to hear us talk about Sarah. Give him some time."

Rodney became gloomy and could not say anything else.

Shaun was unconscious for the whole day before waking up.

When he opened his eyes, only Chester was sitting in the ward.

"Friend, I'm begging you to sleep after this. I don't want to attend your funeral if you suddenly die," Chester teased.

Shaun rubbed his temples. "Why am I here?"

He had been with Suzie and Catherine, eating at McDonald's in the amusement park.

“You haven’t rested for too many days, which led to fainting due to brain nerve dysfunction. It was Catherine who sent you here.” Chester gave him a sidelong glance. “Rather than fainting, it’s better to say that you fell asleep because you were too tired. Do you think you’re made of iron?”

Shaun silently knitted his eyebrows together. “Well, are you hungry? I’ll call Hadley— ”

“I remember you said that I ate KFC with Catherine before,” Shaun suddenly interrupted him.

“Yeah, why are you suddenly bringing that up?”

“Have I gone with any other woman before?” Shaun asked.

“How would I know?” Chester felt incredulous. “ Probably not. Why?”

Although that was what Shaun said, he immediately sat up. He pulled off the covers and changed his clothes and shoes. “Help me with the discharge procedure. I’m leaving.”

“ Shaun Hill.” Chester was really angry. “Can you take your own health seriously?”

“I’m fine now. It’s okay.”

Shaun opened the door. Yael, who was waiting at the door, immediately said, "Eldest Young Master Hill, where are you going? I'll send you there."

"Why are you here?" Shaun's sharp eyes swept over Yael and she jumped in fright.

She was different from Hadley and was a member of Liona. She would rarely come looking for him if Shaun had not summoned her.

She was here solely to keep an eye on him for Sarah.

"I..."

"Your task now is to protect Sarah." Shaun's dark eyes were suddenly filled with coldness. "Yael Chadwick, you're the closest person to Sarah.

Didn't you notice at all when she went to the apartment every week to look for Lucifer?"

Yael was startled. "Eldest Young Master Hill, I really didn't know. Although it's my duty to protect her, she has her own personal affairs sometimes and I can't keep an eye on her all the time. She'll think that she's being monitored. But don't worry, in the future, I'll—"

"You just need to protect her for now, lest she takes things too hard. She can be with whoever she wants to. You don't have to tell me about it anymore."

Then, Shaun turned and left.

Yael was stunned. What did he mean by that? Was Eldest Young Master Hill really giving up on Sarah?

She quickly chased after him, but before she could approach him, Shaun looked at her coldly. "Didn't you hear what I said? People in Liona all have their respective duties. I'll call you if I need you. There's no need to guard me."

He said and left without looking back.

This time, Yael did not dare to follow him as she was afraid of rousing his suspicion.

Half an hour later.

A car was parked below Hudson Corporation. Just as Shaun got ready to go down, he suddenly saw a black Lamborghini parked at the roadside. Before long, Isaac emerged from inside while holding flowers. He was making a phone call.

Shaun's face turned cold as he slammed the door upon getting out of the car. He took large strides over.

"Okay, I'll wait for you," Isaac said gently just as a tall shadow loomed over him. He turned to see Shaun's exquisitely handsome face.

"President Hill, hello." He smiled elegantly. Although he did not usually deal with Shaun, he often met him at banquets in the capital.

Shaun's cold eyes glanced at the pink flowers in his hand. "Are those for Catherine?" Let me go, Mr. Hill

“Yes, Cathy told me last time that she likes pink roses— ”

Before Isaac could finish, the flowers in his hands were snatched from him. Shaun took the flowers and shoved them directly into the trash can next to him.

“Shaun Hill, what are you doing?” Anger appeared on Isaac’s handsome face.

“Stay away from Catherine if you want the Stringer family to be in one piece, ” Shaun warned him.

“You’re in no position to meddle in my and Catherine’s affairs. I know she’s your ex-wife, but you two are already divorced. You have no right to meddle in her affairs,” Isaac sneered.

“Did you not understand me? Don’t think I don’t know that you’re only chasing after Catherine because of the Yule family’s identity and status. In the end, it’s for the sake of the Stringer family. But you have to understand, if you offend me, I just have to say a single word and your family’s livelihood is done for.”

Shaun’s eyes were full of gloom, and his low voice showed that his patience had run out.

“Shaun Hill, can’t you just let her go? Who in the capital doesn’t know that you already have Sarah Neeson by your side? As a man, don’t you think you’re too shameless?” Isaac was a modest gentleman and was angered by Shaun’s despicable acts.

“Yeah, I’m shameless, but shameless people can do anything. Do you want to try me?” Shaun glared icy daggers at him.

Isaac was somewhat frightened. To the nobles in the country, Shaun was a mountain that could not be offended.

He gritted his teeth and drove away in anger.

However, after the car drove less than 200 meters away, Isaac called Catherine again. "Catherine, the fish took the bait. How are you going to thank me for this?"

Standing in front of the floor-to-ceiling window that overlooked below, Catherine smiled softly. "It's been tough on you to pursue me these days. I'll treat you to a meal another day."

"I don't need a meal. You just need to come up with a unique design for my house." Isaac grinned.

"You still have the nerve to ask me for designs? If I hadn't acted as your shield, your family would've forced you to go on a blind date."

"Don't say that. Aren't we close to each other?" "Fine, I'll give it to you in a month."

After Catherine hung up the call, her red lips curled up.

These days, the whole of Canberra thought that Isaac was courting her flamboyantly. However, no one knew that Isaac and she already knew each other in the States. She had seen with her own eyes as Isaac got in and out of relationships with several men.

Yes, men. That guy liked men.

She looked at the man downstairs. Looking down from the 30th floor, the man's figure was as small as an ant.

However, that ant had finally taken the bait.

'Sarah Neeson, I'll give you a taste of what it feels like to have your lover taken away from you.

'Shaun Hill, I'll give you back the pain of that year little by little.'

Even if he was hypnotized, she would not forgive him. She would not let him off.

Shaun stood downstairs for ten minutes before he saw Catherine walking out of the building in a small orange suit. Her enchanting curly hair was straightened again. Her long hair swayed, revealing the long tassel earrings hanging from her ears. It made her look simply pure and beautiful.

Catherine looked around the square and quickly saw Shaun striding toward her.

"Why are you here?" She deliberately raised her eyebrows.

"Who were you waiting for? Isaac Stringer?" Shaun sneered, "Catherine Jones, let me tell you, Isaac likes men."

Catherine's eyes widened.

Holy sh*t, how could that be? No one in the country would know that Isaac liked men. Let me go, Mr. Hill [by Shallow South] Chapter 785

Shaun saw Catherine's shocked appearance.

The corners of his lips curled slightly. He had casually come up with a lie, but she unexpectedly believed him.

"Anyway, I'm telling the truth. I advise you to stay away from him," Shaun added.

Catherine rolled her eyes at him and took out her phone to call Isaac.

Shaun said, "Isaac already left."

"Shaun Hill, what did you do this time?" Catherine glared at him.

"I told him that pursuing you is offending me, and he left without a word," Shaun said contemptuously.
"He's as timid as a mouse."

Catherine, " "

If she did not know Isaac well, she would have believed Shaun's nonsense.

This man told lies without coming up with a script first.

Seeing that she had stopped speaking and was looking at him expressionlessly with her beautiful face, Shaun coughed into his fist. "I came here to thank you for sending me to the hospital yesterday. Why don't I treat you to dinner tonight as thanks?"

"Thanks, but no thanks. I sent you to the hospital out of kindness yesterday and ended up getting scolded by your good friends. They said that I'm like a ghost haunting you and that I'm taking the opportunity to get back together with you. I told them to remind you to pay me back for your medical fees, but then they said I just wanted an excuse to hit on you."

Catherine crossed her arms coldly and mocked, "If I agree to go to dinner with you, I'll have my ears chewed off by his scolding again."

"Are you talking about Rodney?"

Shaun's temples suddenly throbbed. If not for the fact that they had been best friends for years, he really wanted to punch him. "Don't listen to his nonsense."

"Shaun Hill, I really don't know what you want. "

Catherine looked exasperated. "Because of you, I'm always getting scolded by others. Don't you love Sarah Neeson? Why are you always coming to look for me? Did you forget that at the wedding a few days ago, you personally said that you'll hold another wedding with Sarah in a few days? Or is it because Sarah did something that let you down, so you came here to me out of annoyance? I'm not your rebound."

Shaun's handsome face was filled with embarrassment.

Every word she said fell on his face like a slap.

As a man, he did feel ashamed. He had vowed to marry Sarah on their wedding day.

“Shaun Hill, stop giving people hope and then making them fall into despair.”

Catherine turned around and left.

Shaun froze. When he saw her leave, he subconsciously grabbed her hand. “Yesterday, when we were eating at McDonald’s, some images flashed in my mind. In the past... Maybe I didn’t hate you that much.”

Catherine’s body stiffened. She did have that suspicion yesterday, but she did not expect him to really remember something.

“It’s impossible for Sarah and I to get married again.” When Shaun saw that she was not walking away, he continued, “I’ve moved out of the seaside villa. I’m not treating you like a rebound.”

“You say you’re not treating me like your rebound? You decided not to marry her and came to me immediately.” Catherine flung his hand away angrily. “I think it’s because you’ve realized that your childhood sweetheart and first love isn’t as pure as you thought she was, so you regret it. Since there are no other women around you, you felt bored and came to pester me instead.”

The more she spoke, the more furious she got. Her eyes burned with flames of anger and tears.

Shaun’s heart hurt viciously.

“That’s not it.”

He opened his mouth with difficulty.

“ Shaun Hill, I don’t want to be hurt by you again.” Catherine turned and left.
