

Life Debt 1061

Chapter 1061

"After you've figured out your own feelings and made a decision, have a good chat with Sam and come clean with where you stand." Cordy gave Quinn her advice.

'Okay," Quinn nodded.

'Still want to drink?' Cordy asked.

"Nah." Quinn smiled.

She was almost done for the night.

If she drank more, she would become tipsy.

Unlike Zoe, who would wake up just fine the next morning after drinking much alcohol, Quinn would feel terrible for an entire week if she were to get drunk.

What was more, Patrick had collapsed from drinking too much and it was time for him to head home too.

'Then, let's go." Cordy stood up to help Patrick up.

' Need my help?"

' No need." Cordy called out to Patrick. "Wake up."

Patrick opened his eyes blearily and spluttered, "I'm not drunk. Let's continue, come, come..."

'Come on, time to head home."

'I'm not drunk, I can still drink."

But since Nana managed to kidnap her, and since she landed in Nana's hands, why did Nana not kill her?

By right, given Nana's character, she would never give Cordy a chance to survive.

Was Nana going to torture her before killing her?!

"Cordy, don't fear,' Patrick said. "Even if we were to die, we'll stay together."

Was he trying to comfort her?!

Cordy squirmed around once again.

She tried to stand up but was unable to move at all.

'Patrick, can you move?'"

"I can't. I tried," Patrick said helplessly.

"I can't move either."

'You said that we're being kidnapped."

'I can only think of Nana Lynd,'" Cordy said frankly.

“Me too. The first thought I had was that Nana is behind this. She can’t accept the affections that you and John have for each other, so she wants to kill you and put an end to everything. However...” Patrick went on, “If it were her, we’d be dead by now.”

'Now that you've mentioned it, I find it strange, too.' Patrick agreed. 'That woman Nana isn't a decent person. If we were to end up in her hands, she'd definitely torture us to death!'

'So... who could it be?! Aside from her, I don't think I've offended anyone else,' Cordy said straightforwardly.

'Could it be... the Sachs?' Patrick reminded her.

Cordy was stunned.

She had not contacted the Sachs for a long while. To her, the Sachs were a bunch of losers who would not dare to make any waves under her nose. In fact, they had to do her bidding. Otherwise, she could reduce them to nothing!

After a moment's doubt, Cordy said with certainty, 'Impossible. They don't have such guts. The Sachs clearly know that they will lose whatever standing they have in North City without me. They'd never shoot themselves in the foot!'

'Right,' Patrick nodded, believing in Cordy's words unconditionally. "Then who could it be?! Could it really be my enemy?"

Cordy really had no idea.

'But no matter who it is, what exactly is his objective in kidnapping us?' Cordy could not figure it out. "Why does it feel like he wants to put us under house arrest instead of doing us any real harm?"

'Let's wait it out.' Patrick sighed helplessly. "I refuse to believe that this person's objective is to lock us up for life.'

"Are you taking revenge on me? I forced you to be with me and you're taking revenge on me by treating me like this!" Nana broke down and yelled.

"No," John said coldly, completely unmoved by Nana's mood swing.

Nana was scared to death by Lucas' behavior.

She would rather Lucas fight with her and flare up at her. At least she would know what he was feeling.

But the way he was acting now made her suspect that Lucas treated her as invisible like air.

No.

She could not accept that.

She risked her life to be with him not so that they could lead the rest of their lives like this!

Nana hung up and returned to her bedroom.

Tonight, she had to wait till Cordy was dead before she could sleep in peace.

The night turned darker, and her phone rang.

Nana immediately answered the call with viciousness in her eyes. "Is she dead?"

'Ms. Lynd, we can't find Cordy Sachs,' the voice from the other end answered her.

'What!' Nana's brows furrowed tight. "I told you that she's in North City and I've even given you the address of her villa there. How could you not find her?"

'We really can't. We even took the risk to sneak into her villa and confirmed that there's no one inside.'

"Could she be with Patrick Stuart?"

'Patrick Stuart wasn't there either.'

"What about in Rocktown?"

Cordy pursed her lips.

Was he so scared that she would run?

How could she possibly do that in such a dark and unfamiliar place?

Who would be so careful?!

This person also seemed to understand her very well.

'Do you want to eat or not?!" the man asked, clearly annoyed.

'Yes, she'll eat." Patrick immediately answered on her behalf, worried that she might go hungry.

Cordy did not reject the man further. 'Thank you."

The man was stunned for a moment, as he did not expect Cordy to be so courteous to him.

Of course, such professional business people would never expose their true feelings so easily.

He picked up a spoon and fed Cordy, spoon by spoon.

Patrick was stunned for a long while before he finally mumbled, "Can't you just comply with Sean's wishes?"

Cordy was surprised to hear that. ‘Since when did you begin standing on Sean’s side?’

Patrick paused for a moment before asking her back, “Did I?”

‘Didn’t you just do so?’

‘I just think that Sean’s considerations are legitimate. If what he’s doing is dangerous, why aren’t you avoiding it?’

‘If I’m afraid of danger, won’t they be too?’ Cordy said with exasperation in her voice, “Why can’t we face whatever comes together?”

‘ Perhaps Sean thinks that he can handle it alone.’

‘If he thought he could, he wouldn’t have kidnapped me.’

Patrick was at a loss for words. He suddenly said tentatively, “Is it possible that it might not be Sean who kidnapped us? Even if you refuse to listen to him, he just needs to lock you up and there’s no need for him to resort to such means.”

‘The reason is simple. Sean doesn’t want me to be angry. He clearly knows that I’ll hate him for life if he blatantly locks me up. He’s doing things this way so he would be above suspicion.’

‘Fine.’ Patrick decided to stop doubting.

He did not really doubt Cordy’s guess, but he just did not want Cordy risking her life, so he deliberately cast doubt over the possibility.

'Yes, sir," one of the servants immediately replied.

They even gave him a knowing smile.

To them, John and Nana were newlyweds and it was absolutely reasonable for them to occasionally go overboard in their bedroom activities.

Therefore, Nana's fatigue did not make them suspicious.

What was more, John looked so natural and composed.

There was no loophole to be spotted.

He carried Nana upstairs.

When he previously came to the Lynd residence, he took note of where all the surveillance cameras were located.

There was only one surveillance camera installed on the second floor which was along the corridor.

As long as he avoided that surveillance camera, the Lynd family members would not notice a thing.

John remained calm despite the cold sweat beaded on his forehead.

Given how large the study was, it was not easy trying to find some confidential documents that were probably hidden very well.

After ten minutes, John did not manage to find anything.

After twenty minutes, he still did not make any progress.

After thirty minutes...

Sweat rolled down his face and dripped down his chin.

Just then, Sean texted him. [Quick! The Lynds are about to reach home!]

John remained calm, and he calmly continued his search.

In the Cranston residence, Jean yelled angrily, "Sean, I watched you grow up and I know you to be a mature and sensible man. How could you pull such a joke on us?"
